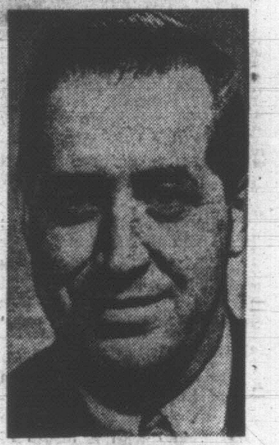
Last-Ditch Talks In Airline Crisis

Work Slowdown Slated Monday

TORONTO (CP)—A conciliation board plans to sit through the weekend in an attempt to get agreement on a new contract between Air Canada and the Canadian Air Line Employees' Association.



MACKASEY
. . . prevents strike

John Hayes, president of the association, said today no progress had been made in talks which began Friday under the chairmanship of Thomas C. O'Connor, a Toronto labor relations consultant.

Mr. Hayes Friday threatened a work-to-rule slowdown against Air Canada by the 2,200 passenger agents, communications personnel and switchboard operators in the association unless Air Canada presents a "reasonable" contract during the weekend talks.

NEW CHAIRMAN

He said today that Mr. O'Connor, picked as chairman after the federal government ordered a reconvening of the three-man board formerly headed by Judge Rene Lippe, now has been acquainted with the dispute and will begin to play a mediator's role in trying to bring the two sides together.

Mr. Hayes said after the first three-hour meeting that the association and management were no closer to agreement than they were before the meeting began. He said the stumbling block was getting "this company to bargain."

"The company seems to think that we're not worth any more money so we're going to institute a work perfection program, making sure that we follow all the rules to the letter," Mr. Hayes said.

WANTS AN ADJUSTMENT

The last contract between the association and Air Canada expired July 31. Bargaining began in June and conciliation was applied for July 19 by the union. At issue are wages, working conditions, duration of the new contract and employee-transfer clauses.

Earlier this week, Mr. Hayes said the association wants an immediate but undisclosed adjustment, plus salary increases ranging from 19 to 35 per cent in a one-year contract.

Air Canada has offered a 15 per cent increase over two years. Present salaries are $325 to $550 monthly for passenger agents and $260 to $382 monthly for switchboard operators.

Last week, federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey ordered the conciliation board to reconvene instead of accepting the board's original report.

Mr. Hayes said Friday:

"We should have been in a position to take strike action now but the minister prevented that by failing to release the conciliation report. Therefore, we have substituted a different approach in lieu of the right to strike."

Strike action can be taken seven days after a conciliation report is tabled.

Mr. Hayes said the association wants to restore the difference between the wage scales of the clerks and those of other groups in the company that were in effect when the last 32-month contract was negotiated.

"In other words, we're after a catch-up system first, and then we can work out a percentage increase," said Mr. Hayes.

TURNOUT 'LIGHT' IN EARLY VOTING

Voter turnout was light but generally steady to noon as ballots were cast in seven area municipalities for aldermen and school trustees.

The percentage vote appeared considerably higher than the 21 per cent cast in the October hospital referendum, but much below last year's municipal elections when mayors were chosen.

Estimates of total vote expected range between 30 and 40 per cent.

Polls, open since 8 a.m., close at 8 p.m.

All liquor outlets in Greater Victoria will remain closed until polls close.

Strom New Chief Of Alberta SC

EDMONTON (CP)—A soft-spoken, church-going Southern Alberta rancher was elected leader of the province's ruling Social Credit party Friday night after a campaign that promised to continue Premier E. C. Manning's policies with a new look.

STROM
. . . Manning pleased

Municipal Affairs Minister Harry Strom, 54, polled 915 votes on the second ballot, 75 more than the minimum 840 required, while Highways Minister Gordon Taylor had 606 and backbencher Walter Buck 147.

Mr. Strom missed a first-ballot victory by only 23 votes.

Ray Reierson, minister of labor and education who ran third on the first ballot, threw his support to Mr. Taylor on the second one. (See stories Page 3.)

Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart, low man on the first ballot, was dropped from the contest.

PROMISED NEW APPROACH

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Strom promised "a vigorous new approach to government, a team approach, a problem-solving approach."

"We now must take this opportunity of a new interest in politics to revitalize our party.

"There is still a great deal to be done. There are many individuals who are not sharing in the development of our province."

He committed his government to expand social, economic and political opportunities.

Like Mr. Manning, Mr. Strom has pictured government's role as one of encouraging individual opportunity and responsibility.

Mr. Strom said he would take an open mind to the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa Dec. 16 but Mr. Manning probably would not be along.

"If I'm to be premier, I must assume a premier's responsibility. I don't think Mr. Manning would want to go along."

There are no immediate election plans, he told reporters. The government, not the pre-

Grits Hint at Closure To Get Rules Changed

OTTAWA (CP)—The parliamentary opposition has loudly rejected a government move to assert virtually complete control over allocating time for passage of legislation through the Commons.

Conservative Leader Stanfield labelled it "a truly horrendous proposal" shortly after it was put forward Friday. The New Democratic Party rules expert, Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre), said it would make the government House leader, Donald Macdonald, "a dictator over Parliament."

The stiff opposition stand on the provision, part of a streamlining rules package, promised an extended Commons fight.

Mr. Macdonald, responsible for arranging Commons business, hoped for a "responsible" opposition attitude on the proposals.

STARTS TUESDAY

He said debate opens Tuesday on the rules revision and that they stand as a single package. He promised the debate will be carried through to a finish.

Both the Conservatives and NDP promised to fight the time-allocation proposal.

"It is our responsibility to fight this proposal and we accept this responsibility," Mr. Stanfield said. Mr. Knowles promised a fight to isolate time-allocation and refer it to committee for reconsideration.

He said he could provisionally accept the rest of the package, advanced by an all-party procedures committee established Sept. 24. A government majority on the committee made the result a government program. Opposition parties on the committee dissented to parts of it, including the time-limit clause.

TIME ALLOCATION

Under it, an all-party committee would meet to decide on time allocation. In the event of disagreement, the government House leader would have the right to lay down the law subject to a parliamentary vote.

Under present rules, the government would have to resort to the rarely-used closure rule to end a legislative debate.

Mr. Knowles said it would be "an act of stupidity" for the Liberal government to resort to closure to force a vote on the time-allocation issue. He suggested closure has its place, but not on such a fundamental thing as the changing of the rules of the game.

Apart from elimination of some outdated procedures, the rules package would largely turn over the rest of the job of examining departmental spending estimates to House committees. The opposition would have the option of reviving objections in the House.

ABANDON A STAGE

The resolution stage preceding money bills would be abandoned in a time-saving move.

Most bills would be shunted from the House to committee for detailed examination. And the whole second-reading process—when the most extensive House study is currently made—would be downgraded.

Second reading now amounts to approval in principle. This emphasis would be shifted to the third and final reading.

Instead of facing the possibility of year-round sittings as it has in the past, the procedures committee proposed a yearly session extending from September or October to the following July 1 when the summer break would begin.

There would be three "semesters," one running from September to Christmas, another from January to Easter and the third from Easter to summer break.

The Commons would pick up an extra hour a week of working time with the start of the daily sitting at 2 p.m. instead of 2:30 from Monday to Thursday. The Friday start would remain 11 a.m., but sittings would end at 5 p.m. instead of six.

There were other provisions including an opposition right to 25 days each session to initiate debates of its own choosing. But time allocation was the controversial keynote.

Mr. Macdonald hoped the opposition would not force the government to the point of closure on the issue. Discussing the rule change, he said the government's right to pass legislation had been frustrated.

Paris Banks Blasted

PARIS (UPI) — Explosions rocked three Paris banks early today. Police said that a young woman injured by one of the blasts might have been involved in the attacks. The woman was found lying on the sidewalk in front of a branch of the Banque Nationale de Paris after an explosive charge ripped open its letter box about 1 a.m.

LOT OF CARS PARKED IN 'THEIR POCKETS'

NEW YORK (UPI)—More than half of New York's parking meter collection crew was under arrest today on a charge of stealing $5 million in dimes and quarters from meters over the past four years.

Finance administrator Fioravante Perrotta said each of the 22 men arrested had been pocketing an average of $200 a day, mostly in dimes from the city's meters.

It took an undercover detective who joined the ranks of the meter collection workers to crack the case, he said.

Poverty Still Besets Koreans In Program of Reconstruction

By SUSAN RILEY

Progress has been made in Korea's 15-year struggle to rebuild, but there still is poverty.

"When I began my work, after the war, villages were just a group of huts," says Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, director of the Unitarian Services Committee.

"Today the most isolated villages have schools, and the larger ones have medical centres. Wells are more sanitary and they've learned how to take care of their cattle."

The progressive mayor of Seoul, she said, has a plan to turn his city into a Geneva of the East. In tourist brochures, Seoul looks like an active, clean, modern city.

But tourist brochures don't tell the whole story.

GAP WIDENS

There are still slums, said Dr. Hitschmanova, particularly in Seoul, with its population of five million. As the country progresses she said, the gap between rich and poor widens.

Social Service Centres are an attempt to close that gap. Subsidized by the USC, they have two purposes: to study social problems, and to provide immediate aid.

The centre in Inchon, serves as a dental and medical clinic, a school, a family planning clinic and a food distribution centre.

Social workers are all Koreans. In 1958 the USC was the first overseas agency to employ Korean social workers.

STUDENT TEACHERS

Students from a high school across the road from the centre teach younger children in their spare time.

Every Saturday student dentists travel to Inchon at their own expense and run free dental clinics.

"Soon, too, the centre will have a hostel for destitute women to protect them from prostitution," said Dr. Hitschmanova.

That centre, she said, is an example of the way Koreans can and will help themselves.

It costs, for example, $30 to rehabilitate a Korean family.

"This provides them with two meals a day and clothing," said Dr. Hitschmanova, but they are given an opportunity to pay back, which is as important as the money.

"Once the man is working again he is delighted to pay all the loan back," she said.

Not everyone is that lucky.

"There are still frightening numbers of children — over 70,000 — in orphanages, the highest total since the war broke out in 1950."

Korea is considered the poorest country in the temperate zone. Its welfare budget is tiny. The city is teeming; slums are spreading. It is estimated that two million more houses are needed to adequately shelter the present population.

The United Nations, the United States and the USC have been pouring aid into Korea. Carloads of Canadian barley have saved more than one family, Dr. Hitschmanova said. And the demand for help is growing with the country.

"It's hard to say no when you have Canada on your lapels," she said.

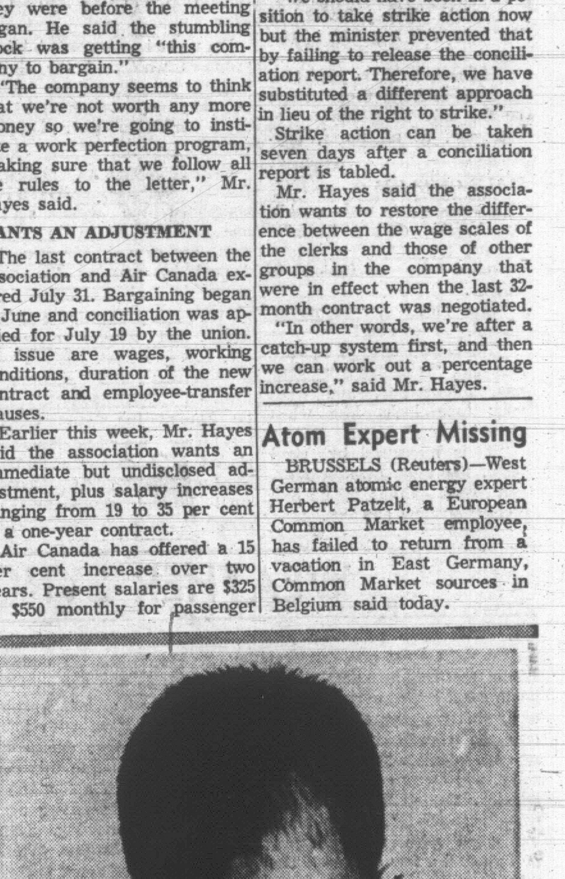
Clothing may be left at Fairfield's Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road.



EXAMINING his new domain, this Korean orphan finds the first bed he ever slept in a far, far better thing than he ever had before. He was admitted to a Unitarian Service Committee TB clinic, where he sleeps better at night now as do some other 70,000 Korean orphans.

Trouble with some workers' slowdowns, nobody kin tell th' difference.

Mini Memo Muddle

By JIM NICHOLS

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The inter-office memo has become the principal weapon in a skirt skirmish raging in Michigan's capital building.

It started when one disapproving committee clerk circulated a memo among her fellow female legislative employees which said:

"How short is too short?

"The right length is dictated by your size, age and intelligence. It is measured by good taste, the proper place and occasion. Honestly now, are your legs and knees so truly fetching that they must be exposed to everyone, at all times, anywhere?"

The memo added:

"Your skirt is too short if: When you sit there is nothing to tug down . . . turning around in your chair pulls it thigh-high . . . someone else has to do your filing for you."

OTHER SIDE RESPONDS

The other side was soon heard from. A less-disapproving secretary parodied the first memo with a memo of her own.

"The right length," she asserted, "is dictated by your nationality, religion and the shape of your head."

She added:

"Your skirt is too long if: When sitting you look as though you're still standing . . . when turning in your chair it gets wound up in the swivel."

A male then jumped into the fray with a memo inquiring:

"Honestly now, is your face so truly fetching that it must be the only thing exposed to everyone, at all times, anywhere?"

MALE GETS HIS

In response to male meddling in this clearly feminine debate, another secretary switched the discussion to beards.

"How long," her memo inquired, "is too long?"

"The right length of beard," she said, "is dictated by your age, intelligence, and what your face looks like when clean shaven."

"It is measured by good taste, the color of your hair, and what time your five o'clock shadow appears.

Transplants 'Reckless Adventures'

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON — A number of heart transplants have been "reckless adventures" by "incompelete teams" — doctors whose "ambition exceeds" their professional balance — the Journal of the American Medical Association charged Friday.

Its unusually critical editorial was signed by Dr. Dwight E. Harken of Harvard University and Peter Bent, Brigham Hospital, Boston, leading chest surgeon.

He did not say how many of the world's 100 transplants to date have been done at centres he would consider qualified, those including expert immunologists and research scientists as well as A-1 heart surgeons.

But another authority told the Washington Post: "Probably less than half have been done at such centres."

Simultaneously this week: Surgeons and immunologists at Peter Bent Brigham, leading Harvard teaching hospital, met Thursday and weighed the advisability of their doing a heart transplant. They decided against it, it was learned, because they felt there is still not enough knowledge of how the body rejects a donor heart, and how to spot and manage — or prevent — such rejection.

Two members to Dr. Denton A. Cooley's famed Houston transplant team said they are tempted to slow their transplant rate until they can get better tissue matching between donor and patient. Dr. Grady Hallman and Dr. James Nora immunologist, said matching on all their 16 transplants — the world's record — has been "class C" or "D." They said they would like to find a class B. A class A match would signify identical twins, B something close. Class D is the poorest.

PROPOSE LIMITS

Harken Friday said transplants should be limited still to the "few sophisticated centers with a broad spectrum of capabilities embracing donor selection, heart surgery and rejection supi'esssion." Such a limit, he said, would serve as a "firm restriction to future experimental adventures."

His position, though it went further in its blunt language, was based on a report also printed in the AMA journal. This was a study of organ transplants made at Bethesda, Md., Sept. 28 and 29 by a special group assembled by the American College of Cardiology.

It urged more funds for research and care of reserrch patients. It sought a national transplant registry (now about to be established by the American College of Surgeons, at National Institutes of Health request).

URGES REVIEW

It also urged a continuing review of the "economic, social, legal and ethical implications" of all biomedical research, either by some present agency or by a broad new commission. A bill introduced by Sen. Walter Mondale (D—Minn.) called for such a commission this year, but hearings held by a subcommittee headed by Sen. Fred Harris (D—Okla.) won no immediate congressional action.

Of the 98 patients who have so far received 100 new hearts, just 45 still live. The only two alive since last spring: Dr. Philip Blaiberg in South Africa, operated on Jan. 2; and Father Damien Boulogne in France, operated on May 12. The longest U.S. survivor now: Fredi C. Everman of Arlington, Va., operated on at Houston July 21.

Thousand Walking To 'Goal'

NANAIMO — About 1,000 persons today ignored heavy rain to participate in an eight-mile walkathon to raise funds for Nanaimo's United Appeal campaign.

Spirits were hardly dampened at 10 when the crowd set out, led by the Sea Cadet band, two Clydesdale horses and a group of local politicians.

No one yet knows if the effort brought in enough money to cover the $13,000 United Appeal deficit.

Mayor Frank Ney, who completed the walk wearing a bowler hat and an old-time bathing suit, said the fun of it all was worth a million dollars to the town.

Participants obtained sponsors who paid the United Appeal a quarter, a dollar or any other amount for each mile the participant walked.

United Appeal chairman Robert McPhee, who also completed the walk, said one man had so many sponsors he earned $50 for the Appeal by walking the eight miles.

"We hope this will become and annual event," Mr. McPhee said. "It's a way of getting the community involved and having a little fun at the same time."

Other participants included MLA Dave Stupich, NDP candidate T. C. Douglas and Liberal candidate Eric Winch.

PROMOTION for winter tourist season will be carried out in Calgary and Edmonton next week by John Balloch of the Victoria Visitors Bureau through showings of slides and commentary to service clubs, travel agents and transportation companies. Trip is first effort by Bureau to promote city as winter tourist spot.

mier, recently had been given a mandate in the May, 1967, provincial election.

Mr. Manning said after the balloting he "couldn't be more happy" with the outcome. He said at the outset of the race he would endorse no candidate but his son, Preston, 26, wore a Strom button Thursday.

A rancher and farmer from Burdett, Alta., Mr. Strom was first elected to the legislature in 1955. He spent six years as minister of agriculture before his promotion to the municipal affairs portfolio last July.

He said he will give up that post now but kept silent on possible cabinet appointments except to say that the cabinet ministers who opposed him have indicated they "would be happy" to serve under him.

BEST FACE TO FACE

Matter-of-fact in debate, he is at his best in the relaxed atmosphere of face-to-face talk.

His campaign was the most decorous of any of the candidates. He had throngs of supporters, but they waved signs and paraded only. There were no go-go girls. But it also was by far the best-organized and biggest.

As he walked to the platform amid cheers Friday night, a 20-foot-long Strom banner was lowered behind him.

With him were his wife Ruth and two of their six children: Faith, 27, and Arlene, 9, who pinned a rose in her father's buttonhole as he stepped to the rostrum.

He has a long record of executive and teaching positions in the Free Evangelical Church.

Birth Control Pill Backed by Cardinal

LONDON (UPI) — Cardinal Heenan, head of the Roman Catholic church in Britain, Friday approved the use of contraceptives by Catholic couples if they are following their "conscience."

Appearing on a nationwide evening television program, Heenan said that if a Catholic couple was using contraceptives and following their consciences then their priest must say to them, "God bless you."

Informed religious sources in Britain said they knew of no other instance in the furore of controversy since Pope Paul issued his encyclical in which a cardinal had come out as an individual with a statement like Heenan's. But they stressed cardinals in France, Belgium, Germany and Holland hold a similar view and have played a part in drafting statements made by episcopal councils on the birth control pill.

(Religious sources in Rome said the Vatican has not taken any public position on interpretations of the encyclical but would certainly not be pleased with Heenan's statement.)

Asked by host-interviewer David Frost if the church would interfere with the decision of a Catholic couple on "serious grounds of conscience to use a contraceptive" the cardinal replied:

"A man is bound to follow his conscience. The teaching of the church is that a man must do this even if his conscience is in error."

He added:

"It could happen easily, particularly after such a long period of dispute and doubt, that a couple might say conscientiously, 'I am quite sure that this is the right thing for me to do.' Then they must follow their conscience."

When Frost suggested that the cardinal might be pope one day, the cardinal said he hoped not.

"But if so, I will be very careful about writing encyclicals," he added.

Pope Admits Controversy

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI said today the Catholic church is going through a period of "self-demolition." But he expressed confidence Christ will "calm the storm."

The Pope spoke on the crisis of authority now rending the church to a group of superiors and students from the Pontifical Lombard Seminary of Milan.

"The church is in an hour of unquiet, of self-criticism, one would even say of self-demolition," the Pope said, noting that he himself has become "a sign of controversy" in the church.

Long-Time Clinic Worker, Wesley J. Fulton, Dies

Wesley Johnston Fulton, a life member of Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association, died in Vancouver General Hospital heart unit Thursday.

He was for many years a hard-working director of Victoria Cerebral Palsy Association and helped raise thousands of dollars for the cause.

A regular visitor to the clinic, Mr. Fulton knew most of the children by name.

Born at Belfast, Northern Ireland, Mr. Fulton came to Victoria at an early age and had resided here ever since.

Most of his life he was engaged in the transfer business, starting as a driver with Pacific Transfer, which later became Dowell's Cartage and Storage. He was a director of the firm and, in 1954, became a partner with Eric Dowell until his retirement in 1965.

A keen angler, Mr. Fulton was co-chairman for several years of the Solarium Salmon Derby and helped to raise thousands of dollars for the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Until recently he made twice-weekly fishing trips at Brentwood Bay.

Mr. Fulton was a charter member and past chancellor commander of Capital City Lodge No. 61, Knights of Pythias; a member of Britannia Lodge No. 73, Masonic Order, and Victoria Lodge of Perfection, Scottish Rite.

He was also director and honorary president of the Chinook Club, V.S.I.A.A., and an active member of the Capital City Commercial Club.

Mr. Fulton is survived by a widow, May, and daughter, Andrea, at home; three sisters, Mrs. D. A. (Annie) Ross, Mrs. H. (Lucy) Pickup and Mrs. J. A. (Mina) Stone; and two brothers, James and Fred, all of Victoria.

Funeral services will be held at Sands Mortuary Ltd., Tuesday at 3 p.m., and will be followed by cremation. Rev. Alfred J. C. Johnson will officiate.

Strom Served In Church

By ELINOR READING

EDMONTON (CP)—In 1935, 21-year-old Harry Strom cast his first vote—for a rambunctious new political group called Social Credit.

Friday night that same party chose him as its leader and Alberta's new premier.

Despite 13 years in the legislature, the tall, soft-spoken minister of municipal affairs remains something of an unknown quantity in the public view.

Though he answers questions concisely and with good humor in the house, he is more a listener than a debater.

His affable manner and leisurely speech are marks of the southern ranch country and he says he "was practically raised on a horse."

Mr. Strom was born within the boundaries of his present constituency of Cypress, in the province's southeast corner, and farmed there until his appointment as minister of agriculture in 1962. He exchanged the portfolio for municipal affairs last July.

COMPARED TO MANNING

His record as an active churchman in the Free Evangelical Church often has been compared to Mr. Manning's long career in religious activities.

He is known as a man who likes conferences, listens to advisers and prefers long-range plans with every detail interlocked.

A cabinet colleague calls him "a master diplomat."

Mr. Strom's campaign, the most highly-organized of any of the six candidates', placed less emphasis on his personality or record as agriculture minister than on a pledge to emphasize "social development" — expansion of individual opportunities through social research.

It was a position closely tied to that of Premier Manning who tabled a white paper on human resources in the legislature in 1967. Mr. Strom is chairman of the authority set up to implement the paper.

INCREASE RESEARCH

Human resources development as presented in the paper called for the government to use computer research to design programs that would increase citizens' participation in government and equip them to function in a political climate based on individual responsibility.

Mr. Strom's platform proposed major studies of universities and urban life, a task force on northern development and a citizens' advisory commissiion on federal-provincial issues.

He also promised steps to increase communication between citizens and the government: a premier's office in Calgary, a government publications office, and revisions in internal government communications.

His stance on questions of the federal constitution would be shaped by the advisory board.

But his campaign statements indicated he would continue or increase the Manning insistence on an independent role for the province. He said the West has been "consistently under-presented" on national committees and agencies and must insist on a greater voice in the formation of national policies.

8 Charged In Language Protest

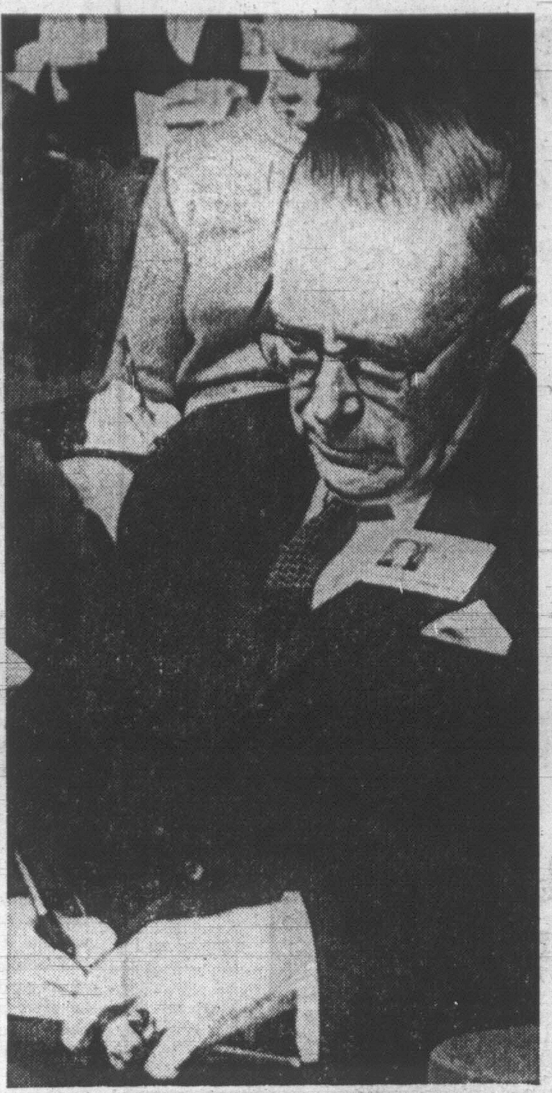
QUEBEC (CP) — Eight persons appeared on arraignment Friday facing various charges connected with Thursday's demonstration in front of the legislature against a proposed language rights bill.

Six Laval University students and Jean-Paul Vanier, a contractor from the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard, were released on $200 bail each after Judge Louis Fortin set their preliminary hearings for Feb. 10 on charges of disturbing the peace.

The Laval students are Serge Gagnon, Philippe Nadeau, Yvon Rodrigue, Robert Gagnon, Bernard Bruneau and Jean-Paul Le Bourkis.

Gaetan Leblanc, 22-yera-old designer from Quebec City, was released on $2,000 bail after being charged with assault during the demonstration. No date was set for his preliminary hearing.

The demonstration, organized by the Movement pour l'integration scolaire, involved about 3,000 persons, including large numbers of school children and students.



VOTING for man to replace him is Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta, who steps down after 25 years in premier's office. He was sworn in in 1943 after first being elected MLA in 1935. (CP Wirephoto)

Speech Denial Sparks Convention Hassle

EDMONTON (CP) — A brief moment of acrimony interrupted the Alberta Social Credit leadership convention Friday night before it chose Municipal Affairs Minister Harry Strom as the province's next premier.

It came just after the first ballot, in which Mr. Strom piled up a huge lead over Highways Minister Gordon Taylor, Education and Labor Minister Ray Reierson, backbencher Walter Buck and Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart but was still 23 votes short of a clear majority.

Mr. Reierson, who had been expected to be Mr. Strom's chief challenger, donned a Taylor campaign hat and wrote out a note to convention chairman Orvis Kennedy announcing his withdrawal.

PRIOR AGREEMENT

Then he approached the podium and asked Mr. Kennedy's permission to address the delegates. Mr. Kennedy told him there had been prior agreement among the candidates and their agents that withdrawals were to be submitted by the agents in writing only.

There was a brief discussion and Mr. Kennedy took the microphone:

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "Mr. Reierson says that I'm with the establishment and that I'm blocking him from speaking."

The delegates booed as Mr. Kennedy explained the reason for his refusal, but it was not clear where their sentiments lay.

Mr. Kennedy added:

"This is against the agreement . . . but I'm not going to deny him any rights."

BOOS, CHEERS

There were more boos, mixed with cheers, as Mr. Reierson stepped to the microphone.

"I never thought I would see the day when I was going to be denied to speak to a Social Credit convention," said Mr. Reierson, a member of the legislature for 16 years and a cabinet minister since 1955.

He then told the convention of his withdrawal and asked his supporters to vote for Mr. Taylor.

As soon as Mr. Reierson finished speaking, Mr. Gerhart, who had made no declaration for another candidate after his elimination on the opening ballot, put on a Strom button.

"In a race like this among friends, he should take his licking like a man," Mr. Gerhart said.

Italian Unions Plan Pre-Yule Walkout

ROME (AP) — Italian labor unions today called five major strikes to paralyse sections of the country before Christmas as three political parties prepared to join forces in a new coalition government.

Spot general strikes to demand contract and wage improvements were scheduled Dec. 9 in the Calabria region of southern Italy; Dec. 10 in Sardinia; Dec. 11 in Sicily; Dec. 12 in the Emilia and Puglia regions, and Dec. 13 in the Abruzzo and Tuscany regions.

The unions said further strikes to run through the first week of the new year would be announced later.

Nailing down final planks of the new centre-left platform, Premier-designate Mariano Rumor emerged from bargaining sessions and said: "It is my intention to end the negotiations Saturday."

Delegations from Rumor's Christian-Democratic party, the Socialist party and the Republicans are expected to report to their party directorates today to win approval of the program and a list of cabinet members.

If all continues according to Rumor's plan, he should be able to present the program and cabinet for Italy's 29th post-war placed on an even keel by Christmas.

Then will come votes of confidence, first in the Senate and then in the Chamber of Deputies to determine whether six months of political uncertainty can be ended and the country government to President Giuseppe Saragat in three days.

HASTENED THE PACE

Unrest generated by students and workers hastened the pace of the negotiations to deal with the problems behind their protests.

Italy's political troubles began in April when the Socialists, hurt by election losses, bolted the old centre-left coalition that had governed Italy for five years under Premier Aldo Moro.

A minority caretaker government continued in power until Nov. 19 when it resigned in an attempt to force a new coalition. President Saragat gave Rumor a mandate Nov. 26 to try to form a new government.

Most of his negotiations took place in an air of unrest with student demonstrations, university occupations and labor strikes by Communist-led unions.

The Communists attempted to stir up popular will for an alternative to the centre-left, but fearing a right-wing reaction by the military, they appealed for calm after student and worker demonstrations swelled to dramatic proportions Thursday.

There were some student demonstrations Friday and in Naples police cleared a number of high schools that had been occupied by students.

N-TEST REPORT RELEASE SOUGHT

By THOMAS O'TOOLE

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Howard Hughes organization has asked the government to release what it claims is a suppressed Pentagon study concluding there is no reason to continue underground atomic tests.

Hughes said the study, titled the special report on underground nuclear testing, was done for former Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara at a cost of $250,000 and made the finding that there is "no further need for underground testing to perfect any known military needs or further nuclear research."

'NO SUCH STUDY'

"We know of no such study," a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday night. "Insofar as we can tell, it was never done, at least not here in the Pentagon."

Public disclosure of the Pentagon study was requested by the holding company, Hughes' Nevada Operations, almost a month ago, in a 40-page memorandum sent to Dr. Donald F. Hornig, president Johnson's chief science adviser.

Hughes' company told Hornig the study was done by Harvard's Dr. George Kistiakowsky and MIT's Dr. Jerome Wiesner and James Killian—all of them one-time presidential science advisers. Wiesner and Killian referred all questions about it to Hornig's office, but Kistiakowsky denied ever working on such a report.

Would You Consider Yourself a Miracle? You Should!

ONCE you were an embryo. An embryo is an organism in its earliest stages of development. A human organism is considered an embryo for less than 2 months.

At 3 days, you — the embryo — were composed of 32 cells — five generations from the original cell. First, the original cell, then by doubling through dividing, 2, 4, 8, 16, 32 cells.

Each daughter cell of each of these generations inherits the entire genetic master plan that was contained in the original cell. And each such daughter cell invariably bequeaths that master plan to its own daughter cell.

When you were the embryo of 32 cells and half of them carried the FABULOUSLY COMPLEX DETAILED PLAN for the kind of human being you would become, you were tinier than the period at the end of this sentence. So you can hardly deny that you are something of a miracle, built of countless miracles.

In case you are interested, the smallest cells biologists have seen and measured are 1/100,000 of an inch across. Your body cells are much larger, but our paragraph just above tells you they are infinitesimally small at that.

WE urge you to come to us to have prescriptions filled. In the astonishing world of medicine and biology, our specialty is PRESCRIPTIONS—knowing how, with infinite care, to prepare precisely the prescriptions your doctor writes. We believe anyone who is a miracle should be served well and respectfully. We will deserve your continuing patronage by superior service and attention. Try us please.

A Place to Live

THE CRITICAL NEED FOR new housing in Canada, which launched Transport Minister Hellyer's task force on its continent-wide search for grass-root opinions, has not been diminished by the ensuing months of talk. But along with the repeated proofs of need which have been provided from coast to coast there have emerged some pertinent suggestions as to how the need may, at least in part, be met.

One of the most promising of these lies in the investment of pension funds in housing mortgages. Everywhere that Mr. Hellyer and his colleagues have visited, including Victoria, the plea has been for more capital at reasonable interest rates to permit wage earners to buy into the high-priced market which has become an apparently permanent part of our housing problem.

Numerous types of housing have been proposed — apartments, row housing, town houses, terrace housing, garden courts—all the varieties of multiple dwellings designed to avoid some of the costs of individual structures. Yet the latter are also in demand in this country which can still find room for them. And all types, with or without government investment, require large supplies of private capital.

The magnitude of the problem may be seen in Mr. Hellyer's figures, quoted recently to a Toronto audience. "We will need over one million new housing units in Canada in the next five years," he said. "These new homes will cost Canadians approximately $20 billions during that period."

The minister went on to specify how this huge sum would be found. Banks, trust and loan companies, insurance companies and such traditional lenders would provide $8 or $9 billions in mortgage loans. Down payments from savings and other sources might account for another $7 billions. Current federal spending of $500 millions a year, if maintained, would furnish $2.5 billions during the five-year period. But this leaves a crucial $2 billions or more to be found—and Mr. Hellyer suggests an answer.

He proposes that pension funds throughout Canada, which are estimated at about $8 billions today, could supply much-needed funds for mortgage loans. Pension funds are primarily to ensure future income for those who participate in them, but they could also serve a second purpose in helping to meet the serious housing shortage. As Mr. Hellyer put it to his audience of pension fund officials: "You have the onus of insuring that your investments are socially useful, as well as profitable." Pension fund trustees should look not only to the security and profit of their invested money, but should also have a thought for the service it may do for the community at large.

Today, only about eight per cent of pension fund investments are in mortgages—less than two years ago—compared with more than 50 per cent of pension assets invested by insurance companies. To meet the disparity in available housing loans, trustees would have to invest only about one-fourth of their funds in mortgages — not charity, as Mr. Hellyer stressed, but sound investment.

The concept need not rest there. Labor unions, for instance, have large sums invested which could reasonably be put to the appropriate function of providing more housing for workers. Some churches and charitable funds have money which could similarly be put to work for the community and the nation in meeting the housing shortage. Here is a challenge which may require some new thinking on the part of trustees, but it is one which should be met, because Canada's prosperity will depend in large part on the success with which our housing problem is mastered.

University Backlash

DR. KENNETH HARE, PRESIDENT of the University of British Columbia, has provided evidence of one of the results of student unrest in universities of this province—a backlash of resentment from people who have made contributions to the financing of these institutions. Dr. Hare has announced his intention to answer the writers of the critical and hostile mail he has received as part of his personal campaign to inform the public of university needs.

This is a task of some dimensions, but highly worthwhile. Its value will be measured in the degree to which Dr. Hare can convince his correspondents and the public in general of the necessity to provide adequate higher educational facilities for the vast bulk of young British Columbia students who are earnestly striving to equip themselves for the tasks the future holds for them.

On innumerable occasions, responsible university authorities have made the point that the extreme, disruptive demonstrations which have occurred in their institutions were staged by minorities. The majority of the students themselves, in a clear recognition of the need to correct the image created by minorities, have repudiated many of the so-called activists' excesses.

Dr. Hare can make a sound and valuable case. No one informed on the issue can doubt the fact that our universities must have more accommodation, more faculty members, more facilities to meet the demands of the increasing influx of conscientious students now and in the years ahead.

The hostility of the university critics is understandable. It will be a melancholy development for this part of Canada, however, if that hostility, stirred by a few, reacts to the detriment of all our youth who are eager to use their opportunities for university study and prepare themselves for the work on which the future of British Columbia and Canada will depend.

A Search by Research

EFFORTS TO ENLIST TOP-flight French-speaking scientists to assist the National Research Council in its plan to co-ordinate more closely research between the council, universities and industry have been unsuccessful to date. French-speaking scientists approached for the job have declined with the explanation that they are deeply involved in building up science and engineering in Quebec universities and owe a prior allegiance to those institutions.

The ties of loyalty must be appreciated, of course. Yet in the larger picture, if the National Research Council is to achieve its currently emphasized goal of bringing French-speaking personnel into a leading role in its activities, some notable scientists will have to emerge from Quebec. The Council spends a great deal of Canada's money in the field of scientific research. The results of its work should be nation-wide, and since industry is to be more directly integrated into its program, it seems the course of wisdom to have French-speaking scientists at the policy-making level if their people are to benefit to the degree they should from the work that is undertaken.

There is hope for such a development in the council's determination to effect a change of atmosphere within its organization, with greater concern for those who speak French.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

As you go through the heavy growth of old cedars and maples on a hike around the High Ridge Trail at Freeman King Park, leading from the Francis Park Rain Forest Trail, you can see the mosses and lichens hanging in festoons from the trunks and limbs. It looks almost tropical.

As you cross the little stream, see how it swirls and tumbles over the roots of the old trees, forming miniature waterfalls and back eddies.

Here the soil is deep in the materials that these very old trees want.

When you go up the slope you notice the change taking place in the forest growth. Grand fir appear and scattered Douglas fir as well. There are Oregon grape and a different kind of moss that likes the semi-dry areas.

Further along the trail, between the rock outcrops, you can find the bearberry, some of which is still bearing the bright red berries. You can also find some rather withered stalks of the dogbain still standing. Here the mosses and lichens are of a different species.

Now you will come into the area where the Garry oak and the arbutus are growing. This is the habitat of the sun-loving plants and many basil leaves of the early flowers can be found.

When you reach the south east point look down into a small valley that borders an osier dogwood swamp. You will see one of the very best stands of a self perpetuated Douglas fir forest.

As you turn back along the trail to the start you will go by a small grove of cedars surrounding a swamp where some alders and willows are growing. Here the plants that inhabit acid soil grow and thrive.

The Coming U.S. Debate—Isolationism or Globalism?

Frye

THE United States is approaching what may well be a historic cross-roads in its foreign policy. It is, as Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said, "in the opening stages of a great debate" between isolationism and globalism. The two conflicting tendencies have long been apparent beneath the surface. They are now being forced into the open by the possibility of peace in Vietnam.

In the next few weeks and months, it may become feasible to end the war, or at least to conclude significant American participation in it, if the American people are willing to risk failure of their long-standing effort to contain Red China in Southeast Asia.

It would be self-delusion to pretend that the United States can, at this stage, have a settlement which assures a firmly anti-Communist government in South Vietnam. If there is to be peace, there will have to be conscious or unconscious compromise with the anti-Communist ideal.

This would mean that South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, at the very least, and perhaps Thailand as well, would become cockpits for intense struggle, short of war, in which a Communist victory could not be ruled out as a reasonable possibility.

The United States may decide that this is a risk worth running for the sake of minimizing current bloodshed. But if it does so decide, it will, as Rusk has implied, be starting down the road to isolationism.

It will be deciding that further American lives are not worth sacrificing for the purpose of containing Communism in Southeast Asia.

Such a decision, if it is made, ought to be the result of a conscious weighing of alternatives, a "great debate." The United States ought not to stumble or grope its way into isolationism as a result of war-weariness, impatience with Saigon, or some other ephemeral motive.

Larger Stakes

What is at stake is not just Southeast Asia. The real issue is whether it is in the vital national interest of the United States to go on competing actively with the Soviet Union and Red China for influence in the third world—and if so, when and how military force should be used to help win that struggle.

The Russians and the Chinese, for their part, evolved an answer long ago. They compete furiously, with the West and with each other, but almost never use their own military manpower.

Except in Korea (and Czechoslovakia, which is not the third world) they have used satellite cannon fodder exclusively. Even in Vietnam, important as that struggle is to them, they are not known to have sent any fighting men to the front, unless anti-aircraft missile technicians are so considered.

When it has come to a choice between direct Soviet or Chinese intervention and defeat, as in the Congo, they have chosen defeat.

The United States has been less consistent. On occasion, it has adopted the war-by-proxy approach. In 1961, Washington used Cuban refugees to seek Fidel Castro's overthrow. When it came to sending American pilots over the Bay of Pigs, John F. Kennedy chose to risk defeat instead.

More often, however, as in Korea, Vietnam, Lebanon and the Dominican Republic, American GIs and marines have shouldered a major part of the burden. Few cold-war contests have been fought primarily by proxy on the American side.

The United States was, in most cases, the only available source of manpower in meaningful quantities. It was Uncle Sam or no one; and it is likely to be so in the future.

The issue between isolationists and globalists, therefore, is: Should it be no one?

Should the job of preventing the spread of Communism be done by people immediately involved, without external combat forces? If the people threatened are not capable of resisting alone, should they be left to their fate?

And the derivative questions: Is preservation of a government friendly to the free world always synonymous with self-determination for the people? How can cases where it may (as in Korea) be clearly distinguished from cases where it may not (as in Lebanon and the Dominican Republic)?

Must the executive branch of the American government, with power to act swiftly, retain power to make decisions in each case, or must there be congressional restraints? Would Congress necessarily act with greater wisdom?

These are some of the issues that will figure in the "great debate." One thing is clear: The outcome is not as predetermined as many foreign-affairs specialists contend.

Not the End

Because much of American opinion feels the effort in Vietnam has been disproportionate, it does not automatically follow that no further involvement anywhere, for any reason, will be supported.

Communist negotiators at Paris unquestionably will strive for a peace that will maximize free-world disillusionment with the result in Vietnam and thus hasten an American retreat from the world. What they want is a green light for "wars of national liberation" elsewhere.

The American people are not likely to give it to them. If one had to bet on the outcome of a debate not yet fully under way, the best guess would be that isolationism and retreat will be rejected. America may even turn away from a specific retreat in Vietnam.

Hobbling Freedom for Legislative TV Coverage

The following comments on TV coverage of the Ontario Legislature have added interest in view of past proposals that the British Columbia Legislature's proceedings be televised.

EVERY politician and journalist knows that sooner or later the proceedings of parliaments will be televised. But not, every journalist must devoutly hope, on the terms suggested by Premier John Robarts of Ontario.

In Mr. Robarts' view, TV coverage of parliamentary business should be governed by a "mutual agreement" between the politicians and the media on what should be covered. In other words, the cameras should be allowed in only if they agree in advance on what is to be reported.

This seems quite clear from Mr. Robarts' recent proposal that the Ontario legislature be opened up to TV and radio coverage. Perhaps the text of his remarks in the Legislature should be quoted verbatim:

"Mr. Speaker, I should like to suggest it is time we in this House give serious consideration to the advisability of allowing access to our proceedings here in this Legislature to live television and radio coverage. In each session there are a number of debates in which the people of Ontario would be better informed if television and radio were allowed to cover the proceedings with live broadcasting. While the Legislature itself must retain control over the access to the Chamber by television and radio, I believe a mutual agreement between the House and representatives of the media could be arranged so that it could be mutually decided which debates would merit live coverage."

Robarts then went on to give examples of the debates where such coverage might be "appropriate": the speeches of the party leaders in the Throne Speech debate; the Budget and the speeches of the leaders in the Budget debate; "some resolutions of wide significance" and perhaps, depending on media interest, the speeches of Ministers on presenting their Departmental Estimates.

This surely is the stuff to make the journalistic blood run cold. If Mr. Robarts were to suggest that the Legislature and the press must agree on what is to be reported, he would be laughed out of the country. How then can he propose that TV and radio coverage be subject to negotiations and limitations which he would not want or dare to impose on the press?

The question is even more pertinent when it is remembered the press has no legal right to report parliamentary proceedings. Its representatives are there on sufferance and can be put out (and have been put out on rare occasion at Westminster) if the members of the House decide to hold a secret session. They are not put out because the voters, one hopes, would not allow it; but this does not mean that parliaments have simply surrendered their traditional control over how their proceedings and debates are to be recorded and reported.

In the Ontario Legislature, for example, the guards are under Speaker's orders not to allow anyone to take notes from any gallery other than the Press Gallery. No tape recorders are permitted anywhere. Public visitors may not take photographs and the press must have the Speaker's permission, which is sparsely granted. The same or similar rules are followed by parliaments elsewhere.

"Access" to the Legislature, therefore, is the same in principle for the press as for the electronic media. What enables politicians seriously to propose limitations on television coverage, of course, are the practical problems which the TV cameras create in the parliamentary chamber. They must be stationed on platforms on the floor of the chamber or in the front rows of the galleries, and banks of additional and very uncomfortable lights must be installed. All of which has led to a legislators' consensus that TV coverage would be fine but not all the time. Mr. Robarts merely reflects this consensus when he proposes there be an agreement with the media on what is to be covered.

The difficulty, of course, is that such an agreement cannot be justified on practical grounds without compromising the principle of press independence in the widest sense of that term, and the great danger is that the television networks will enter into negotiations, as they are being tempted to do, just to get a foot in the door.

One is bound to ask whose foot and what door. Mr. Robarts' words are evidence enough that what the politicians think should be covered and what the media wants to cover are the oil and water which do not mix. Mr. Robarts, for example, emphasized the "live" broadcasting of "speeches" and "addresses" when what the TV people would really like to do is put film cameras (which, not so incidentally, do not require extra lighting) in the House to record excerpts for use in later newscasts and public affairs programs.

It is hardly accidental that he omitted from his list of "appropriate" House business the daily question period, which is usually the most newsworthy event of the legislative day and precisely what TV would most like to cover, because it is compact, occasionally spontaneous, and most likely to show the Members and Ministers at their best — and worst.

The politicians and the press have always quarrelled about such things and always will, because the politician is constantly trying to please as many and offend as few people as possible, and he does this by filling his statements with ambiguities and qualifications which the press must strip away in order to make any sense of them at all. The politician does not like this because he thinks the media should be simply a communications link between himself and the public, relaying his statements without interruption, editing or interpretation.

Perhaps this would be a good thing, although no self-respecting journalist can think so. But it is clearly not a necessary thing, dictated by the "practical" difficulties of television coverage of parliamentary proceedings.

Sooner or later parliamentary forums will have to be re-designed and rebuilt for the electronic age, with film and television cameras esconced and enclosed in wall booths as at the United Nations. That way, the TV reporters can record what they like, all of it or none of it as news value dictates, just as the press does now, without the politicians making the decision for them.

A Few Grace Notes

Regina Leader-Post

Just when we are about ready to write off the human race, something always comes along to remind us that things can't be too hopeless as long as kids are still kids.

In Today's Education, the magazine of the National Education Association, a music teacher offers these gems some elemenary school children came up with when asked to define musical terms:

"An encore is what audiences get if they are unruly."

"Refrain means don't do it! A refrain in music is the part you better not play."

"Music sung by two people at the same time is called a duel."

"Handel was half German, half Italian and half English. He was rather large."

It's Change For Time

By ROBERT G. KAISER and WARD JUST

Getting With It

As it must to all institutions, change came to Time magazine last week.

Buffeted by the shifting winds of public opinion, faced with a loss of advertising pages, disturbed by the impact of television, worried that the flagship of the Luce fleet had grown ponderous, major changes were effected.

In New York last week, the weekly journalism mob was fascinated by what was happening. Not only were there staff changes, but intimations of structural overhauls as well. There was to be at least one new section ("Behavior") in what is called the back-of-the-book, and indications that the style and tone of the magazine would become (in the words of one Time stylist) "more with-it."

The pressure was in part from Newsweek, whose editorial image has shifted radically in the past five years to a point where bare bosoms, signed opinion and avant-garde criticism of avant-garde arts and crafts is a staple, considered very much engage in the Manhattan atmosphere. Time, by contrast, has been more restrained, more in the classic mold of news magazine journalism.

But the statistics did not support the restraint. Time's circulation jumped from 3.8 million in January 1968, to 4 million now; Newsweek's went from 2.15 million to 2.4 million in the same period, a larger gain both by numbers and by percentages.

Newsweek Gains

Equally, for the first 49 issues of this year (generally a bad year for magazines), Newsweek gained 59 advertising pages over the first 49 issues of 1967; Time, for 48 issues, lost some 300 pages. By any conceivable standard, Time remains extraordinarily healthy. But it is not as healthy as it might be, and thus the concern at the top levels of its corporate structure.

The changes can be traced to two men: Hedley Donovan, who became editor-in-chief in 1964 and the new managing editor, Henry Anatole Grunwald, an erudite Vienna-born intellectual who succeeded Otto Fuerbringr (known in Time patois as "the Iron Duke"), the editor responsible for the controversial decision to put Lyndon Johnson on the cover of Time the week John F. Kennedy was assassinated. Fuerbringer went on to head a newly-created Time Inc. division which is meant to oversee the acquisition of newspapers.

It is said that both Donovan and Grunwald are dissatisfied with Time—with the quality of its writing and its editorial tone, which was once described, early in the founding of the empire, as a magazine "written as if by one man, for one man."

Fair on Election

It was apparently for these reasons that Time's election coverage this year was unusually fair, without the Republican bias that infuriated Democrats in the 1940s and 1950s.

Much of this was thrashed out at a meeting this fall, when Grunwald took 50 writers and editors to Bermuda.

"All the complaints of eight years under The Iron Duke came out," recalls one participant. "One writer said 'Let's get it straight. What we're talking about is fear.' "

Gurnwald, for his part, made a speech declaring that Time should be less know-it-all, more modest. He also instructed the staff to read more fiction and poetry.

What now has happened is a wholesale change in personnel, which has caused both amusement and deep apprehension. Because of the curious terms of news magazine employment (some good writers can write Time or Newsweek copy and others cannot, and there is no telling who or why; the infrequent bylines, the heavy editing, and — not least — the excruciating pressure), men who can do the trick and do it well are very highly paid.

Jungle World

Salaries of $25,000 a year are not uncommon, and senior editors will far exceed that. To work in the New York office of a news magazine is to work in a world which is part circus, part jungle, part bedlam, and part Large Industrial Corporation.

In the Congo-like atmosphere of New York, other editors are watching the process with a kind of horrified fascination. "They are all going to work wearing parachutes," said a senior editor of Newsweek.

He said it with a wry smile, because in the tight world of New York journalism, an atmosphere of change can become contagious.

Reactions in Time are as varied as the staff itself, which is exceedingly varied, but the preliminary impression is that they have been largely favorable. Time has tended to become encrusted, and what was once a magazine has become an institution, and many of the best men have felt the strain. "They peck you to death like ducks," said one such.

Grand Design

The denouement will apparently come next month, when all the senior figures will gather at Airlie House in Virginia for what appears to be a week-long editorial psychodrama. At that time, according to one knowledgeable source, Grunwald will reveal his grand design, supply the charts into the unknown.

Insiders say that what he will stress is the essay (not unnaturally, since Grunwald was the initiator of the essay section in Time) form of journalism. They say further that Time journalism will become more personal, with more bylines and less of the Olympian judgment that has characterized much of the magazine's reportage, particularly in its nation and world sections.

The first of the observable changes comes next week with the introduction of "Behavior." This is expected to be a weekly anthropological look at American life, with generous dollops of sociology and psychology.

There is a good deal of talk about "conceptual journalism" and trend-spotting, and getting way behind the news into attitudes and atmosphere.

To a man, Time editors and writers say that these are only the first of many changes at Time and perhaps Life as well.

"We are the General Motors of journalism," says Hugh Sidney, the new Washington bureau chief.

And it is not inconceivable, adds an associate, that even an outfit as big as Time can occasionally falter under its own great weight. That is why there are changes, experiments, new manoeuvres. And where it all will end, knows Grunwald.

In Oak Bay Most of Them Just Like It That Way

By ART STOTT

Stott

We seen our duty and we done it again today. But as we walked away from the polling station I wondered how much change recent years had brought to Oak Bay's choice of elected representatives each December. Is dissent, even for the sake of dissent alone, stirring in the municipality, or does the Establishment continue its hold? If either, which is better?

As a resident for most of the last half century, I'm interested beyond my direct concern with rising taxes. But since the days of Sam Drake, who lived across the road and up the hill from our home, I've doubted that Oak Bay always realized it had jurisdiction over property south of Gonzales Hill. Fred Norris used to make the waterfront a regular after-church Sunday walk and passed by when he was reeve. The police cruise daily over the "executive drive" — and once ticketed me for parking with my car facing the wrong way. But, generally speaking, the folks in my locality regard themselves as the more-or-less forgotten people of the municipality.

* * *

I've heaved my rocks at the Establishment — and long before rock-heaving at the Establishment reached its current popularity as an international pastime. At one time, when a friend of mine wanted to run for school board, I was astonished to learn, as his sponsor, that it was best to clear his nomination through various channels before he announced his candidature. Acceptability in the right quarters was considered an essential, guaranteeing election. A little unkindly, we referred to the unidentified "they" who constituted the "right quarters" as the Senior Nabobs of Oak Bay. It made a sneaky anagram.

I never did get around to leading a revolution, through. The conviction dawned on me, and has since strengthened, that Oak Bay's form of senatorial administration suited the people. They were attracted to Oak Bay in the first place because it was the kind of municipality in which they wanted to live.

Apart entirely from geographical considerations, it enjoyed an ethos pleasant to the inhabitants. From earlier years they have been concerned chiefly with their homes in Oak Bay, have leaned heavily on Victoria for the commercial and industrial base it afforded residents, along with city services to meet their needs. The atmosphere used to be Edwardian, the spoken English pronounced with a broad "a" and disregard for the terminal "r".

Recently we've read about objections filed with council to the prospect of noise from a hovercraft terminus and the probable blocking of views by highrises. We have our tweed curtain, which is more authentic than some think.

* * *

In addition, we have a very large percentage of new settlers — new in the last 10 years or so — and they don't all agree with the traditional in Oak Bay. They have come because they like it in Oak Bay, and again the liking is not based entirely on the view. Many of them want to "move ahead," seized with the desirability of change if only for the sake of change. They have misgivings about the benevolent paternalism of municipal administration in an area with enough good men to provide Victoria with most of its recent mayors.

But they offer infreqent explanations of how their proposals for change would improve living in a municipality which attracted them by its particular character.

They feel a deep frustration when they encounter the comment of older residents who merely tell them: "We like it this way."

The inclination to "like it this way" is illustrated in a couple of small road situations in our district. Just beyond the widened and black-topped route the Capital Improvement District created on the stretch of Crescent Road east of the city boundary, is a well-pitted country lane. Suggestions have been made that it be modernized, curbed and properly surfaced. A lady whose home fronts on that modest roadway expressed an attitude that makes a kind of sense in a discussion with me. "Why," she asked, "should we sacrifice our lovely country lane just to accommodate motorists who want to whizz by, disturb us and increase the traffic hazard?"

A block or two away small roads come to a blind end at a rock barrier. A couple of sticks of dynamite and 40 feet of grading could form a loop there. "What for?" ask some of the residents. "We're content and we don't want a speedway."

* * *

So Oak Bay has continued on its conventional way, yielding to change occasionally, modernizing when it seems inevitable, hearing, on occasions, the voice of dissent ruffling the even tenor of it ways.

The Oak Bay people, admitting their hunk of Canada may not be perfect, ask "Where do you find perfection?" with an implication of the saying Bruce Bairnsfather gave his famous World War I figure, Old Bill: "If you know a better 'ole. . . ."

But some of us wonder. Will the sight of Mount Baker and the Olympics continue to outweigh the revenue from highrises? Does the modern world permit a person to spend a day cultivating a rose and think the day well spent?

Turner Makes a Breakthrough: Judges Appointed for Ability

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Newman

OTTAWA — Being minister of justice under Pierre Trudeau is a little like being external affairs secretary under Lester Pearson. Your boss tends to second-guess your decisions, accumulating most of the credit for your achievements.

But John Turner, who holds this difficult portfolio, is determined to make his own name in the job, to become the architect, if not the inventor, of "The Just Society."

Operating out of the West Block office that once housed Sir John A. Macdonald, Turner still finds his own presence overwhelming. His kinetic energy has a way of charging his pronouncements with more voltage than they contain.

He continues to clip his thoughts off with football coach jargon ("It's not that kind of ball game") and the pop art image he projected during the Liberal leadership convention is only slowly receding.

* * *

But during his brief six months in justice Turner has already achieved one impressive departure from tradition and he's determined to transform Ottawa's most antiquated department into an active, contemporary organization.

His most conspicuous breakthrough has been to abandon party patronage in the naming of judges, a process begun by his predecessor, Pierre Trudeau. As the accompanying table shows, only half the judges appointed since Turner took over were Liberals.

Naming judges on the basis of their ability rather than party affiliations may sound like a fairly rudimentary reform, but Trudeau and Turner are the first justice ministers to put it into effect.

* * *

Whenever there's a judicial opening, Turner sends a short list of suggested names to the Canadian Bar Association.

It's returned with the nominees divided into three categories: well qualified, qualified, or not qualified. The appointment is made from the first two classifications after a great deal of further consultation, but the candidate's politics is not one of the deciding factors.

When I recently chatted with Turner about these and other reforms, I asked him four questions on the important subject of wire-tapping. This was the transcript of our conversation:

"Should wire-tapping and electronic eavesdropping be legal?"

"No."

"If it isn't legal, are there going to be any exceptions such as police and national security investigations?"

"My position at the moment is that I'm not so sure about the police, though national security is perhaps another matter."

* * *

"If it's illegal, should evidence obtained by wire-tapping be admissible in court?"

"In my view 'no,' though I don't have much support on this from my own department."

"If an exception is made for the police, who should authorize it?"

"First of all, I believe that the authorization should be limited to specific persons in contemplation of specific charges, for a specific period of time. There should be no blanket authorizations.

"Who should authorize it? Some provincial attorney-generals want judges to do it, but I prefer that somebody responsible to the people do it. I think it's a political process.

"The attorney-general or somebody responsible to the attorney-general of the province or the attorney-general of Canada, depending on the matters, should take the responsibility and face the people on it. The reason I don't like judges involved is because any application for wire-tapping is one-sided.

"The other side can't be heard. This is an evolving problem and I could be educated out of some of these views but these are my instincts at the moment."

Other reforms now being considered by Turner include a completely new expropriations act (due to be tabled in mid-January); a bill to provide compensation for the victims of crime; a new Canada Evidence Act that would re-examine the concept of self-incrimination; the setting up of a national law reform commission reviewing all statutes independently of government officials; bail reform; a federal superior court act that would establish an institution for appeals from such boards as the Canadian Transport Commission and would eventually replace the Exchequer Court of Canada; the computerization and consolidation of federal statutes, and annual reviews of the Criminal Code.

"We also need a basic reform of our narcotics legislation," Turner told me. "There has to be a special case made for first offenders and young offenders but in such a way that you still put the heat on the traffickers and that you still maintain the public education necessary to illustrate that marijuana is a dangerous drug, especially the varieties now coming into use—hashish particularly, which comes from the Middle East.

* * *

"Our recent figures show that although marijuana is not addictive, it is dependency-creating. It creates an escapism, a distortion in time and place that has to be satisfied by stronger and stronger drugs. We're finding in recent RCMP raids that a great percentage of heroin users started on marijuana. I want to achieve a climate in which the kids don't get the idea that marijuana is just a toy."

John Turner has made a good start in a difficult job. If he achieves his hopes he could become one of Pierre Trudeau's most valuable ministers and his heir apparent.

Youth Have Fewer Illusions for Support

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

The crucial thing to understand about current student unrest is that it reflects a historic shift in value systems—from basically authoritarian to basically humanistic attitudes.

This is shown clearly by the fact that rebellious students place more emphasis on human rights than property rights. Their reality is people, not institutions.

They have discovered the antidote for alienation, the same alienation that affects us all to varying degrees. The antidote, simply, is involvement. Try it sometime. Very refreshing.

A good question to ask, in thinking about the situation on campuses, is this: Why did student rebellions not happen on this scale until now? Why didn't they happen as massively and explosively in the 30s?

●

The answer is to be found in psychology and sociology and possible even in authropology. It is not to be found in politics.

This is why the current crop of political leaders are among the people least likely to understand what is going on.

They can't look at anything except in narrow political and legalistic terms.

Group behavior changes in response to given stimuli. The young are reacting to a whole set of stimuli their parents never had to contend with at the same age. Television. Computerization. Unprecedented, rapid technological change. Widespread understanding of psychology. The possibility of nuclear war. Genocide. Environmental collapse. Increased violence everywhere.

That the behavior of the young should be different is hardly surprising. They grew up in a different environment, a different world. They were conditioned in different ways.

If there is a simple distinction to be made between youthful students and their parents, administrators and teachers, it is this: the young feel more threatened.

●

Since birth, they have been living on the sword's edge. No sooner were they through with Mother Goose and they were learning about Auschwitz and Buchenwald, Hiroshima, the Oedipus Complex, commercial manipulation and exploitation, and so on. Human society has been vivisected before their eyes—thanks in large measure to mass media.

Not surprisingly, they lack faith in the implicit goodness of human nature and society.

Their view of society, and their roles in it, is more scientific and less emotional.

They understand, for instance, that a flag is a symbol derived from animal instincts of territoriallity.

Unlike many of their parents, they tend to feel self-conscious saluting it.

So while on the one hand they feel more vulnerable, on the other they have fewer illusions to sustain them in a crisis.

The result is that they are thrown upon their own resources. They have, in effect, a much greater sense of responsibility.

●

They are less able to "cop out" by leaving the decisions to others or by falling back on blind faith in the intrinsic goodness of their own social institutions.

You can distinguish between the best of these students and their parents and teachers by considering their reactions to Prof. John Porter's book, The Vertical Mosaic.

Porter made it clear we do not live in a classless society. He also showed that universities are middle-class preserves—that higher education in our democracy is not democratic.

Teachers and parents may be content to shake their heads at such revelations. It does not cross their minds to do something about it.

Many students, on the other hand, cannot help but want to push the Vertical Mosaic over on its side.

School Boycott By Freedomites Backs Petition

AGASSIZ (CP)—About 40 students from a Doukhobor settlement have been removed from schools by parents demanding an answer to a petition seeking permission for their leader to return to Canada.

A Doukhobor spokesman said Friday the action was taken because they have had no answer from Ottawa on the petition, signed by 625 sons of Freedom Doukhobors and submitted six months ago.

The Doukhobors involved in the protest are Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, also known as Freedomites, who split with the more numerous and peaceful Orthodox Doukhobors decades ago.

Their spiritual leader, Stefan Sorokin, 66, has lived in Uruguay since 1952. He left Canada for the last time in 1961, saying he would return later that year. He has not been back since.

When he left, Freedomite Doukhobors protested that he was being forced to leave Canada. At the time, the immigration department said that his visitor's permit had just been renewed for four months.

There has been no evidence that Sorokin has tried to return to Canada since.

The boycott of schools in this community 40 miles east of Vancouver, and at nearby Harrison hot Springs, started last week. The children remained out of school this week, the spokesman said.

FIRST SIGN

It's the first outward sign of unrest for several years among the Doukhobors, a Russian-speaking religious sect notorious in Canada for bombings and nude protests against governments in past.

More than 200 of them live in a shacktown along the road to Agassiz Mountain Prison, where scores of convicted Freedomite terrorists were sent in 1962. A handful remain in the prison.

The settlement is considered to contain the hard core of older Freedomites, who trekked here in 1963 after burning their village in the Kootenay area of eastern B.C. to protest the jailings.

The Agassiz school board had no comment other than saying that missing three days of school last week is not considered an offecne because those days were religious holidays for the Freedomites.

In addition, Friday was a general school holiday proclaimed by Governor-General Michener in a visit to B.C. which ended Wednesday. However, other days this week were normal school days.

ORDERED RETURN

Ironically, Sorokin himself ordered his followers in 1960 to return their children to school after parents removed them to protest their charge that Sorokin was being forced to leave Canada.

Sorokin, although interrupted briefly by 14 Freedomite women stripping in their famed form of protest, was obeyed. He had threatened to leave and never return if the children stayed out of school.

Earlier this year, the Agassiz settlement sent the petition for his return to Ottawa and to Magistrate William Evans of Nelson, B.C., a popular figure among B.C.'s Doukhobors.

In 1959, he ordered 77 Doukhobor children released from a government dormitory school, set up in 1953, after Doukhobors agreed to send their children to public schools.

They had refused earlier, contending Canadian education led to war and killing.

MANY ASSIMILATED

In 1961, there were about 5,000 Orthodox Doukhobors in B. C. and about 2,000 militant Sons of Freedom Doukhobors. Many of the latter have become assimilated into non-Doukhobor society since then.

Violence by the Sons of Freedom in B.C. lasted more than 40 years and encompassed more than 700 acts of violence, including bombings of trains, homes and bridges. At least 11 persons were killed.

COLOR BAR BROKEN

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—Stewardesses on Internal Australian Airlines flights finally have won the right to wear any color bra under see-through blouses while they are on duty, a labor arbitrator said today. They must keep their jackets on, though.

Transplant Rejected; Third Canadian Dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Therrien, 45, Friday became the third Montreal heart transplant patient to die within a week.

Mr. Therrien, who received his replacement heart last Oct. 20, died following an "acute reject crisis," the Montreal Heart Institute reported Friday afternoon.

Last Saturday, Gaetan Paris, 49, Canada's longest-surviving transplant patient and one of nine to receive a replacement heart at the institute, died at home of asphyxiation.

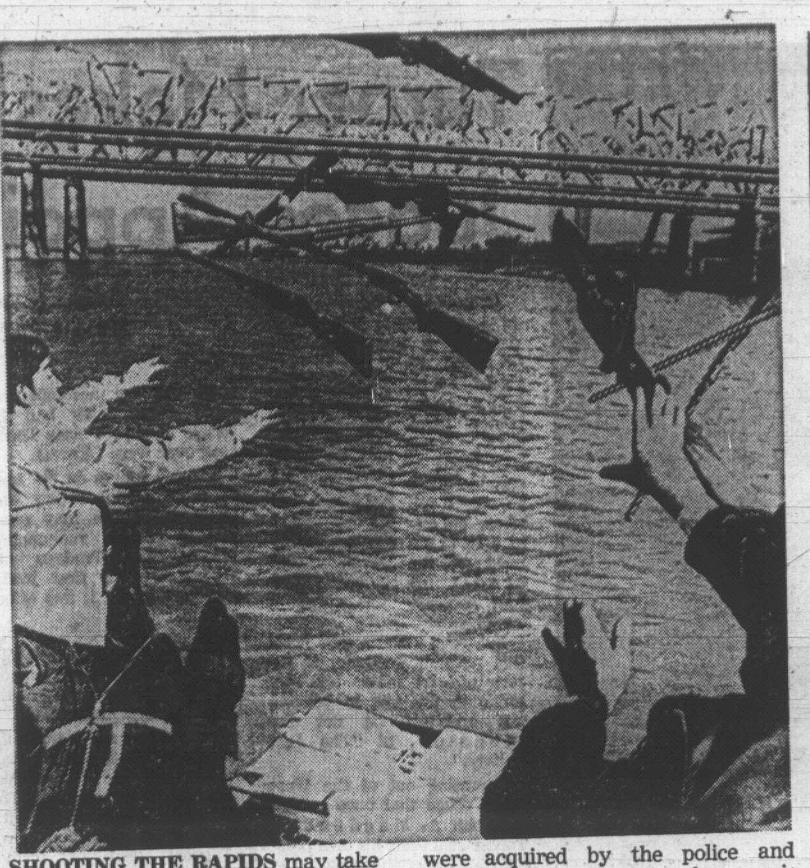
Less than 48 hours later, the institute reported the death of Edouard Desrivieres, 51. The patient, who had been operated on Sept. 26, died from "infection and kidney complications."

Mr. Therrien, of Trois-Rivieres, Que., died four days after the first rejection symptoms appeared, although he "had received massive doses of anti-rejection medication," the institute spokesman said.

Four of nine persons who were operated on at the institute under a surgical team led by Dr. Pierre Grondin survive.

Seven of Canada's 14 heart transplant patients have died to date. There have been 10 operations in Montreal and four in Toronto.

There are 42 survivors from 98 transplant operations around the world.



SHOOTING THE RAPIDS may take on a new meaning if the practice of Memphis, Tenn., police continues. More than 1,000 firearms of different kinds were thrown into the Mississippi River today. The guns were acquired by the police and accumulated over a year from various sources. Some were just found, while others had no legal owners. They included about 192 rifles and 900 pistols. Death of Fish Industry Faces Newfoundland: MP

By PAUL DUNN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition went fishing in the Commons Friday with most lines baited to hook federal aid for the failing Newfoundland fishing industry.

Frank Moores (PC—Bonavista-Trinity-Conception) put it this way:

"Make no mistake about it, the death of this industry is sure if the government, wilfully and callously, continues to withhold the life-giving measures necessary."

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, a Vancouver economist new to the fisheries portfolio, was piloting his department's $75,000,000 1968-69 revised estimates through the House.

He has said repeatedly there is no money in his current budget for any new programs such as those apparently being sought by the Newfoundlanders. Despite their clamor Friday, he declined to offer any specific aid.

He did propose more-orderly marketing procedures for East Coast salted fish, a major Newfoundland product. Longer-term policies were needed and this pointed to rationalization of the industry.

He cautioned against expectation that a solution can be worked out that doesn't "hurt" and spoke of the possibility that some plants will have to close down.

But he said he recognized the seriousness of the Newfoundland situation. Canada would have to regain its place in the world market for salted fish. The fresh-fish market could surely be left to private enterprise.

Part of their problem, and that of the entire Canadian industry, is sagging fish prices. This was compounded by discontinuance Oct. 31 of deficiency payments paid by the department to boost the return on certain fish.

Mr. Davis has said these payments will not be re-introduced. He has promised announcement early in the new year of new fisheries programs to take effect April 1, 1969—but not earlier.

Six of the seven Newfoundland MPs spoke Friday. The province returned six Conservative members and one Liberal in the June 25 general election.

Walter Carter (PC—St. John's West) accused Prime Minister Trudeau of "total indifference" to the plight of East Coast fishermen.

Close to 25 per cent of Newfoundland's population would be affected by threatened processing-plant shutdowns.

INACTION SPELLS DOOM

Mr. Moores said failure to take action now "will mean the end of an industry and the end of a way of life for tens of thousands of Canadians."

"If this end is allowed to come, the odium of it will cling to this government for all time."

He blamed the situation on the industry's failure to adapt to modern technological and marketing techniques. It once had the lead over foreign competition because of the resources on its doorstep but it stood still while the competition tried twice as hard.

"The industry needs reorganization and refinancing."

Mr. Moores said Newfoundland faced a loss of some $500,000 a month, including depreciation of facilities.

His solutions: Open-auction marketing to gain better prices for fish; merger of small processing firms to obtain the advantages of greater expertise and economies; and an end to temporary provincial programs.

INSIDE CITY HALL

New Height in Lows Of City Vote Decried

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Only a few hours to go before the polls close and Victoria gets a new city council.

Well half new, anyway, because the Municipal Act, wisely, insists on enough experienced men being left on council each year to provide continuity of administration.

The chances are that you haven't voted yet. That isn't a snide remark, just a statement of fact.

Hume

Last year with Mayor Hugh Stephen back as chief magistrate by acclamation only 6,619 out of a possible 20,638 voters went to the polls to select four aldermen. A pretty shocking record for the capital city of British Columbia, a city which prides itself on sound thinking, a belief in democracy and a bastion of the Mother of Parliament.

NOT THE WORST

It wasn't the worst aldermanic vote on record.

In 1965 an August byelection saw a mere 2,785 people making crosses on ballots while 17,460 voters cheerfully left the democratic decision to the minority.

The vote in December, 1967, was 32.49 per cent of the possible vote. The August, 1965, vote a shocking 13.76 per cent, lowest in the city's history.

The lowest vote ever recorded for a full aldermanic election was four years ago when, in December, 1964, with four seats up for the grabs and the ballot uncluttered by referenda, 18.61 per cent or 3,657 out of 20,245 voters went to the polls.

All this would indicate that today, unless there is a sudden change of conscience, most of the readers of this column have not yet voted nor will they vote before 8 p.m.

Most get-out-and-vote boosters stress the theme: "It does matter how you vote, but vote." That philosophy is not subscribed to here. It doest matter how you vote, for the future of this city it matters a heck of a lot.

CRYSTAL POOL

Whatever the results of today's vote citizens will be getting more news on the new swimming pool to replace the Crystal before the end of the year. As a matter of fact they should be getting the word next week some time when the recreation and community services committee announces its selection of a design consultant.

Readers will recall that the committee decided some weeks ago to go first class when it came to designing a replacement for the venerable old glass-domed swimming hole. They started with a list of top men in the design field and are now down to a very short, short list.

From the remaining two or three names they will select one, hopefully in time to present their choice to city council on Dec. 19.

It is worth remembering that council is determined to replace the Crystal with something better.

That, surely, is an admirable policy and one to be supported rather than attacked on the emotional grounds that the Crystal has been around for 40-odd years and should therefore be around for ever.

TANK NEEDS JACKING

While on the Crystal we are still waiting for one of the self-styled experts on the salvation drive to tell us how you jack the pool tank back into position.

Talking to a leading contractor the other night, a "save the Crystal" man, he admitted that if the pool had sunk at one end he would have to revise his thinking.

The surprising thing about his statement was that he had taken a stand without first acquainting himself with the facts. Then again, maybe it isn't surprising but rather the trend these days. Shoot from the lip and to hell with the consequences.

Whatever the result of today's elections, sweet voices will echo through city hall next week.

CHOIR SERIES

On Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. the first of a series of school choirs will commence the annual week-long Christmas carol concert sessions. City hall staffers usually join in before getting down to work and the general public is also welcome to sing glad tidings.

If the vote goes sour today maybe we'll all need a bit of a lift from the young and innocent by mid-week.

A forecast on the vote? Come on, now, that's backing me into a corner.

You insist? Okay. Witt, Olafson, Parrott and Frampton, not necessarily in that order, and admittedly more with hope than sound and fearless analysis.

Bank Clerk's Possessions Make Auctioneer's Paradise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ken O'Conner paid $7,000 for a 1968 Thunderbird Friday night that was owned by a jailed Penticton bank clerk—$500 more than he figured it was worth.

"I bought the T-Bird about $500 high, but it will make a good conversation piece," he said following an auction of articles from the home of Ann Kathleen Spiller.

Miss Spiller, 26, was recently jailed for three years for theft of $492,000 from the Penticton bank where she worked. The Royal Bank of Canada is trying to recover some of the cash through auctioning off the goods from her home.

No total figures were available Friday night on the amount of cash recovered, but officials of Maynard's Auctioneers Ltd. said many items were fetching amounts in excess of their cash value new.

Cameras selling in downtown Vancouver brand new at $179 fetched $220 and $185. A small wood and wicker basket brought $38 and five well-used walnut chairs went to a $160 bidder.

Mr. O'Connor, a Vancouver logging company president, also bid for Miss Spiller's 1968 Cadillac, but lost out to night-club owner Frank Baker of West Vancouver.

Mr. Baker got the Cadillac for $9,500.

"Where else would I get a car with a trumpet horn and a history like that?" said Mr. Baker. "I reckon I paid $1,500 over the market price, but it was worth it."

The Cadillac also had a built-in tape unit. First song on the tape—"Born Free."

Frances (Bambi) Shubin, 41, who shared Miss Spiller's home, has been committed for trial on a charge of unlawful possession of more than $50, knowing it to have been obtained through an indictable offence.

All Very Exciting but Music Is Not a Race

Diamond In the Groove

Bach; Brandenburg Concerti Complete. Klemperer; Philharmonic Angel B3627 Richter; Munchener-Bach-Orch. DGG Archive, 104971-72.

If Klemperer and Richter were racing their orchestras through Bach's six Brandenburg Concerti, Richter's would win by several lengths and, without missing a step, would pass the winning post unfatigued and together.

Fortunately music is not a race. Though such breathtaking tempi as Richter employs in many of the movements, reveals the brilliant virtuosity of the players and would win a stamp of approval in this computer-hastened age, its lack of leisurely deliberation is unseemly in music written in the first decade of the 18th century.

Always popular, and even more satisfying now that they are played by a small select orchestra which brings out their facinating tonal contrasts these concerti are immediately appealing by virtue of their lovely melodies and constantly varied rhythms.

To those caught up in the vortex of today's rat-race, they offer a temporary refuge from a speed-worshipping era by harking back to a time when men had leisure to stroll and converse, take snuff or tea and attend concerts or soirees without feeling guilty about wasted time.

By hastening the measured progress of even the gayer allegri, Richter robs them of this basic charm, though he does show how modern recording techniques and instruments help the performing musician.

Albert Schweitzer, a devoted Bach scholar affirms "The better the playing the slower the tempi can be," for only with moderate tempi can the listener enjoy the intricacies of the compositions.

In the 4th movement of the 1st concerto, in which a menuet alternates with concertino sections, Klemperer allows time for his brass players to pick up enriching echoes which are missed by Richter's faster tempo.

The string tone in the 3rd likewise benefits from a vibrating steadiness in the Angel recording which the DGG recording is too hurried to catch.

The brave shrillness of the 2nd concerto which features a sopranino trumpet and piccolo-flute or recorder not only benefits from the faster tempi of the DGG recording but shows the superior skill of the solo trumpeter too.

Richter uses recorders in the 4th concerto as well as in the second and this ancient instrument adds a golden timbre which the disembodied flute does not possess.

Though the flutes dominate the 4th, it seems likely that Bach considered it a violin concerto for he later transcribed the violin part for clavier and called it a concerto for clavier.

The puzzle of a second movement in the 4th concerto is left unresolved by Klemperer but Richter offers a possible solution. Only two final chords separate the two outer movements written for strings. On the Angel recording the two chords are played as in the ms., but the DGG one inserts a short, thoughtful harpsichord interlude.

George Malcolm, the harpsichordist on the Angel recording is a great keyboard virtuoso and adds immeasurably to this version of the 5th which scored for violin, flute and harpsichord became the first harpsichord concerto.

When Bach composed these six concerti he was, for a time unencumbered by a church position because the Prince of Cothen, as a Calvinist, used no religious music.

Though Bach sent the compositions to the Margrave of Brandenburg, perhaps as a proof of his ability to serve as court musician to Brandenburg, he featured viol da gambas in the 6th concerto as a tribute to his present employer who played that instrument.

Because the orchestra at Brandenburg was too small to cope with these demanding works, the mss were put away and sold with a job lot after the death of the Margrave to whom they were addressed.

In this 6th concerto Richter's players bow so furiously that they sound as though they are scrubbing their instruments.

These concerti are generally classified as "Grossi" which implies that in each, a small group of instrumentalists, is balanced against a ripiena of supporting musicians.

Though the 1st, 3rd and 6th are more conventional in this respect of not featuring a solo instrumentalist, all the works stand on a threshold between chamber and orchestral music.

Despite the fact that the Angel recording divides the 2nd concerto after the 1st movement, and that individual performers on the DGG interpretation show outstanding technical brilliance, to anyone with a sense of period or former knowledge of these lovely works, the Angel version will prove most satisfying, and its humbler unilingual pamphlet offers a useful listeners' guide to the compositions.

Max Bates' Reality Sandwiches

By TED LINDBERG

Lindberg

Last Sunday I went out to the home of Maxwell Bates, whose show of watercolors and drawings opens today at the Print Gallery in Oak Bay, for a personal preview and a chat with the artist.

This is the most rewarding kind of art experience one can have, but barring a private audience, one may still see the show until the 21st. I strongly commend it.

Max Bates is the only living artist in this town who has achieved anything approaching Olympian stature in the annals of Canadian art, though I suspect it has not changed him one iota. Partially paralyzed from a stroke he received several years back, he still possesses more life and awareness than a lot of young artists that come to mind.

His influence and humanity has endeared him to generations of fledgling artists. A tireless proponent of serious local art, he is seldom absent from a gallery opening, never distant from the action.

Victoria hasn't been his only home, of course: he lived and worked as an architect-artist for years in Calgary; has travelled widely and meaningfully, stopping for varying periods in London and New York, principal European centres and even spent five terrible years as a prisoner of the Germans during the war.

●

Despite this latter experience, he seems to have an affinity for a brand of painting that was originally fostered by the Germans, known as expressionism, though the style, so personal and so steeped in primitive, fundamental naturalism, probably has links back to the very beginning of northern European art.

It consists chiefly of investing everyday images—people, places and things—with feelings, emotions that primarily express the personal, psychic vision of the artist about them.

We all experience such feelings when we attribute to a house a personality: we say it is a "happy house," or a "sad house." We imagine we can guess the true nature of individuals, strangers we see on the street or in a public gathering.

Max Bates has been painting these things all his life, and he is more sensitive to this sort of intuitive analysis, exteriorizing inner feelings, demonstrating his considerable astringent wit, his morality, aesthetic sensibility and awareness of tragi-comic fluxion.

The paintings come off in exactly this manner, basically unplanned expressions that take on a personality as they are brushed or drawn out—with the same innocence, confidence and unity that is normally brainwashed out of us in childhood.

●

They are not especially pretty pictures in the conventional sense, because they do deal with reality, and perhaps for this reason Victorians have shied away from them, uneasy with being confronted with a look at something that hits a bit too close. They want realism: but not reality.

After seeing a Bates show, one could have the distinctly unsettling feeling of going out on the street and seeing "Bates people" walking around, or "Bates houses."

It is those spooky "reality sandwiches" the artist has been serving up. While dealing with common, everyday scenes, there is always the attendant, toe-curling alienation, awkwardness and neuroticism that is also a part of that picture.

This is positively un-Canadian: One can imagine the frosty rejection Bates received all those years in Calgary; not emulating the Group of Seven, not seeking out beauty in every mawkish silver lining, but simply taking in the foibles, strivings, clutter and costumes of we earthbound mortals.

He dearly loves women, perhaps as much as Matisse did, but dwells not so much on their age-old charms as on their vulnerability, their self-delusion and false confidence (like the classic and pathetic example of the beautiful woman who reveals a hunk of spinach lodged in her front teeth every time she smiles).

●

Bates is not so gross: it is the psychic spinach he sees.

There are line drawings from his travels, less expressive, perhaps, more autobiographical and architechtonic—but it is the street scenes, the cafes, circuses and interiors, peopled with noticeably muted and isolated figures that effect the real mood.

It is not normally their actions or costumes or occupations that strike us as different, but aberrations created with the slightly blotted lines, smudges or distortions of anatomy, wielded at will by the artist.

Bates is capable of fine design and drafting (particularly in his oil painting, which must be discussed another day) and will just as easily contrast it with apparent distortions, resulting in an aptness, a rightness which expresses some seemingly inexplicable nuance of human condition.

●

Highlights of the show, for me at least (and one must understand that exposure to his paintings is as personal an experience as the paintings themselves) would include Children, an extremely finished examination of some twilight zone which fails to distinguish between doll-like children and child-like dolls; The Artist and His Friends, a satirical jab at the layman's idea of the bohemian painter and his floozies.

Cabana describes a somewhat sinister stand-off between two women in striped beach-robes, bristling like cats—exceedingly well designed.

Dance records the juxtaposition of psychic chessmen at a ball, uncommunicating and estranged; while several Fortune Tellers try to solve life's riddles while battling against personal ruin.

Actually, there are too many good paintings from which I can pick only a few—but see the show while it is there: it will provide something to think about a good many months after it is down.

Hopefully, someone might treat us to a show of oil paintings by Max Bates, before the watercolors have worn off.

CONTRIBUTING to a Christmas concert in aid of the YM-YWCA World Service in Metropolitan United Church Sunday, Dec. 15, at 2:30 p.m., will be Eleanor Duff (right), contralto, and Rodney Webster, conductor of the Amity Singers. With them will be Eric Boothroyd, organist; Nastase Perlea, leading violinist with Victoria Symphony Orchestra, and Colin Bonneau, pianist. Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo and Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Cathedral will give Christmas readings.

MARCHAND
. . . need action

Regional Disparity 'Must End'

REGINA (CP) — Jean Marchand, federal minister of forestry and rural development, said Friday night that if Canada is to be truly united, the large disparities between conditions of life in different parts of the country will have to be removed.

"We can't allow the economic structure of the regions to remain so different that there is severe unemployment in Eastern or Western Canada even when the expansion of demand in Central Canada is getting to inflationary proportions."

Mr. Marchand told provincial Liberals the federal government is prepared to take special action where needed to bring economic opportunities up to standard.

"Broad national policies are not enough. And it is not sufficient just to add to them a variety of area plans and agencies. There has to be a comprehensive structuring of government action to regional needs."

He said the average annual income in Newfoundland is between $800 and $900, and in Ontario it is $3,000. "Confederation itself was created to correct this regional disparity." The co-operation of all levels of society was needed.

Medicare and Strike Bills Given Assent

By WAYNE ANDERSON

FREDERICTON (CP) — Lt.-Gov. Wallace S. Bird gave royal assent to seven bills Friday night and prorogued the New Brunswick legislature until Jan. 14.

Major legislation dealt with collective bargaining rights for the province's 30,000 employees and preparations for implementation of the national medical care insurance plan.

The Public Service Labor Relations Act gives public employees and civil servants the right to strike while providing for maintenance of essential public services.

The Medical Services Payment Act gives the lieutenant-governor the power to make regulations for administration and operation of medicare. The date the act becomes effective will be declared by proclamation.

Only five bills were introduced at the beginning of the six-day fall sitting, bringing to 92 the total for the 1968 session. Two of the bills, the medical care act and one declaring Boxing Day a provincial holiday, had been held over from the spring.

Premier Louis Robichaud tabled a white paper outlining the government's policy on the status of French and English in the province.

WILL EXTEND RIGHTS

The statement says the government will introduce legislation giving practical effect to a resolution passed last spring, declaring both French and English official languages. Use of the official language of the individual's choice would also be extended to the courts.

Opposition House Leader Richard Hatfield brought in a motion of no confidence in the 31-man Liberal government, accusing it of "incredible mismanagement."

The liberals, with one man absent and the Speaker not voting, had a two-vote margin over the 27 Conservatives in defeating the motion.

Convincing Portrait Of Frustrated Hero

GOVERNOR SIMCOE AND HIS LADY, by Marcus Van Steen, Hodder and Stoughton, $6.95.

Reviewed by Patricia E. Roy

It is tempting to quarrel with Marcus Van Steen's judgment that "Canada at no time has ever had a more honest or disinterested or conscientious servant" than John Graves Simcoe, first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada.

Nevertheless, Mr. Van Steen has presented a convincing portrait of a frustrated hero who, "when not thwarted by lethargic or unimaginative superiors . . . was let down by his own uncertain health."

Simcoe, who had commanded the Queen's Rangers in the American Revolutionary War, dreamed of making Upper Canada into a new British Empire in North America.

HUMANITARIAN

His motives were partly humanitarian—he had profound sympathy for the Loyalists both white and Negro—but he also had to defend the new colony against American attack and he desired to demonstrate the superiority of English institutions.

Some of these ambitions were at least partly achieved after Simcoe's departure from Upper Canada.

As Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, Simcoe was constantly frustrated by his superiors. The War Office refused many of his requests for additional troops and ignored his recommendations for promotions.

Lord Dorchester, the Governor-General of Canada, checked Simcoe's plans for new defence posts by denying him soldiers and by limiting his use of naval vessels. Indeed, Simcoe felt persecuted by Dorchester.

Mr. Van Steen declares that the friction between these men was not a personal feud. But, he does not plumb deeply into the quarrel to provide an explicit explanation of the origins of the conflict. Nor does Van Steen make any attempt to seek the reasons for Simcoe's problems with the War Office.

NEW EMPIRE

In retrospect, it is perhaps fortunate that some of Simcoe's dreams were frustrated.

Simcoe wanted to create his new British Empire in an aristocratic image and likeness of eighteenth century Britain.

He attempted to establish the Church of England, but the Church could not send sufficient clerics to the colony.

He endeavoured to manufacture a local aristocracy by appointing Lieutenants in the counties and by using municipal governments as a means of extending power and prestige to local residents.

British officials, however, rejected these plans on the grounds that it was impossible and imprudent to try and copy every institution of the Mother Country.

Mr. Van Steen suggests that this reprimand may have aggravated Simcoe's ill health and hastened his departure from Canada.

HIS ASPIRATIONS

The heroine is Mrs. Simcoe (Mrs. Simcoe she remained for her husband was frustrated in his aspirations to the peerage). Mr. Van Steen has portrayed a far more attractive personality than her own diary reveals. An orphan heiress of a distinguished military family, she was an accomplished young lady of sixteen when she married Simcoe. She was a strong-willed woman, but nevertheless a dutiful wife.

Van Steen argues that although money may have been one of Simcoe's motives for marriage, the marriage was truly one of love. Surely only love—or an incurable thirst for adventure—would have persuaded a woman of genteel upbringing to take two infants to the wilds of Upper Canada and to remain there for four years.

NOT SCHOLARLY

This is not a scholarly biography but it is an interesting one. Through Simcoe's eyes the problems of a new colony are quite different from those seen by the colonists. The frustrations of Simcoe's career give an insight into the personality and character of an eighteenth century English soldier and gentleman and reveal the difficulties of an ambitious man at the periphery of power. Simcoe eventually got his reward.

He was appointed Governor-General of India, one of the choicest plums in the British colonial service, but his final frustration was illness and death before he could take up the post.

EXCITING ONLY AS NOSTALGIA

THE DOCUMENTARIES, by Dorothy Livesay; Ryerson Press; $4.95.

Accurately titled, this volume contains six poems, the first and last of which are described in a Foreword as "subjective, autobiographical." Each of the remainder has a prose preface summarizing circumstances of composition and offering background comment on the matter of the poem

DAY AND NIGHT

"The Outrider" is a story of Ontario in the thirties, poised between rural life and encroaching industry; "Day and Night," also of the thirties, concerns class and race conflict in the depression; "West Coast (1943)" relates how his observation of wartime shipyard workers helps a doubting intellectual to decide his attitude to the Second World War. ("He who knew heaven seized a rivet, hammer").

"Call My People Home" ponders the plight of West Coast Japanese-Canadians during the war. In short, these are poems of social consciousness, directed towards problems of an earlier day.

This bald summary attempts to indicate, for a possible reader, the contents of The Documentaries. But why has the author published the material in book form at this time?

Even including the recently written "Roots" (1966) the pervasive tone is late 1930s-early 1940s. As spoken pieces for radio (or tape or record) these narratives may be effective. Formal variations within them depend solely on exploiting an aural medium and are not otherwise integral.

HAVE MERITS

For some readers, committed by experience to the social and-or literary struggles of a past era, these pieces will have merits of which I cannot know. As poetry, one must add reluctantly, they are undistinguished. — C.D.

All the Greats Of Hockey World

IT'S EASY, ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS WIN, By Trent Frayne; Longmans Canada Limited; $5.25.

Reviewed by Stewart Lang

Despite using fourteen separate features in constructing this book, the author manages to blend them all into a graphic portrait of the despair and ecstasy behind the making of a hockey superstar.

Through the employment of short, vivid phrases, the relationship between the men in the headlines and those around them in providing a winning team combination is highlighted.

This is a book of professional winners—answering the questions of where, how and why they came to be.

The scope is vast and covers the past 40-odd years of National Hockey League history.

All the greats are there—from Charlie Rayner, Al Rollins and Turk Broda, out of the limelight for years—to such immortals as Howie Morenz, Rocket Richard and Connie Smythe.

Skillful use of contrasts, such as juxtaposing Morenz's death with the fire of young Bobby Orr in his debuting NHL season, brings out human interest appealing to both fan and non-fan alike.

Two of the features cover the tension that is the every day companion of professional goalies—the strain which shapes their future in a fast and rough sport.

With the whole teams' paycheck riding on the performance of one man in the face of a hard rubber projectile coming his way at speeds reaching more than 100 miles-per-hour — a Hemingway-like moment of truth is born.

BOIL INSIDE

In the words of Murray (Muzz) Patrick, "They look impassive but they boil inside."

The feature on Rocket Richard explores objectively the depths of passion for winning.

If any criticism can be made of this book it centres on the inclusion of the first chapter—a well-studied but nevertheless isolated article on the part age plays in hockey.

The general theme of the book may be taken out of the late coach Dick Irvin's words in the introduction, "What the hell's the use of being second."

UNROMANTIC VISITOR DISPELS THEIR DREAMS

A PROSPECT OF LOVE by Mavis Budd. Dent, $5.60.

Reviewed by Lionel Adey

This delightful little book gives the impression of being a novel, out of shape and a bit improbable: in fact, it is the second in a series of self-contained autobiographical episodes set in a Sussex village in the nineteen-thirties.

The improbabilities arise from the dotage of a middle-aged New York man who hears of the author's twin sisters. Aloysius (Sam) Carton's devotion knows no reticence, either in the information and photographs requested or in the personal gifts constantly mailed.

Finally, a most unromantic gallant arrives to dispel the dreams of four adolescent girls while losing his own illusions about life in a real old English cottage. And it rains, and rains, until he goes away for ever.

The appeal of this book is generally that of a good novel—sharp-edged characterization, salty dialogue and carefully-observed detail and a feeling of places and things.

The older members of the kinship group are unforgettable. There is Grandfather Budd, whose mild swear words and cheerful vulgarities have scandalized Grandma for half a century, whose fiddling would awaken the dead:

"And 'twouldn't hurt 'em neither, some of 'em, to come up for a bit of an airing. . . . Bin down there a long time, some of 'em have." There is

She Had Feeling For Things Rough, Knobbly

Grandmother Wise, who won't buy a bra unless accompanied and who finishes one of the daily sessions of The Book by promising the girls a good go at Original Sin on the morrow.

And there is the American visitor to the scrubbed and painted cottage, treated by the adults with icy obsequiousness but by Mavis with the compassion of one dreamy adolescent for another.

Perhaps the author's most attractive quality is her feeling for the particulars of the cottage, for drainpipes and spiders and things rough and knobbly. The accumulation of detail convinces one of her love for the old family cottage, while preparing one for her dissatisfaction with its inconvenience as she looks at it through the visitor's eyes.

At the same time, Carton himself is seen to have "lived always on the surface of things," and to be as flavorless beside the old villagers as is his standardized apartment beside the cottage.

However, the village way of life is not glamorized, and the younger people have less character than the grandparents, as the outside world influences them.

This study of a traditional way of life at the moment of its passing should have a wide appeal, though it is not, I think, for children or early adolescents. The author's pensive drawings of individuals have much more charm than her group illustrations.

GOYA'S PORTRAIT of the aristocratic Spanish beauty Dona Isabel Cobos de Porcel is supposed to have been his gift of gratitude for the hospitality he received from the lady and her husband during his stay at their home. This picture is from The World of Goya by Richard Schickel, published by Time-Life Books. ($7.95).

He Lived in Day Of Great Editors

DAFOE OF THE FREE PRESS. By Murray Donnelly. Macmillan. $6.95.

Reviewed by Peter Murray

Few newspapermen have been privileged to play such a prominent role in their country's affairs as John Wesley Dafoe; none are ever likely to do so again. Just as the Canada that Dafoe knew has changed almost beyond recognition since his death in 1943, so has the style of newspapering.

The day of the great editors, militant political partisans who were confidantes

Nationalist But Harsh Toward Quebec

of prime ministers, has probably vanished forever. Dafoe was the last of his kind, and in addition a great Canadian in the fullest sense.

More than the politicians he pilloried or praised in the editorial columns of the Winnipeg Free Press for 40 years, he embodied the qualities that most closely approximate the mythical Canadian Identity.

The author of this biography makes no attempt however to conceal Dafoe's weaknesses or prejudices, which often loomed large in his writings.

An intense Canadian nationalist, Dafoe was rigidly Anglo-Saxon in viewpoint and his harsh attitude toward Quebec would not serve him well today.

One wonders how he would assess Pierre Trudeau. With skepticism probably, but more than likely he would be able to adjust to the new Canada which he did not foresee.

Although he was a man with passionately-held ideas, he did not lapse into dogmatism. Dafoe was constantly adding to his vast knowledge, reassessing his thinking, and moderating his outlook when necessary.

In many ways he was a paradox. Born into poverty, Dafoe remained a man of simple tastes who yet had a deep feeling for literature and history. Rumpled and blunt-spoken, he still could move easily in any milieu.

Above all he was deeply dedicated to his craft and wrote a fine credo for it:

"A journalist is hardly an authority upon anything — unless perhaps upon the appraisal of the drift of public opinion. His writings on economics are likely to be greeted by your professor of economics with a polite snort. Eminent lawyers disagree with his constitutional pronouncements.

"Preachers do not subscribe to his theological views . . . financial magnates consider his ventures into the mazes of finance as the triumph of ignorance over prudence.

"And yet, in spite of all these limitations, the journalist must go forward laying his hands upon these and other mysteries with a sort of reckless courage; and unless he is to fail he must out of his half-knowledge and his intuitions, his sense of values and his knowledge of life, tell a story which may not be accurate but is still true and which does not altogether lack suggestive power."

The Book Page

Edited by Joan Coldwell

Watch Out for 'Them' They're Young, Active

THEY, by Marya Mannes, Doubleday, 5.95,

Reviewed by Peter Christmas

This slim, large-print little book asserts boldly on its dust-cover that it is a novel, yet in fact it amounts to little more than an extended summary of the kind of liberal-minded, humouous articles for Harper's or Esquire by which Miss Mannes chiefly earns her living.

The title refers to Youth in its most hackneyed guise, namely, the pretty well universal one of watered-down hippydom, and the idea of the book is that the world," in the not too distant future," has been taken over by Them (as the author constantly capitalizes it). The aged are removed from circulation and are not even allowed to communicate with the new authorities.

SMALL GROUP

A small group of these exiles, comprising a Viennese conductor, a writer of traditional Gershwin-style pop songs, a painter and a writer, foregather to keep alive the old pieties in the midst of the enveloping deluge. Finally, they prefer to commit suicide together rather than be put to sleep one by one by the administrators of public health as their encroaching infirmities become more noticeable.

This is not a very fresh idea; the fantasy of Youth literally trimphant has been tried out before and done better. Nor does this particular treatment redeem it. The characters just talk — or rather, the author talks, and the characters nod warmly in agreement.

She covers most of the contemporary scene: the Negro problem, fashionable painting and sculpture, avant-garde theatre (living in New York, as the author does, is an insular experience; one forgets that other places and other topics exist.

And the comment, set out in the form of a play for the most part, to avoid the necessity for the characters even to light cigarettes or cross the room, is contemporary to a fault:

"A public fed up with civil disruption, blatant defiance of law, and violent racial trouble, rose in great numbers to the cry of 'Law and Order!' The man who promised to end 'crime in the streets' won over the men who hoped to attack its cause . . . The Negroes wanted all the privileges the rich whites had, without the capacity to achieve them. The whites wanted all the privileges the Negroes had without the condition that bestowed them."

Such apercus no doubt speak for the sensible majority of Miss Mannes' middle-aged generation, jaded by the way all public issues in North America are subject to instant and extreme polarization, so that the only alternatives seem Haight-Ashbury or Madison Avenue. Yet their cause could be served by something better than the staggering banality of every page of this book:

WHO SHOUTED

"Everybody tossed in something. I can't remember who shouted what. "Form!" "Tenderness!" "Order!" "Tranquillity!" "Grace!" "Responsibility!" "Guilt!" "Craftsmanship!" "Innocence!" . . . Again, we agreed that without history, without associations, without continuity, the three dreadful fates of deprivation — fragmentation, and alienation — denied man his essential humanity, his basic human needs."

Magazine Can't Spurn Reader

ROCKVILLE, Md. (WP) — Last fall Rockville lawyer Robert L. Jacques became one of four million Americans cut from the Saturday Evening Post's subscription list in the magazine's effort to concentrate on a "sophisticated" readership.

He reacted by filing suit in Montgomery County (Md.) people's court demanding that Curtis Publishing Company pay him $66, the newsstand cost of 132 Post magazine issues still due him under his subscription.

The publishing company has offered to send him Holiday instead, but Thursday it capitulated. Jacques received a $3.45 check to cover his court cost and a letter promising quick restoration to the Post subscription list.

They Count To Eight 102 Times

Each year Ice Capades presents a completely new production to its audiences in Victoria.

New in concept, in costumes, inscenic effects and in stars.

Ice Capades recipe for success is based on imagination, quality and family appeal. And 1968 is certainly no exception.

One of the most fascinating innovations used by the ice extravaganza is the "Magic Screen," which has been expanded and perfected after its debut last season.

The Magic Screen process combines live action with motion picture action. Skaters literally break out of the movie screen to action on the ice and return, seemingly, to action on the screen.

●

How do the skaters perform such a fascinating feat?

"It's a matter of counting," says Ric Prada, who plays Percy Goodheart in the Wild, Wild, Wild, Wild West production.

"It's just pieces of eight. We have sets of numbers. Everyone has a certain time to go through the screen and must go through on the split second. Actually, we count to eight 102 times."

In the Wild West number, cowboys and Indians, good guys and bad guys all chase after a bag of gold. That's on the ice. Suddenly, the bad guys get the money and run for their horses and turn up in the scene being projected on the screen. The god guys go after them, and they, too, wind up on the screen.

This goes on for about four minutes.

Perfect timing is the requirement for a smooth performance of the Magic Screen. This is accomplished by using the musical score as a guide. At a certain point the performers begin an in-mind countdown. Should a performer miss a a count by a fraction of a second, he appears out of sequence. Should he miss his place to come in or go out, he throws the entire action off.

●

The film was made last season, and the skaters matched their movements to those of the characters in film. This, followed by months of practice, results in a smooth, perfectly-timed sequence.

"We had our times at first," admits Prada. "People got their feet and skates caught in the screen. They knocked their hats off and just had a time. But that was last summer."

Magic Screen, a Czech invention which has delighted spectators at Expo 67 and at the Hemisfair in San Antonio, relies on two rather simple physical elements: a motion picture projector and a motion picture screen manufactured of special strips.

There are 64 two-inch strips of elasticized material that allow the screen to fold and unfold much like a vertical venetian blind as the skaters glide through it.

●

The 1968 version of Ice Capades features the Magic Screen throughout the show. The combined efforts of Ice Capades; ingenious technicians and musicians with the talents of the skaters can be seen during the show's 4-day tour engagement Wednesday, Dec. 11 through Saturday, Dec. 14 at Memorial Arena.

Performances are scheduled at 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and at 8:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. There will be a matinee at 2 p.m. on Saturday.

COWBOYS, INDIANS and pert and pretty cowgirls like Janet Runn are all part of the "Wild, Wild West" segment of the "America Swings" production number seen in Ice Capades, opening Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Messiah Dec. 16 At Cathedral

In cities all over the world at Christmas time, one of the truest expressions of the season are the performances of Handel's great oratorio, The Messiah.

On Dec. 16 in Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria Choral Society, conducted by Rodney Webster, will perform the well-loved music in its entirety.

Soloists will be Norma Selwood, soprano; Barbara Ebell, contralto; Arthur Querengesser, tenor, and Stanley Martin, bass.

Mr. Querengesser, the only visiting artist, is one of the leading soloists in Edmonton. He specializes in oratorio and lieder and has done much CBC work in addition to making many concert appearances.

The 100-voice choir will be accompanied by a proper Handellian orchestra drawn from Victoria Symphony Orchestra ranks, with Jack Kessler as concert master.

Continuo will be provided by James Hunter, violincello, Richard Proudman, organ and Robin Wood, harpsichord.

Christmas Prelude In Oak Bay Monday

Several Oak Bay schools music organizations will be involved in Prelude to Christmas, the fourth annual concert presented by the Oak Bay Secondary Schools' Orchestra.

The event takes place Monday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Oak Bay Junior Secondary School.

Orchestra director Bernard Rain, has selected a pleasing program including the Pastoral Symphony from Handel's Messiah, Johann Christian Back's Courante for Cello and Strings, and Bartok's Moods for Strings.

There are also several numbers by the junior string orchestra, including a Christmas Medley, Processional March (Camels and Kings), by Edmund Siennicki, Schubert's Death and the Maiden and Larghetto and Presto from J. W. Hertel's Symphony in G.

FOUR TEACHERS

Among assisting groups will be the "Faculty Quartet," consisting of four teachers — Mrs. Regine Kenevan and Mr. Rain, violins; Trevor Jones, viola, and Mrs. Rosamond Hughes, cello.

They will play music by Glazounov and Mozart.

Also assisting will be Willows School Choir.

The junior orchestra — 35 Grade 7 and 8 students from 11 schools — will feature for the first time, a young harpist, Annabelle Burrows.

Carols and other Christmas songs will make up the choral portion of the program, directed by Miss Margaret Patterson.

The concert illustrates the philosphy behind Canada Music Week just ending, which is "bringing to public attention the great asset of an intelligent knowledge of music and the joys of performong with others . . ."

Some of the proceeds will be used to send the two string orchestras on a tour of the interior of the province next spring.

She is staying at his home in fashionable St. John's Wood with her five-year-old daughter Heather.

Who'll Be First Man on Moon?

This Week

By AL FORREST

This week we got the schedule for the exploration story of the century ... man will walk on the moon by next summer.

It will far overshadow such earlier feats as Lindbergh's flight over the Atlantic in 1928 and the conquest of Mt. Everest in 1953.

Man walking on the moon!

Unless beaten by the Russians, there'll be Yanks on the moon in June.

Yanks? Plural?

Apparently so. Because three spacemen will make the historic voyage. When they get near the moon, one will stay in lunar orbit in the Apollo spacecraft while two descend in a lunar module landing craft.

It sounds delightful but there are conundrums.

For instance ... how will they decide which one of the three has to stay up in moon orbit? Who's going to break the news to him?

Will he just shrug and say: "Well, if I coulda' been picked to land on the moon it coulda' meant $50 million in magazine rights . . , endorsements . . . my life story, . . . Yep, $50 million ... but (shrug) who needs it?"

Or the fame? Going into the history books along with Christopher Columbus and Sir Winston Churchill.

Will it be decided by a flip of a coin?

There's a further problem.

When the two lucky spacemen go down, down, down to the surface of the moon and the door opens ... who steps out first?

Will there be an unseemly tussle at the door? Will there be fisticuffs and bad language?

Or will one bow politely and say: "After you, Alphonse, eternal fame is yours."

Perhaps they may take hands and float simultaneously to the rocky surface.

It's a crucial point.

Coming second has never rated much space in the history books, nor has it left one with a tremendous sense of achievement.

It's rather like being trapped under the mistletoe and then discovering it's dear old Aunt Lucy.

The simultaneous landing seems like the only fair solution. This was the way Sir Edmund Hillary and Tenzing Norkay solved their similar problem as they struggled up the last 100 yards to the summit of Everest.

The end result of a team effort of more than 30 climbers, Sir Edmund and Tenzing decided it would only be fair if they touched the top together.

If they hadn't, the one who touched second would have been as obscure as the team leader and the other 32 climbers whose names have been quickly forgotten, if they were ever known at all.

It will be interesting to see how the U.S. is going to settle this major problem in space exploration. Does history await the toss of a coin?

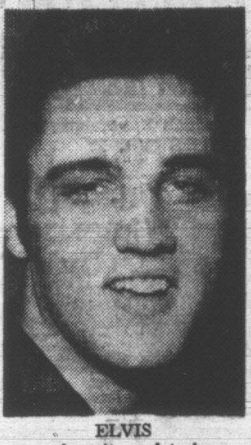
●

Films from the journey of Apollo 7 will be shown on Channel 9 Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The American three-man orbit of the moon Dec. 21 will get full TV coverage, include a Christmas Day TV program beamed from a point about 100 miles from the moon. There will be no attempt to land on the moon in America's December voyage.

Three stars made rare TV appearances this week. Two of them—Elvis Presley and Perry Como—don't have to do this sort of thing any more ... and it showed in their performances.

Elvis was particularly disappointing because he attempted to evoke his past glories (or whatever) but he couldn't concentrate on the task. In mid-song he would smile as if to say "I don't really have to do this, you know. I've got more cash than I can spend now."



ELVIS
... how it used to be

His clowning with such bits of nostalgia as Love Me Tender and Heartbreak Hotel must have seemed almost sacrilegeous to his dedicated fans.

As one viewer commented: "Nobody's screaming ... Not like they used to scream. It's just not the same old Elvis."

The third performer, Ann-Margret, was the star of her own special ... and still trying to make her first million.

Perhaps she was trying too hard.

She burst upon the Hollywood scene six years ago as some sort of purity symbol—her face was so interesting that men forgot to leer—but in this week's TV special she was exploited as just another pair of shapely legs.

It wasn't the vintage Ann-Margret that the purists remembered. Ah, those were the days, my friend.

●

For those who can bring in Channel 7, the big TV news of the weekend is A Charlie Brown Christmas, Sunday night at 7:30 p.m. It's the same one we saw last year, but good.

●

And finally, the word is out that all three U.S. networks are trying to line up in-depth interviews with Pierre Elliott Trudeau ... but he's saying "no."

It would be interesting to see him debating Richard Nixon face-to-face for an American audience. Let the Yanks eat their hearts out, we've got our own Kennedy now.

LORD HARLECH GETS IT IN THE FACE

LONDON (AP) — Lord Harlech, former British ambassador in Washington, stood in for a pop guitarist this week and got slapped in the face by a meringue pie.

Nearly 80 guests at a promotion banquet for a new Rolling Stones record joined in a pie fight begun by the group's singer, Mick Jagger.

Lord Harlech, sitting in for absent guitarist Keith Richard at the head table, was hit in the face.

"He said he enjoyed himself," said Jagger afterward. "I hope he did."

Jagger said the pies were artificial show-business foam pies—"they stick to your face but don't harm clothes."

COLIN BONNEAU

ELEANOR DUFF

Top Contralto Featured With Romanian Violinist

Outstanding Victoria contralto Eleanor Duff has not appeared on the concert platform for several months but on Dec. 15 she will be heard again as a featured artist in a program arranged by the YM-YWCA at Metropolitan Church.

With her will be appearing for the first time as soloist, Romanian violinist Nastase Perlea, one of this season's new members of Victoria Symphony's first violin section.

Mr. Perlea's background is a richly musical one that includes such professional posts as concertmaster for 10 years with the Theatre of Operette in Bucharest.

A well-known young Victoria musician, Colin Bonneau, is also to be featured. Mr. Bonneau's versatility is noted. He plays, besides the piano for which he has been awarded several scholarships, the viola, violin, organ and euphonium.

He is at present studying for a bachelor of music degree at the University of Victoria.

Also prominent on the program, which will begin at 2:30 p.m., will be the Amity Singers, the highly successful ensemble conducted by Rodney Webster.

'Anne' Opens Tonight

Opening tonight at Langham Court Theatre, is the warm, human true-life story that has become one of the most striking plays of the decade, The Diary of Anne Frank.

Directing the Victoria Theatre Guild production are husband and wife, Michael and Barbara Meiklejohn.

This is their first dual directing job in Victoria, although they were a well-known directing team in Ottawa before coming to this city three years ago.

EX-PRESIDENT

Both acted and directed with the Ottawa Little Theatre, Mr. Meiklejohn having at one period been president of the organization.

He was also a governor of the Dominion Drama Festival and a member of Ontario's Drama Council.

Among many activities in the field of theatre, Mrs. Meiklehohn was at one time president of the Ottawa Theatre for Children.

Since coming to Victoria both have appeared in University of Victoria productions and in the the Christ Church Cathedral presentations of T. S. Eliot's Murder in the Cathedral.

Barbara Meiklejohn was last seen as the garrulous Julia in the Guild production of The Cocktail Party.

THROUGH DEC. 14

Curtain time for Anne Frank is 8:15 p.m.

The play, which features Susan Belford as Anne, with John Drean, Ruth Gowans, Evanne Murray, Gem Hewlett, Ken Bostock, Blake Carter, Marilynn Gynn, Dan Christian, and Sharleen Cooper, will play nightly through to Dec. 14.

Fergus and Janis Heywood look on as Robin Wood and wife combine four hands on the keyboard.

Family Affair At Symphony

Unique in the annals of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra is the featuring of two married couples in a single performance.

All four musicians, who are currently Victoria artists, have strong affiliations with the orchestra; pianists Winifred Scott and Robin Wood through past guest artist appearances and Janis and Fergus Heywood as members of the orchestra.

RHYTHMIC, EXCITING

At Sunday's and Monday's symphony concerts, the two couples will perform Bartok's Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion, a wonderfully rhythmic and exciting composition.

The young Heywoods first met in the ranks of the orchestra although they attended the same high school. But five years separates them in age.

Janis Heywood, a member of the cello section, and her husband, who is now playing his ninth season with the orchestra, were married less than two years ago.

Mrs. Heywood became interested in percussion after she met Fergus and learned from him to play the xylophone which is one of the instruments scored for in the Bartok composition.

Among others are drums, cymbals and triangle.

Besides the Bartok work, Mr. and Mrs. Wood will play the Mozart E-flat Concerto for two pianos and Laszlo Gati will conduct the orchestra in performances of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro Overture and Kodaly's "Peacock" Variations.

Concerts, both generously sponsored by Mrs. Gertrude Stocker, are in the Royal Theatre at 3 p.m. Sunday and 8:30 p.m. Monday.

New Score, Lyrics For Old Pantomime

The old English pantomime, Dick Whittington, which will be presented Dec. 19, 20 and 21 by the Peninsula Players in Sidney's Sanscha Hall, was rewritten last year by John Crocker and a new musical score and lyrics were added by Eric Gilder.

The group believes it may be the first in Canada to produce this up-dated version. Director is Nell Horth, a frequent winner of festival "best director" awards.

Dick Whittington is being produced under the largest budget of the 65 productions undertaken in the Peninsula Players' 18 years of operation.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Dec. 26-28; Monday, Dec. 30; Wednesday through Saturday, Jan. 1-4, 8:30 p.m. (Matinees Saturday, 2 p.m.) MacPherson Playhouse: Peter Pan: the musical version presented by Bastion Theatre.

Appealing 'Amahl' Prepared For Fourth Cathedral Showing

For the fourth time in nine years, the delightful music-drama of the Epiphany, Amahl and the Night Visitors, will be presented this Christmas within Christ Church Cathedral.

Gian-Carlo Menotti, the Italian-American composer of haunting contemporary operas, was commissioned by the National Broadcasting Company to write an opera suitable for an hour-long Christmas telecast.

Amahl was the result and its appeal was so great that for several years it was repeated annually on NBC television.

MORE IMPACT

Presented live, and in the spiritually moving atmosphere of the Cathedral, by authority of the dean and the chapter, it has proved to have even more of an impact on its audiences than as originally seen.

The Cathedral production was the subject of full-color, three-page Weekend Magazine coverage six years ago and on each presentation it has attracted audiences totalling between three and four thousand.

A note of interest this year is that the 1965 edition's Amahl—Bill Dyson—will be singing one of the three kings.

Jeffrey Finch sings Amahl, Peggy Walton Packard, the mother; Stan Martin and Bill Broadhead the other two kings, and Tony Patriarche, the page.

Amahl and the Night Visitors will be seen on Dec. 27, 28, 30 and Jan. 2, 3 and 4.

The music-drama will be preceded this year by the Amity Singers, conducted by Rodney Webster, in a brief program of Christmas music.

Richard Proudman is the music director. Menotti's own arrangement of the score for two pianos will be played by Mr. Proudman and Jean Taylor. Peter Bishop will play the special organ part and members of the Cathedral choir agumented by other singers will provide the chorus.

There is no admission charge but in order to avoid overflow on any one night, admission cards in different colors for each performance may be picked up now at Western Music on Fort Street.

PRICE INDEX UP AGAIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose to 157.5 for November from 156.8 in October, mainly because of higher new car prices and postal rates, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

It said the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, also reflected increases in milk, bread, cereal, sugar and butter prices, and higher rents in many cities.

The index was 151.0 in November last year. The year's increase of 6.5 index points was a 4.3-per-cent gain for the 12 months.

Ban Imposed On Two Firms

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Securities Commission Friday imposed a ban on two companies and two officials from trading through Ontario registered brokers.

The ban was imposed on Canadwide Investments Ltd. of Vancouver and Anlagebank Zurich, Switzerland, and Kurt Gratwohl, the bank's president, and Hans U. Willi of Lagos, Nigeria.

The order runs until Dec. 19, when a public hearing will be held by the commission.

The commission said those concerned did not file statements of trading in Ontario with the commission.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Bull Surge to Continue As Investors Think '200'

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets paused for breath this week, although the shares of many of the biggest industrial companies continued to edge up.

The Toronto industrial index gained .16 to 187.00 and the composite index on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges rose .72 to 183.87.

Prices entered new high ground during an exceptionally rapid spurt in late November and brokers have been expecting the trend to level off. However, they say the market generally is in an extremely strong postion and they predict more gains for some of the leading groups.

Investors are hoping for a year-end rally, which would be a continuation of the markets's performance over the last eight months. Many analysts believe the bull surge will continue until the Toronto industrial index is well over the 200 mark.

Among the week's best gains, Canadian Tire A was up 5½ to 69½, Southam 4⅛ to 63⅛, United Westburne 3¼ to 17, Pitts Engineering 3 to 22, Canadian Superior Oil 3 to 55½ and Brinco 62 cents to $5.37.

The strongest groups were golds, western oils, communications, retailers, banks and forest industries. Real estate issues, steels, chemicals and beverages were lower.

Although the general rise in share prices is getting support from a similar move in New York, the U.S. market has been acting far less steadily.

Financial observers say this is due partly to the nervous psychology of Wall Street where everyone is watching the Dow Jones index of 30 industrials while it makes irregular spurts towards its record level.

Gold stocks picked up Thursday and Friday, although there was no serious increase in the price of bullion on the London and Continental free markets.

Dome Mines gained 4¾ to 78¼, Campbell Red Lake 2¾ to 35, Giant Yellowknife ½ to 12¼ and Camflo 25 cents to $5.85. The Toronto gold index, which is recovering towards its all-time high at 260 in March, jumped 13.16 points to 233.06.

Analysts say the main reason for the revival in golds is the widespread belief that the international monetry problems which caused the March gold crisis and the European currency scare last month are still a long way from being solved.

They say that until the world's major currencies are rescued from disrepute, investors and speculators will continue to put some of their money into gold bullion or gold shares.

AMERICANS BUY

As always, Americans were the main buyers of Canadian gold stocks this week because U.S. citizens are not allowed to own bullion.

Gold speculators would cash in if the U.S. government decides to devalue the dollar by raising the official price of gold from its pre-war partiy of $35 U.S. an ounce.

Investors and economists who support the idea of a higher price for gold say it should be at least doubled.

The swiftest plunge this year knocked over 66 per cent off the shares of two mining companies, Leitch and Highland-Bell, following the Ontario Supreme Court's rejection of their claim to the Kidd Creek mine near Timmins, Ont.

Leitch dropped $8.40 to $3.85 and Highland-Bell $12.90 to $5.85.

Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court handed down his decision last Friday night at a specially arranged court session after North American stock markets had closed on both the East and West coasts.

This was done to give investors a weekend to digest the news before any panic selling could develop. Nevertheless, Monday saw an immediate slump in Leitch and Highland-Bell, while the shares of Texas Gulf Sulphur, the company which won the case, moved up.

SPURRED BY FIND

A group of small western oil companies held the spotlight later in the week on news of a potential uranium discovery in the Woolaston Lake area of northeast Saskatchewan.

Although the find was made by Gulf Minerals, a subsidiary of Gulf Oil Corp. of Pittsburgh, the Canadian group will have a partial interest in any profits if a mine is developed.

Stock market action had been building up on rumors prior to the official announcement Tuesday by Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, but since then the shares have been backing off.

By Friday, New Continental was up $1.09 to $3.50, Consolidated East Crest 95 cents to $2.40, Dynamic 18 cents to $1.95 and Permos 8 cents to 73 cents. Mill City was off 8 cents to $1.90.

Among companies which have property in the discovery area, Numac gained $1.30 to $8.20 and Fort Reliance 39 cents to $1.19.

On index at Toronto, western oils rose 3.25 to 240.41. Base metals lost .76 to 11.9. Volume was 26,407,000 shares compared with 21,084,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses 417 to 370.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 7,863,000 shares compared with 7,631,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses by 203 to 151.

9¼ Per Cent Home Rate Indicated

OTTAWA (CP) — Cost of mortgages in the new year could climb back to record, early-1968 prices at a time when the government is trying to figure out ways to make housing cheaper.

The indicator of future mortgage interest rates is the pace of the payoff on long-term federal government bonds. Those yields hit an all-time record rate this week of 7.07 per cent.

Maximum interest rates on mortgages issued under the National Housing Act—which tend to govern other mortgage rates in return—are fixed quarterly by a formula related to the average yield on long-term government bonds prevailing in the previous four weeks.

Unless the bond yield slips back from its present rate during the next three weeks, NHA mortgage interest likely will be raised to at least 9¼ per cent from the current 8¾ on Jan. 1, the date for setting the next quarterly rate.

OTHERS WOULD RISE

Conventional mortgages issued by trust companies and banks, which have been carrying interest of about 9 per cent since Oct. 1, would become more costly in sympathy with the NHA rates.

Maximum NHA interest rate was 9⅛ per cent last spring, but fell back in the summer and fall. A year ago, the rate was 7¾ per cent.

The possibility of costlier mortgages comes at a time when a government housing inquiry led by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer is beginning to work on recommendations designed to deal with a national demand for housing that most people can afford.

Mr. Hellyer, who plans to issue proposals next month, regards his prime problem as finding ways to reduce the cost of borrowing money for housing. He is expected to put forward ideas designed both to increase the quantity of funds available for mortgates and to lower interest rates.

Leitch Won't Launch Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — Leitch Gold Mines Ltd. said Friday it has decided not to appeal a court ruling against its claim for an estimated $2,000,000,000 base-metal mine now being operated in the Timmins, Ont., area by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. of New York.

In a letter to shareholders, Leitch directors said their decision was based on their lawyer's advice on the limitations of the power of an appeal court to interfere with the findings of a trial judge on matters of fact.

U.K.-German Pact Hit

By WARREN UNNA
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States came out publicly Wednesday against a proposed West German trade arrangement with Britain as an alternative to British entry into the European Common Market.

"We have consistently supported European unification. We are opposed to preferential trading arrangements between the European communities and other countries not clearly linked to membership within a reasonable period of time," state department spokesman Robert J. McCleskey said at his press briefing.

For the past few weeks, articles have appeared in the West German press criticizing the United States for "interfering." The German proposal is being billed as designed to ease Britain into the Common Market over the objections of French President Charles de Gaulle.

The United States, and Britain herself, take the view that the German proposal is likely to only lessen Britian's entry into the Common Market through a cumbersome and time-consuming diversion.

The conflict dates back to Nov. 5 when Bonn asked the U.S. to comment upon a general outline for lowering tariffs and working out trade arrangements with Britain and other non-Common Market countries.

The U.S. replied on Nov. 11, advising the Germans that their proposal not only did nothing to further political unification in Europe—a prime U.S. objective—but probably would foster protectionism and set back the moves to liberalize world trade.

The Germans dispatched another note Nov. 29 with some elaboration of its plan. But McCloskey indicated Wednesday that the U.S. opposition sticks.

Victoria Data Firm Has National Issue

By G. S. KENT
Business Editor

Proof of a seam-bursting data processing industry in North America can be found right at home, where a Victoria-based firm is about to change its premises, open a new branch and offer shares to the public.

The company has already changed its name, from West Coast Electronic Data Processing Ltd. to a more hip DataTech Systems Ltd., which owns operating subsidiary, DataTech Systems (Canada) Ltd.

The best news about the reorganization is the entry of a Victoria firm to the rarefied air of new issues, the sort of thing that happens frequently in Toronto, occasionally in Vancouver and hardly ever in Victoria, but for which public appetite these days is insatiable.

The West never gets enough of these allocations to suit the clients of local investment dealers, but maybe this time will be different if B.C. investors are given preference, leaving the Bay Streeters crying for more.

●

Underwriter of the 200,000 common shares to be offered sometime in January is Gairdner and Co. Ltd., the Toronto-based firm which opened its 20th branch three weeks ago in Victoria.

It is intended to offer the stock in every province but Newfoundland and prospectuses are now awaiting approval of securities commissions.

On Friday, and over the weekend, DataTech will pull out of its 2,500 square feet on the third floor of the Montreal Trust Building, Fort Street, to relocate in a new data centre being built on McKenzie at Borden, next to the Saanich liquor store.

There, the firm will have more than 6,000 square feet of space for its Burroughs B-200 computer, keypunchers and assorted electronic aids, its tons of punched cards and busy staff regularly serving some 200 clients with about 600 accounting reports. A co-tenant will be a new Toronto-Dominion Bank branch.

Also this month DataTech expanded its Vancouver branch from a receiving office to an independent processing unit with a B-200 plus magnetic tape and disc pack adjuncts which permit immediate access to information. The same attachments will be installed here to increase local capacity four times and total capability by 10 times.

●

The president of this company is chartered accountant Earl Large, only 27 when he conceived and set up West Coast five years ago.

He claims a volume output five or six times that of his nearest competitor, serving clients sprinkled along the coast from Los Angeles to Gold River, from Saanich to Calgary, representing corporations, the provincial government, school boards, retail and wholesale businesses, manufacturers and mortgage companies. Many have been with him from the beginning.

He has kept them happy by providing service on a professional basis and a turn-around time of 48 hours.

Basically, DataTech ministers to accounting, payroll and inventory needs, but plans are to expand into engineering work as well. A problem is to secure qualified staff, Mr. Large said. At the moment, for example, the company needs three or four professional accountants and will advertise for them far and near.

All being well, DataTech will open another branch in 1969, possibly in Canada but perhaps in Washington or California. That may sound like carrying coals to the electronic Newcastle of the hemisphere, but such is the demand for computer services.

●

DataTech directors besides Earl Large are Dr. Ted Link, a local financier who helped start the centre and is a major shareholder; the president's brother Walter, of Large, Large and Co., chartered accountants, which also is moving to the Saanich site; head programmer and vice-president, Ron Smith, a graduate electrical engineer; Vancouver manager John Weibe, also a graduate engineer; Col. Ronald Bull and lawyer Gerald Cross, both of Victoria.

Of 1 million authorized shares, 400,000 are privately held, the upcoming issue will account for 200,000 and the remaining 400,000 shares are unissued.

Royal Regains Top Spot

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada regained its top ranking this year as the Canadian chartered bank with the highest total assets, today's official Canada Gazette shows.

The Gazette, listing the assets of the nine chartered banks at the Oct. 31 end of their financial year, reports that the Royal had an edge over the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce of $8,743,218,000 to $8,343,111,000.

A year earlier, the Imperial was first and the Royal, the long-time leader, was second.

The relative standing of the other chartered banks was unchanged from last year.

The Bank of Montreal, reporting assets of $6,818,514,000, was third. It was followed by the Bank of Nova Scotia, $5,217,037,000; the Toronto-Dominion Bank, $4,378,064,000; Banque Canadienne Nationale, $1,411,518,000; La Banque Provinciale du Canada, $758,736,000; the Mercantile Bank of Canada, $188,546,000; the Bank of British Columbia, $33,866,000.

Stock Conspiracy Draws Fine, Jail

NEW YORK (AP) — Financier Louis E. Wolfson, 55, of Miami Beach, Fla., was sentenced to 18 months in prison and fined $32,000 in U.S. district court Friday on conspiracy charges that grew out of a stock deal.

Wolfson and three others were convicted Aug. 8. The charges were conspiracy to commit perjury, obstruct justice and file false reports in connection with sales of stock in Merritt-Chapman and Scott, an international construction and marine salvage and towing business that Wolfson controlled.

Wolfson already is under sentence of a year in jail and $100,000 fine for an earlier conviction in a stock case.

Wolfson, whose personal fortune at one time was estimated at $100 million, controlled a $240 million web of 17 corporations, one of which was Merritt-Chapman.

Newspaper-TV Merger Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government has filed its first anti-trust suit challenging the merger of television and newspaper interests.

The suit was filed simultaneously with a proposed consent judgment in which the Gannett Co., operator of 30 newspapers and three television and six radio stations in five U.S. states, agreed to sell either a television station in Rockford, Ill. or the two Rockford newspapers which it acquired last year.

Gannett announced in Rochester, N.Y., Wednesday that it would sell the television station, WREX-TV, instead of the Rockford Morning Star and the Register-Republic.

The justice department filed the suit in Chicago even though Gannett had announced its agreement to the consent judgment. A department spokesman said this was not an unusual procedure.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said in a statement in Washington that Gannett has agreed to sell either the Rockford newspapers or the WREX-TV, the leading television station in Rockford, within 18 months to a qualified purchaser. The porposed consent decree becomes final in 30 days.

Gannett assumed control of WREX-TV in 1963. It acquired full stock control of Rockford newspapers in April, 1967. The company publishes the city's only morning paper and the larger of the two afternoon dalies.

The government charged that acquisition of the newspapers violated the Celler-Kefauver section of the Clayton Act by eliminating competition between Rockford newspapers and WREX-TV.

The suit alleged that the acquisition substantially lessened competition while increasing concentration in the sale of advertising and the dissemination of news and advertising by local mass media in metropolitan Rockford.

University Building Costs Said Too High

QUESNEL (CP) — Ed Benson, president of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce, says that buildings at the University of B.C. were costing as much as 30 per cent more than comparable buildings being erected under private sponsorship.

He told the Quesnel Chamber of Commerce he was not "dead sure" of his figures, but he believed the unit cost of some new buildings at UBC was running as high as $30 to $35 a square foot.

Mr. Benson said that Dr. Kenneth Hare, UBC president, must be prepared to have questions asked that the money he receives is spent wisely.

Mr. Benson also challenged B.C. universities to get rid of some of the "academic sloths" that he said are hiding in the refuge of the tenure system.

Dark Clouds Still Hang About

By ALAN DAY
The London Observer

LONDON — The violent storms affecting the world monetary system are not over. The clouds have lifted, but when things calm down without any fundamental solution to the problem, it is unwise to expect them to stay calm.

Since the problems still remain of the exchange value of the franc and the mark, of the general inflexibility of exchange rates and of the shortage of international liquidity in a world where private funds can be switched from country to country with great ease, we must be prepared for new troubles.

What then are the prospects for the world economy in the next year? Are we going to see recession, a withdrawal into national protectionism and an aggravation of the monetary problems which will seem like a repetition of the 1930s? Or will world trade and economic activity continue to grow, and the monetary problems continue to be disturbances induced largely by political stubbornness which do not greatly slow down what matters most to the ordinary citizen—the general rise in real prosperity?

It is clear that the growth of world trade will slow down during the coming year. The British National Institute estimates that in the past year the value of world trade has grown 10 per cent, and next year will grow by about 7 per cent.

The biggest single reason for the slowdown is that the United States' economy is likely to grow a good deal more slowly—the institute suggests by 2½ per cent in real terms compared with 4½ per cent or even a little faster during the current year. Another reason for the slowdown is the delayed effect of tax increases and cuts in government spending; a third is the prospect that investment will not be too buoyant.

It may also be necessary for further deflationary measures to be taken in the U.S., to hold back the steady inflation which is taking place, with consumer prices rising at nearly 4 per cent a year. One big question which the institute does not specifically consider is whether president-elect Nixon will revert to policies like those accepted by the last Republican president, Mr. Eisenhower.

These involved the acceptance of high unemployment in order to balance the budget, to hold inflation in check and to help the balance of payments.

If president Nixon were to revert to Eisenhower policies there would be a sharp recession while unemployment rose—perhaps largely through imposing very tight monetary policies. In fact, however, American political circumstances are such that such a return to orthodoxy is unlikely: It might satisfy comfortable middle-class voters in the suburbs but would have shattering effects on the Negro problem and the urban problem, where much of the effect of higher unemployment would be concentrated.

Professor Calls Northern Oil Leases a 'Giveaway'

OTTAWA (CP) — A University of Alberta law professor today expressed concern that Canada may be "selling her birthright" on oil leases in northern territories.

Dr. A. R. Thompson, addressing the Commons committee on northern affairs, said Canada allows "excessively long permits, with royalty rates too long entrenched."

Although incentive benefits might be satisfactory for the present, "what wears well now might be a serious misfit in the future—and that future can change so fast."

Dr. Thompson criticized regulations in the North up to 65 degrees latitude, where he said companies can control fields for 30 years without discovery or relinquishment of any acreage, and in the far North, where the limit is 35 years.

Under regulations allowing the re-issue of a lease for 21 years from date of a strike, a company receiving a permit this year could be guaranteed unchanging royalty rates until 2019 or 2024.

Dr. Thompson said oil and gas regulations allowed the holder of an oil permit to "blanket a discovery with leases," cutting out competition that would assure fair current prices.

He compared the federal regulations unfavorably with those in Alberta, where a company could maintain control of only 50 per cent of the area under its original permit when it took out a lease.

Federal regulations allowed the company to maintain all of the original area in exchange for additional royalty payments.

Alberta regulations allowed for re-negotiation of royalty rates every 10 years.

HITS GENEROSITY

Dr. Thompson called federal regulations and incentives "the most generous in Canada and more generous than in many other parts of the world."

He realized that extra incentives are necessary for development in the North, but questioned "whether the gap was justified" between incentives offered in the provinces and those offered in the territories.

There should also be differences between incentives offered in the far North and those offered just above provincial boundaries but still in the western oil basin.

"I have a concern that 10 years from now we will look back and think we have given away our resources," Dr. Thompson said.

He also criticized a section of the regulations forcing oil companies to be listed on a recognized Canadian stock exchange and to ensure that Canadians have a chance to participate in the financing and ownership of the companies.

He called it "an invitation to good lawyers to exercise their ingenuity" to allow foreign clients to reorganize Canadian operations "usually at great expense . . . with no increase in Canadian content."

Preferable for ensuring Canadian participation was a section of the northern mineral exploration regulations allowing the federal government to make grants of up to 40 per cent towards exploration costs of Canadian companies.

Panarctic Has Superior Opportunity

OTTAWA (CP) — If oil is discovered on the Arctic islands, it's a good bet that Panarctic Oils Ltd. will be in on it.

Panarctic is a consortium of 20 Canadain oil companies in which the federal government holds a 45 percent interest.

Panarctic holds exploration leases for 51 million acres of the 100 million acres in the islands. It plans to drill three wells in 1969.

Deputy Minister John MacDonald of the northern development department told a Commons northern development committee the Panarctic holdings represent 63 per cent of the High Arctic lands "regarded as potentially oil and gas bearing."

J. M. Godfrey, a vice-president of Dome Petroleum, one of the companies involved in Panarctic, said: "If anything is found, we have a good chance of being in on it."

Harry Woodward, chief of the oil and gas division of the northern development department, said the huge oil find in Alaska early this year triggered great interest in exploration permits in the Canadian North.

Permits for 70 million acres in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon were auctioned off at public sale. Mr. Woodward said some of the area covered is under thick ice.

ITT-Comsat

International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. is offering for public sale 400,000 of the 500,000 common shares of Communications Satellite Corp. it holds.

ITT said that because of a policy disagreement "we have made the decision to substantially eliminate our holdings and to give up our representation on the Comsat board."

The company did not define the policy disagreement.

You Live and Learn With Plants

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

It is an ill wind if nobody benefits, and it is a poor gardener that does not learn something from winter weather.

During the past week we have experienced heavy rains in the Victoria area, sufficient to cause severe flooding in many gardens.

Just walking around the property and noting where surface water is collecting in pools can be a profitable experience.

When a few hours of heavy rain produces pools it shows the level of soil water at those spots was very close to the surface before rain began. This could mean the roots of plants in the area are more or less in constant water.

Quite often we find pools collecting around shrubs and trees which have never been really healthy and vigorous. Here we have the reason—too much water around roots over winter.

Another place to note water collecting on the surface is in the lawn area.

Yellow or brown patches in spring will frequently be the result of grass roots having died due to excess soil moisture and insufficient air.

While it is wise to relieve these conditions by making shallow trenches to lead the water away from the area, there is not much else one can do at this time of year.

The gardener is in much the same boat as the man with a leaking roof. When it rained, the roof could not be fixed and when it was dry there was no need to fix it.

However, if plants are to survive, be it trees, shrubs, or grass plants, the condition must be eliminated, and a good practice is to drive a white painted stake as a reminder.

The white stake is somewhat of an eyesore, and serves to remind us in spring to improve drainage in the area before plant growth becomes too far advanced.

There is one precaution that must be taken by all gardeners in areas where heavy clay subsoils predominate, and that is not to make holes into clay for planting shrubs or trees without providing adequate drainage from each hole.

LOSSES MOUNT

We might just as well plant the tree or shrub in a washtub and fill it with water, for the hole will collect soil water and hold it until the water table drops the following summer.

The last three mild and wet winters, have resulted in more plant losses than we have experienced in colder periods.

Tips For Home Gardeners

One reason is the sustained growth due to mild temperatures, and another is root damage caused by the high water table in the soil.

Raspberries were especially affected, as were many young fruit and ornamental trees.

Other winter conditions worth recording are areas where frost is particularly noticeable on the soil, and areas where frost is rarely or never seen.

KNOW COLD SPOTS

Frost is always thicker and whiter where air drainage is poor. Still air and frost go together, and the gardener who knows the cold spots in his garden is well on the way to success with plants.

He can make use of this knowledge in two ways. A cold spot can be used to hold back spring growth, or it can be avoided when frost-shy plants are being grown.

The climate of any piece of property is composed of a number of micro climates—warm spots, cold spots, wet spots and dry spots.

The warm spots in winter are ones where white frost covering is conspicuously absent.

FAST GROWTH

These are spots where the family cat or friendly garden snakes will be found basking in brief winter sunshine.

Lacking a cat or snake, the gardener can pinpoint such spots by noting where winter and spring flowering bulbs first show green shoots or tend to make the most rapid growth.

It is one thing to notice these micro climates, but far more important to know their exact location when time comes to add a new plant.

Every plant has optimum conditions under which it will give its best, and quite often near optimum conditions can be found in most unlikely gardens.

The only way to be sure of the garden's micro climates is to mark the areas in a distinctive and unmistakable way, and make a record in the garden notebook for future reference.

COLORED STAKES

A method that has proved satisfactory for me has been to use colored stakes. These were made from one-inch square wood painted in three colors, white, red, and green.

The white stakes marked areas that needed work done, such as drainage, wind shelters, or building of access paths. As mentioned before, white is an eyesore between plants therefore one tends to eliminate such stakes as soon as possible.

Red stakes marked cold spots, deep shade, or spots unprotected in strong winds. These were danger points. The garden notebook was checked for their bad features before any planting was done.

"ALL CLEAR"

Green stakes, as you have guessed, were "all clear" signals, indicating good winter conditions where border line and precious plants would be reasonably sure of doing well.

Armed with this data, the home gardener never has hesitation in deciding where a plant should be put, and he will rarely put a plant in the wrong place.

The answer to that often asked question: "Where should I plant a ——?" is right in the garden concerned, and nobody can be expected to know as much about that garden as the one who tends it.

Obviously, to learn and mark the garden's micro climates means going outdoors and observing conditions when rain is pouring down, when gales are blowing, and while frost is still evident.

It means living with your plants, especially in winter—the only time when it is possible to find the answers.

There is a lot of truth in the saying, gardening is a year-around hobby on the Pacific Coast.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. Potted bulbs are not growing quickly enough. I'm afraid they won't be ready for Christmas giving. What can be done to hurry them? T.T.A.- Victoria.

A. If the bulbs have plenty of roots, they should now respond to warmth of 70 to 75 deg. F. Soil must be kept damp but never wet.

As top growth advances and flower buds appear, a lower temperature of 60 to 65 deg. F. will be better for perfect blooms, for they should develop slowly until fully open.

So long as buds are well advanced, these plants will be suitable as gifts even though no color is showing at time of giving.

★

WEEK'S WORK

Recent heavy rains will have shown need for firm paths to various parts of the garden. Lay out walkways with a string line and small stakes until a near perfect route is established.

Hyacinths in pots and Soleil d'Or and Paperwhite narcissi will now respond to warmth and light.

Hardwood cuttings of many deciduous, spring blooming shrubs can be taken now for rooting in pots in a coldframe.

Heather cuttings one inch long, taken now, will root in damp peat moss and sand with bottom heat in sunroom, porch or greenhouse.

Inspect all plants after heavy rains (and after ground frosts when they occur) to see that roots are not exposed. Press small plants back gently into soil; use dry soil mixtures to cover larger exposed roots, and in gaps between stems and surrounding soil.

Contract Let On Airport Span

OTTAWA (CP) — Manning Construction Ltd. of Vancouver has been awarded a $545,422 contract to build a new access bridge to Vancouver International airport, the department of transport announced Friday.

The bridge will cross the middle arm of the Fraser River, connecting Lulu Island to the airport on Sea Island. It will augment accesses now provided by the Moray Channel Bridge, about one mile upstream.

The bid was the lowest of four submitted.

The contract was let in two parts: a fixed sum of $477,982 for construction of the superstructure, and another for piling construction on a unit-price basis, estimated at $97,440.

The two-lane bridge, 1,000 feet long, will have two traffic lanes and a pedestrian walk.

A contract for the approach road on Sea Island will be let early in the new year by the transport department.

Tennessee Park

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Tennessee is adding 50 campsites at Warrior's Path State Park, Kingsport, tripling the present camping accommodations of the park.

All the sites will have water and electrical hookups, paved pads and paved access roads. They are to be completed by the spring of 1969.

Eric the Red Told White Lie About Greenland

By ROBERT G. OLIPHANT

One of the most neglected stamp-issuing areas of the world is the Danish colony of Greenland. This is probably due to the average person's general lack of knowledge about this territory. Greenland is not entirely a desolate wasteland of ice and snow.

Greenland was discovered by Eric the Red. (Leif Ericson's father) in 982. After exploring its south-western coasts, Eric returned to Iceland in 985, and he reported his discovery. He called this area Greenland to make people more willing to go there and settle. A number of adventurous people were influenced, and they took the voyage back with Eric. This was the beginning of the European settlement of Greenland.

Lief Ericson left Norway in 1000, and he sailed for Greenland. His ship was put off course, and he landed on the American coast; the first known European to do so. Later in 1000, Leif introduced Christianity to Greenland at the instance of the King of Norway. (Last Oct. 8, the U.S. released a six-cent stamp to honor Ericson.)

In 1003, Torfinn Karlsefni ventured from Greenland, and landed somewhere between Labrador and Cape Cod. He attempted to colonize this new area, but he was discouraged by native hostility. He returned to Greenland in 1006 with his family and crew.

For many years, the Norse settlements on Greenland were forgotten by the outside world. When the navigator and explorer John Davis (c. 1550-1605) visited the island in 1585, he found no Norsemen, only Eskimos.

★ ★ ★

In July, 1721, the Norwegian missionary Hans Egede (1686-1758) came to Greenland. He founded Godthaab, which is now the capital, and he converted many of the Eskimos to Christianity. He also established considerable trade with Denmark. In 1958, Greenland issued a 30-ore stamp honoring Egede.

Greenland released in 1960 a 30-ore adhesive bearing a portrait of Knud Rasmussen (1879-1933), the explorer, writer and ethologist. In 1910, he established a mission and trading post at Thule, which is on the northwest coast of Greenland about 930 miles from the north pole, and where the U.S. maintains a huge air base.

Stamp News

Other explorers of Greenland include Henry Hudson (d. 1611 ?), Sir Martin Frobisher (c. 1535-94), William Baffin (1584-1622), Sir John Ross (1777-1856), Sir John Franklin (1786-1847), Sir James C. Ross (1800-62), Sir A. E. Inglefield (1820-94), A. W. Greely (1844-1935), J. B. Lockwood (1852-84), and Robert E. Peary (1856-1920).

The mammals of Greenland (other than domestic) include the musk ox, reindeer, the white polar bear and Arctic hare. Simple forms of plant-life, and some vegetables grow in a few areas. Fur trapping, sealing and whaling constitute the main industries. A few minerals are exported.

The total area of Greenland is about 840,000 square miles; 710,000 square miles of this is icecap. The population is around 33,200. In 1938, Greenland's first stamps were issued; they feature a portrait of King Christian X of Denmark. The most commonly seen stamps of Greenland are the stamps of the 1950-60 series. They bear a portrait of King Frederick IX.

On Dec. 16, the British Virgin Islands will place on sale four commemoratives to mark the opening of the Beef Island Airport. The 2c, 10c, and 25c values feature airplanes, and the $1 stamp depicts a crest.

The British Virgin Islands were discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1494. He named them Las Virgenes in honor of St. Ursula and her companions. During the 16th century, buccaneers frequented these islands.

Britain has held this group since 1666. Fishing, raising fruits and vegetables, and livestock and poultry, and the production of charcoal are the principal industries. The capital is Road Town, the area is less than 70 square miles, and the population is around 7,400. Their first stamps appeared in 1866.

On Dec. 3, the island of Grenada released four Christmas stamps. Religious paintings are featured by Paolo Caglaiari (1528-88), Titian (c. 1477-1576), Sandro Botticelli (1444-1510), and Vincenzo di Biagio Catena (1470-1531). The values are 5c, 15c, 35c and $1. These stamps were multicolor photogravure printed by Harrison and sons Ltd.

ECKERT OUSTED AS BASEBALL COMMISSIONER

NEW INACTIVE LIST MAY STIR NEW TROUBLE

Who Will Want Job of Dismissed 'Unknown Soldier'?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The man who replaces William D. Eckert as baseball commissioner will be from inside the game. The owners are not about to repeat their "unknown soldier" adventure.

Among those mentioned to replace Eckert, dismissed Friday after a special owners' meeting, are Michael Burke, boss of New York Yankees; Joe Cronin, president of the American League and Robert Cannon, now a judge and formerly attorney for the players.

But the question is: Which member of baseball's inner circle would want the job, which is growing more difficult by the moment?

For openers, the new commissioner faces the most serious threat of players' strike in the game's history. And neither side appears ready to compromise.

And he would have to operate for an unspecified length of time while an outside research group makes a study that could lead to vast changes in the organization of the game, possibly eliminating the commissioners' job.

For the record, Eckert resigned, saying that "a baseball man can more effectively do the job." But it was clear that he had been asked to quit by owners convinced he was not what the game needed.

The 59-year-old former Air Force general seldom took a strong public stand on the problems that arose during his tenure.

And the game's attendance has declined by nearly 2,250,000 admissions in the three years he has been in office while professional football has been steadily on the rise.

Meanwhile, players and owners appear to be more anxious to make their pension fund dispute a bitter test of wills than to settle it.

Friday, for instance, the owners waved the red flag in front of the angry bull by adopting a new category for players' rosters called the temporary inactive list.

This allows a club to take an ill or non-baseball injured player off its active roster for a minimum of 21 days and suspend his salary.

Only two players may be so listed at once, but a player may be returned to the list at any time.

The rule appears to have been the result of Boston pitcher Jim Lonborg's off-season skiing accident last year when the Red Sox only paid their star pitcher's full salary after arguing the point. Lonborg didn't return to the club until late in the season.

Whether this action by the leagues makes the players any angrier than they already were remains to be seen. But it is clear from the players' strike threat early in the week and various owners' angry reaction that a solution will not be easily arrived at.

In the meantime, a three-man group—Baltimore owner Jerold Hoffberger, St. Louis official Dick Meyer and general manager John Holland of Chicago Cubs—will pick the firm to study the game and make recommendations for improvement.

The owners said they wanted to:

—Tighten the organizational structure of the game, both major and minor league.

—"Explore ways to modernize the presentation of the game."

The new commissioner, in the meantime, will be picked just as he always has been—By the owners—with Eckert remaining on the job until his successor is picked.

TERRY'S KNEE KNIFED

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Terry Harper of Montreal Canadiens underwent surgery Friday to correct a knee ailment.

Dr. Douglas G. Kinnear, the National Hockey League club's physician, placed Harper's right knee in a cast following the operation. The cast is not expected to be removed for about two weeks.

Harper had experienced difficulty skating this year as fluid constantly accumulated in the knee, causing him pain.

The knee had to be drained of the fluid on days between games and it was decided earlier this week to operate.

Three More Trades

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three more trades — none more exciting than the eight that preceded them — were made at the final day of the winter baseball meetings Friday.

Chicago White Sox were involved in two of the trades, sending pitcher Jack Fisher to Cincinnati for catcher Don Pavletich and pitcher Don Secrist while selling outfielder Leon Wagner outright to the Reds.

New York Yankees sent third baseman Charlie Smith to San Francisco Giants for infielder Nate Oliver.

That brought to 26 the number of players traded at the week-long sessions.

EXHIBITION GAME

The majors approved a pre-season exhibition game between members of Eastern and Western Division teams in honor of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The game will be played in Los Angeles March 29 with the proceeds going to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

The leagues also turned down proposals to decrease the player limit from 25 to 23 and to increase the waiver price to $25,000 from $23,000. They approved a contribution of $276,000 to amateur baseball organizations.

FLEEING FIGHT FANS PROTECT HEADS

Fans use chairs to protect heads as they flee from Forum in Los Angeles Friday night during ruckus that followed bantamweight championship fight between Australian Lionel Rose and Chucho Castillo of Mexico. Castillo's supporters were angered by split decision in favor of Rose and created havoc after verdict was announced. Rioters ignited fires and over-turned cars. (AP Wirephoto)

Fight Decision Inflames Fans

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Australia's Lionel Rose is still the world champion bantamweight boxer and Mexico's Chucho Castillo goes home a disappointed challenger.

Rose, 20, was awarded a split decision over Castillo, 24, after 15 rounds of bristling action Friday night.

Minutes after the decision was announced, irate Castillo supporters started a riot.

An estimated 20 fires blazed in the Forum's spacious confines, most of them in upholstered seats. Smoke filled the arena.

Seats were torn from moorings and hurled in the air; so were bottles, king-sized waste baskets—anything throwable. Boxing writers ducked under the ring.

Rose's manager, Jack Rennie, was cut on the arms and legs by flying glass as he and Lionel fought to get to the dressing room.

FLIP CARS OVER

Expensive cars in the parking lot were overturned or battered.

And promoter George Parnasses, who in 40 years of importing boxing talent from Mexico to fame and wealth in Los Angeles, sadly and in tears said this was his last promotion.

Judges John Thomas and Lee Grossman carded the fight 7-6 for Rose.

Referee Dick Young scored it 9-7 for Castillo. Referee Young ironically was cut on the head by a flying bottle and required four stitches.

The Associated Press scored it 8-5, Castillo.

The anticipated lightning did not strike except in the 10th round. Castillo, with 17 knockouts to his credit in 26 victories, caught the champion with a hard right to the jaw. Rose was floored, bounced up at four, took the mandatory eight-count and escaped further trouble the remainder of the round.

The champion's effective counter punching in the final rounds apparently caught the eyes of the judges.

"I'm confident I won," Castillo said later.

Rugby Shuffle

Seattle Rugby Club and Castaways of the Victoria Rugby Union, who clashed in first and second-team tussles today at Carnarvon Park will shuffle players Sunday.

They'll combine to send a team of over-30 players against an under-30 side at Carnarvon Sunday at 11 a.m.

Eight Rinks In Contention At Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Eight rinks were still in contention, including defending champion Merv Mann of Saskatoon, after Friday night's modified double-knockout playoffs of the Canadian Open carspiel.

Mann, who defeated Bill McCallum of Edmonton in last year's final, won his fifth successive game with a 6-5 decison over Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask.

Mann, on the "A" side of the draw, joined Harold Worth of Delisle, Sask., Hec Gervais of Edmonton and Bruce Stewart of Calgary in the semi-finals.

George Fink of Regina, Mike Lukowich of Saskatoon, Pickering and Dave Gerlach of Calgary remained alive on the losers' side, each with one defeat.

MEAT ON HOOF BETTER THAN OIL IN BUCKETS

TORONTO (CP) — Diehard Calgary fans are still paying off Grey Cup bets, but a group of Western office workers added a new wrinkle Friday.

Employees at a major oil firm in Calgary lost $400 to co-workers in Toronto when Calgary Stampeders bowed 24-21 to Ottawa Rough Riders in last Saturday's Grey Cup.

So they decided to pay off Western style and sent 1,000 pounds of prime beef to settle the debt — but they sent it on the hoof, alive and kicking!

A Black Angus steer trotted through the door of the oil company's Toronto office Friday, sending secretaries into a tizzy.

The Calgarians finally admitted it was all a joke, returned the steer to its Toronto stall and announced a $400 cheque is in the mail.

Racing Fact-Finders Caught in a Dilemma

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—All of the evidence now is in the record but it may be two weeks before the jury brings in a verdict on Dancer's Image, winner of the 1968 Kentucky Derby.

The estimate was made by chairman George Egger of the Kentucky Racing Commission, which must decide whether the colt was carrying phenylbutazone in his system during the May 4 race.

His owner, Peter Fuller, says he wasn't. But the state contends the illegal medication showed up in a post Derby urinalysis.

The stakes are high. There is a $122,600 purse which the stewards ordered turned over to the second horse and there is at least $1,000,000 in syndication and stud fees hanging in the balance, according to Fuller. He also wants to clear his horse's record.

The commission, which listened to highly technical testimony for 14 days, also is caught in a dilemma.

If the five members disagree with Fuller, they would be indicating that someone slipped the drug to the horse. The commission then would have to find the culprit.

SMITH RIGHT OR WRONG?

If the five members agree with Fuller, they would be saying—as he has contended—that the five tests run on the horse's urine by chemist Kenneth W. Smith were inconclusive or wrong. Smith has been doing this job for the state for 20 years.

His tests were supported Friday by Dr. Francis Ozog, a recognized authority on phenylbutazone and a racing chemist for Colorado, where the medication is permissable.

In Kentucky, a horse with bad ankles or similar afflictions can be treated with the anti-inflammatory agent providing it has disappeared from his system by the time he races.

Ozog told the commission the drug could have been given from three to 30 hours before the urine sample was extracted from the horse. He said this sample would have contained 150 micrograms of phenylbutazone per millilitre of urine.

Game Postponed

Officials of the Victoria and District Soccer League have postponed one of Sunday's scheduled second division matches.

They called off the game between Cosmopolitan Royals and London Soccer Club when the London club failed to post a $50 performance bond. Other matches are listed in the Sports Menu on this page.

Rest Proves Beneficial As Flyers Seal-ed 4-0

OAKLAND (CP)—Oakland Seals wanted Gary Smith to prove himself—and he did just that Friday night.

The 24-year-old Ottawa-born goalie, benched earlier in the season along with veteran Charlie Hodge, blocked 24 shots as Oakland blanked Philadelphia Flyers 4-0.

It was the first shutout of the season for Smith and the Seals and sent Oakland into second place in the National Hockey League's Western Division.

Smith, who posted a 3.19 goals against average in 21 games with the Seals last season, was benched four games ago when the Seals replaced him with Chris Worthy. He was called upon to make 11 saves in the third period to salvage the shutout.

The win was the seventh for the Seals in 25 games and gave them a one-point edge over idle Los Angeles Kings, in third place with 18 points.

SCORES WINNING GOAL

Defenceman Carol Vadnais scored what proved to be the winner at 7:28 of the first period. His 45-foot power-play slap shot deflected into the net off the stick of Flyer defenceman John Miszuk.

After a scoreless second period, Joe Szura, Norm Ferguson and Gary Jarrett tallied in a little more than four minutes.

Tonight, the battle for first place in the Eastern Division continues as New York Rangers invade fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens play at home to Chicago Black Hawks. The Rangers and Canadiens are tied for first with 32 points each.

In other games tonight, Detroit Red Wings play at Boston Pittsburgh is at St. Louis and Minnesota visits Los Angeles.

FACE CATS TONIGHT

Vernon's Colts Tough to Rope

About Vernon Essos, you can't be sure . . .

Even after the door seems securely locked, coach Oddie Lowe's colts from Vernon have managed to bolt out of the barn with B.C. Junior Hockey League victories.

Vernon happens to be the team the Victoria Cougars are scheduled to greet at Memorial Arena tonight, starting at 8:30.

Cellar-dwellers in mid-November, the Essos come into Victoria with a chance to take over second place in the six-team circuit.

They moved up with some grand-stand displays. When no one else could manage it, the Essos stepped up and bopped front-running Penticton three times. In each game, Essos came from behind four, five and six-goal deficits!

This week, Vernon managed another victory, again after the door seemed shut. Essos recaptured two points from Kelowna Buckaroos in the committee room.

The B.C. Junior League ruled that a Nov. 15 game, won 7-3 by Kelowna, belongs to Vernon. The league acknowledged that Kelowna dressed 17 players—one over the limit. The decision moved Vernon to within one point of second-place Victoria and three behind first-place Penticton.

Certainly, no one can accuse Vernon players of being "homers." Only five of their 19 points (two wins and a tie) have been reaped before hometown fans. Vernon has won five and tied two on the road . . . and has triumphed once in the committee room.

Lowe feels he has a well-balanced attack, but expresses some concern over a defence that, at best, has been erratic. Goaltenders Al Alexander and Jack Gilroy have allowed 105 goals—the most scored against any team this season.

ROCKETS ROLLING

Also on the move are Kamloops Rockets. They defeated Kelowna 4-2 Friday to stretch their undefeated string to three games and move into a tie with the fourth-place Bucks.

Rockets piled up a 3-0 lead until Glen Bassett's goal for Kelowna at 17:15 of the third put Buckaroos on the scoreboard. Gene Carr narrowed the gap to 3-2 on a breakaway 32 seconds later. However, Don Stewart scored on an empty net in the dying stages of the period to clinch the win for Rockets. The goal was Stewart's second of the night.

Marv Ferg and Bruce Johnson got the other goals for Kamloops.

Denver Blanks Phoenix

DENVER (AP)—Denver Spurs beat Phoenix Roadrunners 5-0 Friday night for their third straight Western Hockey League victory.

It was the first shutout of the season for Spurs who took their fifth win against 18 losses.

John Rodger scored twice for Spurs. Adding Denver goals were Wilf Martin, Allan Johnson and Randy Miller.

Each goaltender, Jacques Caron of Denver and Rick Charron of Phoenix, made 26 saves.

DEADLOCKS IN LACROSSE . . .

. . . Like Kissing Your Sister

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. college lacrosse officials have decided that a tie is still like kissing your sister—and they want no part of such filial devotion.

The NCAA rules committee took care of the problem in a major rule change Friday, providing for "sudden death" overtimes to eliminate all ties.

"Of course the reason for the sudden death overtime is obvious," Committee Chairman Avery Blake said. "No one likes to travel 500 miles for a game and then have it end in a tie. There's not much sense in it."

The old rules provided for a single eight-minute overtime period, not of the sudden-death variety, after which if the game was still tied it went into the books that way.

The new rule provides for continuing from that point with sudden death play in which the first team that scores wins. These periods will be four minutes each, with the teams stopping each time only long enough to change ends of the field, and they will continue until somebody scores.

The new rule will be in effect next season.

Key Battles on Tap

By Canadian Press

The National Football League's spotlight shone on today's crucial Green Bay Packers-Baltimore Colts game but was expected to maintain an important lustre when it swings to Sunday's Los Angeles Rams-Chicago Bears meeting.

Results of the two big games could determine the Central and Coastal Division champions. The Packers, Minnesota Vikings and the Bears are embroiled in the dogfight for the Central title while the tough Rams trailed Colts by a half-game in the Coastal scramble.

In other NFL action Sunday, Cleveland Browns will be at Washington Redskins; Minnesota at San Francisco; St. Louis Cardinals at New York Giants; Pittsburgh Steelers at Dallas Cowboys; New Orleans Saints at Philadelphia Eagles, and Detroit Lions at Atlanta.

USE OF STEROID DRUG RAPPED BY CROTHERS

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Crothers, internationally-known middle-distance runner and pharmacist at nearby Markham, Ont., says reports indicate that some Canadian athletes may be using steroid drugs and warns against it.

"I have no first-hand knowledge as to how widely used they are in Canada, but conversations with other athletes would indicate some Canadians are using them," Crothers said Friday.

He was commenting on a report Thursday that coaches in the British Amateur Athletic Association are calling for greater efforts to detect the use of the drugs.

Steroids are synthetic male hormones. Taken over a period of time, they can result in amazing weight gains.

"I think they're crazy to take them," said Crothers. "They may induce an immediate gain of 20 pounds, but if they don't keep their muscles in shape, what happens 10 years later? They don't really know."

Belmont Boys Grab First Hoop Victory

Belmont followed the pattern set by its rival Friday night and collected its first victory of the Inter-High School Senior Boys' Basketball League season.

With Glen Kilduff sparking the attack with a 21-point performance, the Belmont boys charged to a 45-40 win over University School, which had scored its first triumph earlier in the week.

While Belmont was cracking the victory circle at University School, two league teams were posting impressive victories in exhibition tussles at North Vancouver.

Oak Bay, getting 19 points from Don Burrows and 17 from Tom Holmes, romped to a 74-37 win over West Vancouver Highlanders.

Victoria High Totems also had few worries as they fashioned a 67-46 decision over North Vancouver Norsemen. Gord Hoshal (14 points) and Barry Moen (12) were the top Totem snipers.

BELMONT (45) — Larry Calnan 6, Bill Irwin, Doug Cameron, Tom Dutton 8, John Campbell 6, Rob Horn 2, Steve Taylor 2, Glen Kilduff 21, Lyle Bryden, Dave Lynch.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL (40) — Dick Grove 12, Ron Purcell 8, Craig Dykes 13, Tony McDonald 6, Rick Dade, John Johanson, Gary Hansen 1, Joan Gaither, Tim Swanky.

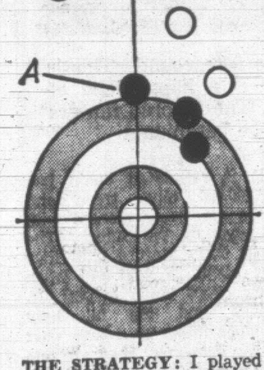
CURLING TIPS

By RON NORTHCOTT, 1968 world champion

THE SITUATION: Here's a potential nightmare I faced early this season. In that case it was the second end, Blacks were leading by two points, and I had last rock. I had the choice of an out turn draw around "A" or hit on "A" and hope for a good break.



THE STRATEGY: I played the hit on "A". Even if you hit "A" right on the nose, you have an easy raise for your second shot. If you can hit "A" real thin on the inside, you can get a double and possibly a triple. Even rolling off and out of the house opens the way for your last rock draw.

If you play a draw on your fist shot and succeed, it's terrific, but unlikely this early in a game when draw weight might be a little uncertain. If you didn't make the draw, you might not have a shot with your last stone, and giving up three or four at this stage would likely mean a certain loss.

TODAY'S TIP

Be sure to clean your rock thoroughly before you deliver. This is a must for every curler.

Each time a rock travels down the ice, it picks up straws, fine pulp from the brooms, and a certain amount of other dirt which seems to collect, especially behind the rings. If this is not cleaned off before delivery, the results can be disastrous.

The dirt may cause your rock to curl more than normal, to take the wrong turn, to stop sliding quicker than expected, or even not curl as much as expected.

Missing a shot is tough under any circumstances, but you'll feel even worse if you know it is your own fault because you didn't clean you rock.

SCUNTHORPE WINS

SCUNTHORPE (CP) — Scunthorpe United beat Bradford, 1-0, in an English League Division IV soccer game Friday night.

Poor Shooting Benefits Rifles

Maybe a pendulum doesn't, but the tide of hockey fortunes is apt to swing quickly. That was the theme of the lesson Friday when Queen's Own Rifles "took" North American Stockers to class, 4-3.

Last-place Rifles snapped a three-game, Vancouver Island Hockey League skid by clipping the front-running Stockers 4-3 at Esquimalt's Sports Centre.

The loss forced Stockers to share the top rung with Butler Brothers, who made the big gain by defeating University of Victoria Vikings in a four-point game. Vikings play a number of four-pointers to make up for games missed while campaigning in intercollegiate ranks.

MISSED SHOT

A missed penalty shot sunk Stockers. Trailing 4-3 with about four minutes left, Stockers were awarded a great chance to tie the game and earn a point that might have preserved sole possession of first place.

The penalty shot was called when a Rifle defender fell on the puck in his own crease with goalkeeper Joe Rozon caught out of the net. Stocker captain Les Bergman took the shot, hit a post . .. and Rifles managed to hold on the rest of the way.

A spirited free-for-all marred the match. The brawl, at 7:50 of the final period, resulted in game misconducts to Ray Chenier of Rifles and Stockers' Ben Huth, and major penalties to four other players — Terry Minnis, Ernie Cerley, Ivan McPhee and Peter Okopski.

Chenier, starting goalie for Rifles, was replaced by Rozon.

THREE FOR ORV

Rene Tailefer, Dave Stones, George Ede and Des Desjardins scored goals for the service squad while Dennis Ferrill (2) and Tom Mullin hit for Stockers.

Orv Coulter (3), Doug Couch (2) and Wayne Anderson powered Butlers. Stan Ruzicka, Carl Naso, Jim Haddrell and Glyn Harper counted for Vikings.

Butlers made their move in the second period by scoring four unanswered goals to grab a 5-1 lead.

Butlers	9	5	3	1	28	24	11
Stockers	10	4	3	3	22	19	11
Vikings	10	3	4	3	19	23	9

Australian Batsmen In Collapse

BRISBANE (Reuters) — Australia collapsed to a score of 255 for the loss of five wickets today on the second day of the first Australia-West Indies cricket test match of the current five-game series.

That left the Australians 41 runs behind the West Indies first-innings score of 296 runs.

Australia lost its first batsman without scoring a run but then William Lawry and Ian Chappell stayed together for a powerful 217-run session.

In the two hours after the tea break spin bowlers Lance Gibbs and Clive Lloyd shot out four Australian batsmen.

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — Russia's No. 2 hockey team blanked Canada 4-0 today in a final mathch before the touring Canadian team heads for home Sunday.

The Canadians lost all four of their games here against the top two Soviet teams.

The Soviet No. 1 team was to have played Canada today, but was withdrawn without explanation just before the start of the game, the No. 2 team taking its place. The Russian fans whistled to indicate their disappointment.

Vikings Roll to Century; Chinooks Nip Centralia

University of Victoria's basketball Vikings hit a new plateau for the season Friday night, boosting their scoring total to three figures for the first time during an exhibition doubleheader at the Gordon Head campus.

They hit the century mark on the nose as they bombed Olympic College of Bremerton 100-73 after managing only a slim, 44-40 lead at half time.

In the opening game of the twin bill, Victoria Chinooks of the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League had to hustle all the way to come out on the long end of the score in an 88-80 struggle with Centralia (Wash.) College.

Bill Carlson, with Vikings last season, rapped in 34 points, 22 of them in the second half, to help Chinooks surge ahead after trailing 36-32 at the half.

Glen Moffat fired 14 points for the juniors while Tobin Miller swished 28 and Don Bigler added 14 for Centralia.

Corky Jossul and Lohn Lauvaas were the big gunners for the Vikings, each finishing with 20 points as the Uvic crew hit 20 of 21 foul shots in the final half.

Steve Lusk paced Olympics with a 26-point effort.

Vikings return to the court tonight at 8 for a game against Centralia.

Scoring:

CENTRALIA (80) — Don Bigler 14, Tobin Miller 28, Ken Wastradowski 4, Larry Weld 8, Irv Reedy 4, Phil Aust, Steve Hatch, Marv Benson 12, Steve Roselli, Dan Greenwood, Jack Soliday 10, Ed Edwards.

The 'Traveller' in Spain Is Something Else Again

When Premier Bennett visited Spain last summer in an effort to promote tourist exchange between that country and British Columbia, and to interest Spanish businessmen in investment prospects in this province, officials in Madrid responded with alacrity.

Thirty B.C. newspaper, television, radio and travel agency representatives were invited on a 10-day, whirlwind tour of southern Spain as guests of the Spanish government, with transportation provided by Canadian Pacific Air Lines.

Among the visitors was Times City Editor Lloyd Baker, who reports on his experiences in words and pictures on this page.

Next spring a group from Spain will visit B.C.

ALL CAME RUNNING FOR GRACEFUL BLOODLESS DANCE

They call bullfighting an art.

But to a group of B.C. newsmen who went behind the scenes of the national pastime of Spain when they visited a ranch 40 miles north of Madrid recently, there is more of an art in the breeding of fighting bulls than in the fighting itself.

Because the bullfighting season there ends at the end of October, and most of Spain's matadors head for South America to follow their vocation, special arrangements were made for the Canadian visitors to see "the next best thing."

To some it was much more interesting than the actual fighting of bulls most of them had witnessed in Mexico rings.

The group was taken to an 1,800-acre ranch owned by Madrid hotelman Baltasa Iban, who flew in two young matadors from Malaga in southern Spain for the occasion.

Enclosed in sturdy brick fences with tremendous wrought-iron gates, the ranch contains a village of homes for its many hands, and is divided into large treed pastures, all fenced with mortared brick and natural rock.

Close to 600 head of fighting stock roam the fields.

Most have identification numbers, or marks, shaved into their black coats, and therein lies the key to the breeding of fighting bulls.

Through careful selection of male and female, breeding programs are followed to produce the most aggressive animals possible. Records are kept of types and character, and various unions are tried to improve the stock and maintain strong, fierce bloodlines.

Three 16 to 18-month-old heifers had been corralled for the visitors, their first time in confinement. And the matadors had been summoned to test them—to determine if they were worthy of being bred to produce bulls for the fighting rings which are found in all of the major centres of Spain.

Using nothing but their capes, the matadors took their places behind the wooden pallisades of the ranch's bricked ring.

Everyone from the farm was there, so keen are they in the production of brave bulls—even the servant girls from the main ranchhouse watched from the background, with attentiveness.

MATADOR GARCIA
. . . full of poise

One at a time, the heifers were released into the ring, and they all but exploded from the walled corrals in which they had been held after being brought from the freedom of the fields.

Fighting bull stock are leggy but heavy in neck and shoulder although light in the hindquarters. They have long noses and wicked horns, about eight inches long for these young females. Even the "girls" present a picture of wiry toughness, and in this test the two matadors took turns at inviting each animal to attack.

Little coaxing was necessary. One of the heifers was particularly wild, pawing the ground and giving out strange sounds before charging. Sometimes the animals made glancing contact with a matador but usually it was the outstretched cape fluttering before them that received those horns as man and beast "played."

They were fast-moving performances with animal wheeling and spinning in unison with the matador.

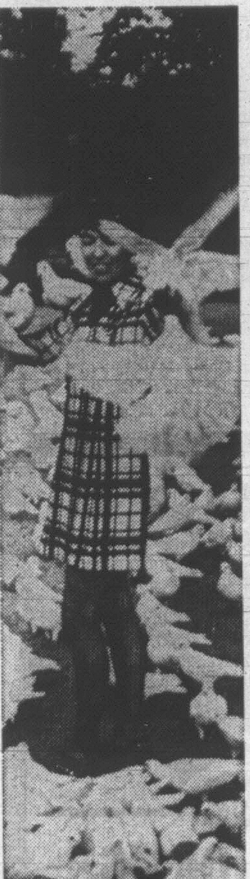
It was this bloodless dance that made the heifer testing more interesting than bullfighting for some of the viewers.

In a fight the odds are against the animal. Early in the performance the bull is wounded by picadors with lances, and the blood flows freely. This takes some of the starch out of him and makes life somewhat easier for the matador when the "moment of truth" arrives.

Coaxing the animal to make one final charge, the matador steps nimbly to one side and plunges his curved steel sword down through the crest of the animal's neck and into the heart. Sometimes death is slow arriving which makes it painful for all concerned.

It's a closer match in the heifer testing and the strutting grace of the matador is much easier to appreciate.

The two who "danced" this day, Antonio Garcia and Gabriel de la Casa, displayed great poise in their rugged routines which resulted, by the way, in all three of the heifers winning top marks as prospective mothers.



Pretty Vancouver travel writer Vivian Elliott is overwhelmed by the white pigeons of Seville. This was the only spot visitors saw any form of begging. Pigeons are encouraged to do so with an attendant nearby scattering grain.

Spanish eyes are sparkling across the Atlantic 3,500 miles towards Canada with growing friendliness.

They are giving us a come-hither look.

The jet-century is responsible. A few thousand miles are not much more than a skip and a jump these days, and with direct hops between the two countries now easy to make, travel is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Close to 55,000 Canadians visited Spain last year. Our identity there has been established. And the Spaniards would like to see more of us.

It is not only the 28 million vacation dollars Canadians spent there in the last 12 months. The proud, and somewhat reserved people of Spain are showing a genuine interest, perhaps fondness, towards the visitor from the land of the Americas which is not American — that once unknown country now on the move.

Their questions about Canada reveal this feeling. They ask about our background and history, our ways of life, our size and growth.

They appreciate our interest in their rich mixture of culture, which shows in the grandeur of their museums, cathedrals, and palaces.

Many Treasures

They show with deep pride their restoraton of centuries-old edifices in all parts of the land which hold treasures of every description and tell the history of Spain in fascinating manner. Months could be spent delving into the past through these monuments.

At the same time, there is fascination for the visitor in modern Spain, which some of us might have regarded as a slow-moving, down-trodden land of quaint villages and underprivileged people.

To the contrary, Spain is a happy country, ultra-modern in many respects, where proverty is not evident to any great degree. There is a huge working class in the 32,000,000 population which "never had it so good."

This has come about in recent years with an obvious mellowing of the dictatorship of Gen. Francisco Franco who was not always the "benevolent one."

There are still deep pockets of poverty, but the word is that they are being emptied gradually.

Most workers have a small car, motorcycle or scooter. TV aerials sprout from almost every roof top. You see happiness and contentment in all corners — on the wide streets of downtown Madrid (3,000,000 population) in the cobble-stoned squares of Seville (850,000), in the olive groves of ancient Cordoba.

There are no signs of hunger. Medicare and even denticare are not new to the masses. The welfare of the people would appear to be assured.

Contentment shows, too, in the treatment afforded the traveller. The word "traveller," incidentally, is preferred over "tourist." One of the Spanish ministry of information guide books has a forthright explanation:

"Mere" Tourist

"You may be a tourist to the ministry of finance or the ministry of commerce which look upon you as a vital part of an industry — with one eye on your pocket and the other on the balance of payments. But for the Spanish people as a whole you are not a mere tourist.

"The mere tourist is normally a gentleman, or a lady, who gives more than he or she receives.

"The person who is simply a tourist may enter Spain, but Spain does not enter him; he slithers across our bull-hide of a country (see the shape of Spain on a map, the guide book advises) untouched himself by pleasure or pain.

"We get the impression that he returns whence he came minus a few banknotes, but with the same degree of impermeability as when he set out.

Statistic Only

"This kind of tourist hardly interests a Spaniard, except perhaps for statistical reasons."

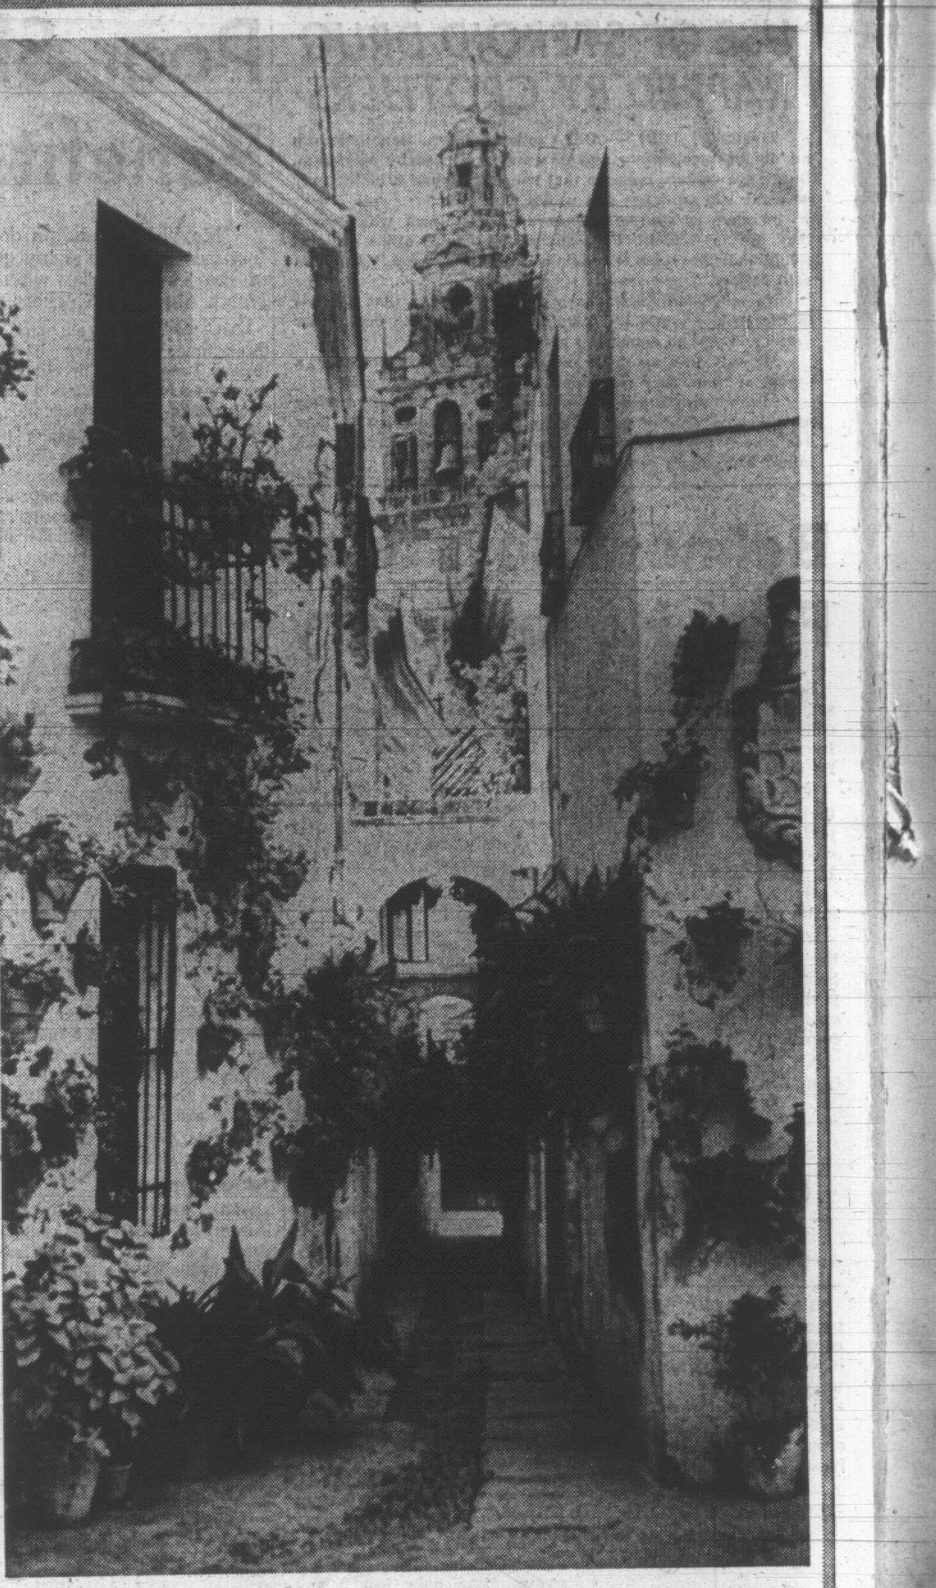
But the "traveller" is something else again, the explanaton continues.

"He brings eyes as well as camera; he has questions to ask as well as a guidebook to brandish; he has a human curiosity as well as a zest for museums; he longs for shade after the sun.

"This traveller, whom we Spaniards call 'forastero' (stranger) automatically becomes a friend."

And the guidebook concludes its little speech with, "Forastero is welcome because, although we shouldn't say it, Spain is a pretty warm and hospitable sort of place."

That it is . . . hospitality shows in a pleasant absence of glad-handing but rather a readiness to assist when help is sought and advice given when it is asked.



A mixture of architecture in the ornate spire of the Cathedral of Seville is accentuated by the clean lines of the flower bedecked exterior of homes in the foreground. This is typically Spain — a happy land of colorful variety. The favored flowers on those walls are geraniums.

There is no great problem with language particularly in the cities where there always seems to be someone close at hand with at least a smattering of English. In the villages and country a two-way dictionary can be useful. But sign language is quite effective in a land as warm as this.

Rather than the extremes of poverty and wealth that some countries show, the extremes here are of things ancient and modern.

Strange varieties of architecture in the centuries-old cathedrals and palaces catch your attention. The influence of the Moors, Arabs, Greeks and Romans can be seen throughout.

On the other hand, right beside the moorish towers of an ancient marbled-floor alcazar might be a glass-walled skyscraper borrowed from the sun-bleached shores of Florida.

Floating Coach

And approaching its canopied entrance, complete with uniformed doorman, is a gleaming tour-party coach, with washroom and bar at the rear, floating over the cobble-stoned street.

Around the corner, wending its way through a conglomeration of red-and-black cabs, private cars of every size (mostly small) and description (some three-wheelers, some propane-powered) bicycles, tricycles, motorbikes and scooters (sidecar and solo) comes a donkey cart.

The cart is loaded high with freshly-cut cauliflower to be sold at the entrance of a church where the congregation soon will be dispersing after mass.

Some of the church-goers will carry their purchase to the nearby wineshop where a variety of refreshment awaits to help them on their homeward way.

Two Together

The wines of Spain are excellent, and great quantities are consumed—but always with food. Seldom is drunkenness seen.

There don't appear to be large numbers of police and the impression many travellers have before they reach Spain that foreigners in particular are watched closely and dealt with severely for the slightest misdemeanor doesn't appear to be justified.

Many different uniforms are seen. Most colorful is that of the civil guard with black, patent-leather flat-back hat.

The animals of Spain appear well-fed. Donkeys and mules are numerous. They work in the fields, hauling and cultivating and they are used in pack trains often seen on the median of a speed highway or the centre of a country road.

Mountain Groves

The olive groves of the south extend for miles over hilly slopes and right into mountainous terrain. The sandy soil in which they grow is kept well cultivated.

It is estimated Spain has 220,000,000 olive trees and more are being planted with an eye to the future. The trees don't mature until they are about 25 year old when their crops begin to pay off. Olives and the oil they produce make up a large part of the economy. They are one of Canada's imports.

Current state of trade between the two countries is favorable to Canada. In 1967 Canada's trade with Spain totalled $40,000,000 while Spain sold us $17,000,000 in olives, almonds, sherry, canned fruit and some manufactured products such as shoes and textiles.

Cows, Airplanes

Our sales to Spain include base metals, non-ferrous metals, dairy cattle (Holsteins), asbestos, lumber pulp and, for the first time recently, Caribou transport aircraft.

The balance of tourist travel is one-sided although the Canadian embassy is endeavoring to encourage Spaniards to visit Canada.

National Film Board productions are shown, CBC extension programs are used and various exhibits of Canadian art and crafts have been displayed to generate interest in Canada.

Embassy information officer Claude Chatillon of Ottawa is optimistic: "We were late starters. But we are bound to expand."

Another embassy official, commercial counsellor Leopold (Paul) Campeau, also sees a greater degree of "togetherness" coming between the two countries.

There is a "certain amount" of interest being shown by Canadians, in investment in Spain where the government offers "various incentives" to get foreign capital. At the same time Spain is looking to Canada more and more for goods and services to buy.

Dollars Go Far

And speaking of buying, the value of the Canadian dollar is high in Spanish pesetas. One of them buys between 60 and 70 units of the basic currency which is more than enough for a full-course top-rate meal.

Prices in Spain are not as low as they were a few years ago, but you still can travel the land for $12 to $15 a day in package tours which include hotels, meals and transportation.

This, as well as the novelty of the country and the attractions offered, is one of the reasons so many Canadians are holidaying there.

How long it can last is anyone's guess. . . .

Place in the Sun For Revered Wonders of History

Reach out in any direction in Spain and you touch history.

The past comes to life in many ways. There is great beauty in art, engineering and architecture of long ago which the Spaniards have preserved and restored.

At Granada, near the southern coast, an Arabic Alhambra Palace situated on a hilltop is considered one of the wonders of Europe. Construction began under Mohamed V in the early 13th century. Other rulers made their additions. Its cathedral was erected in memory of the end of the reconquest of Spain in 1523.

The Royal Chapel of the cathedral contains the remains of Isabella and Fernando of Christopher Columbus patronage.

And the tomb of Columbus himself, consisting of a large casket carried high by carved figures larger than life-size, makes an imposing sight in one of the 54 chapels that make up the cathedral of Seville northwest of Gibraltar.

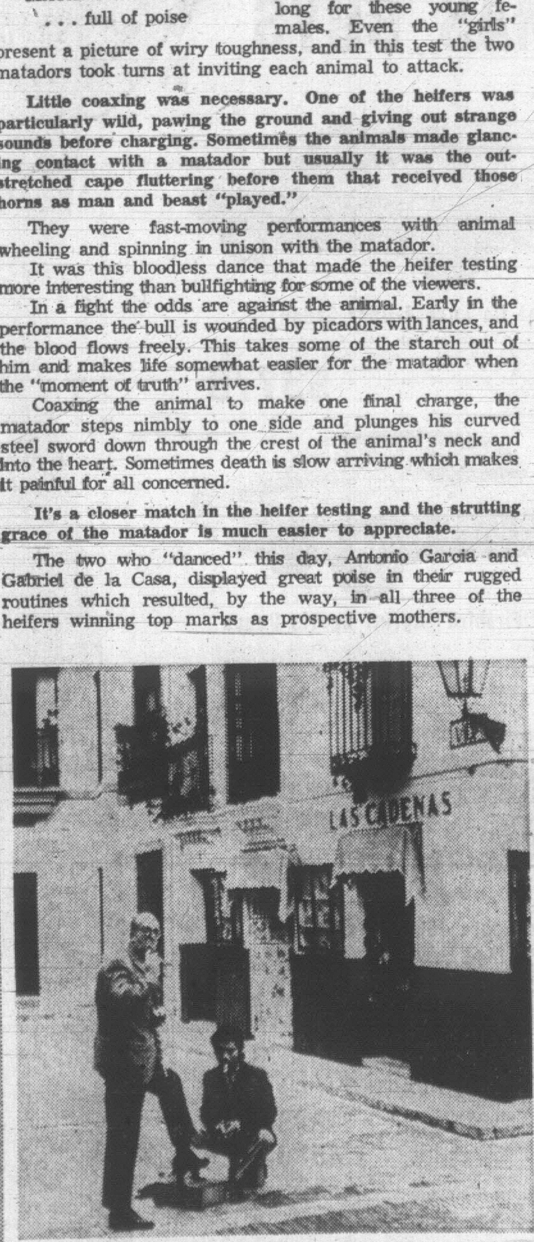
The Seville cathedral is part of an alcazar which was first a palace of Arab rulers and later of the Catholic Kings. The exterior resembles a fortress of the Middle Ages while the interior and the gardens are typically Arabic.

Malaga on the shores of the Mediterranean almost due south of Madrid is deeply etched with character from the days of the Phoenicians, Greeks and Romans who held it in succession.

One of the oldest Mediterranean ports, Malaga is famous for its sweet wines. And it is fast becoming one of Spain's most popular tourist resort centres.

Toledo, a short distance southwest of Madrid, is one of Spain's most ancient cities, and boasts of treasures accumulated for more than 20 centuries. A walled city, as are many in Spain, Toledo was known as Toletum by the Romans. It later was a seat of Goth kings. And the Arabs also left their mark on the architecture and general atmosphere of the city.

To the south again, east and slightly north of Seville, is Cordoba which, perhaps, has the greatest character of any city in all of Andalucia. Its narrow streets reflect a melancholy which the people tell you comes from the days of Arab occupation. The melancholy was deep. Arab domination ended in the year 1236.



Fresh, crisp appearance of shopping-apartment areas of Spanish cities impressed Canadian visitors, so much so that Fred Barnes of Victoria felt the need to "spruce up" in Cordoba square. A roving shoe-shine boy quickly responded.

IT'S STILL LAND OF NOD IN AFTERNOON

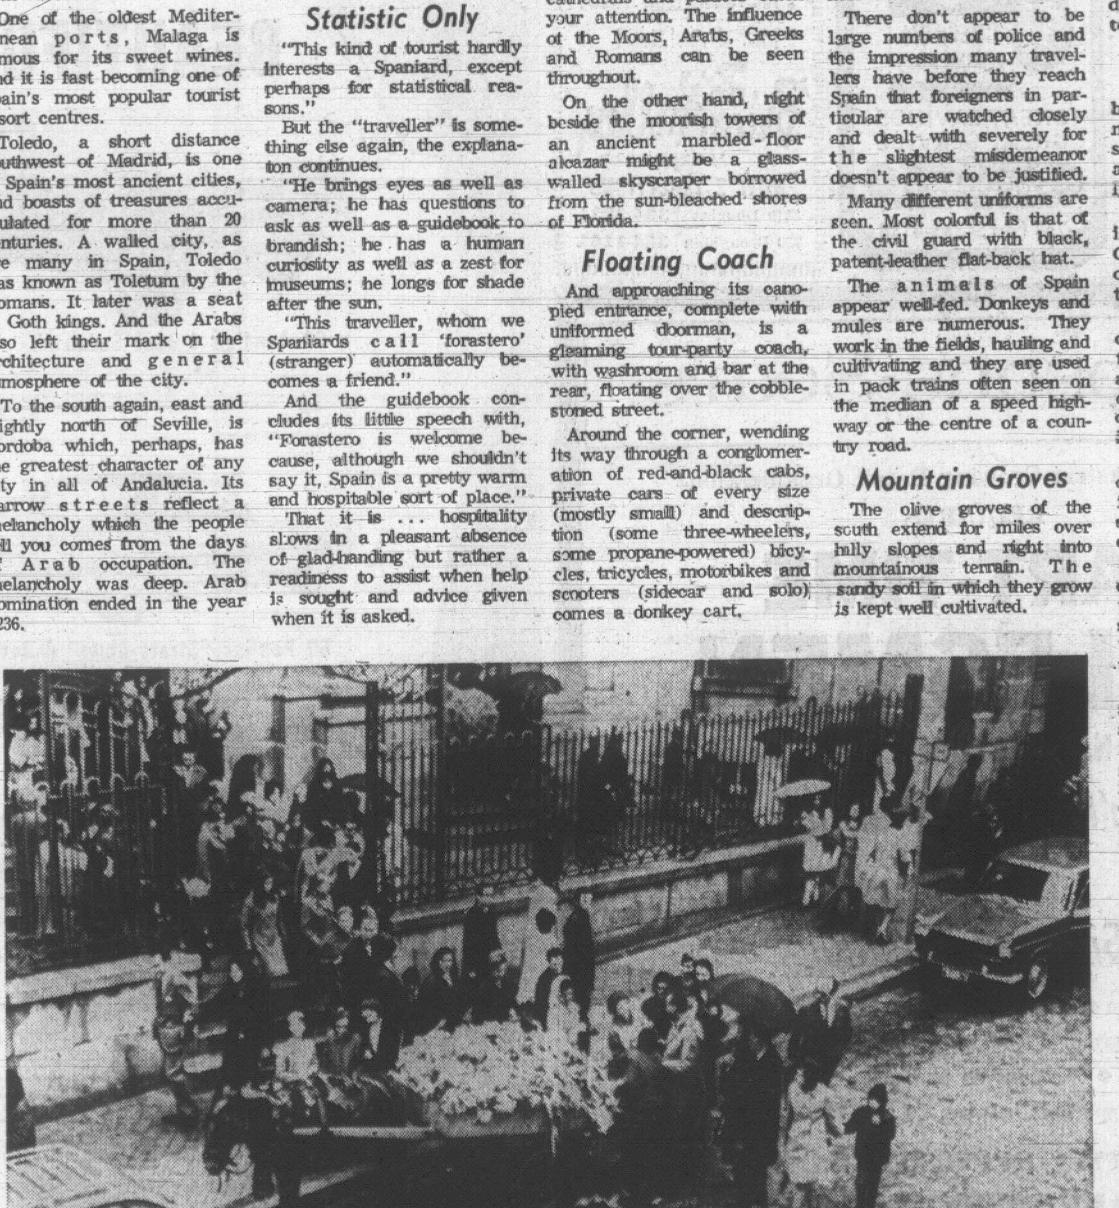
Spaniards laugh at the thought of sleeping a solid eight hours at night.

It's just not their way.

Theirs is the land of siesta where, even in a metropolis the size of Madrid, stores and businesses shut down between 1 and 4 each afternoon, and an hour or two of sleep is enjoyed.

It is not a question of mid-afternoon heat, or laziness. It's a question of necessity.

Dinner is served at 10 or 11 p.m. and might last a couple of hours which makes night-time bed-time rather late. Yet the day starts early. That afternoon nap looks more inviting by the minute.



The old-and-the-new is the story of Spain, and is typified in this picture taken in the heart of Madrid. Surrounded by modern cars, and fashionably-dressed church-goers, a donkey cart driver sells cauliflower fresh from the farm, ignoring the fact that down the street is a flourishing, modern supermarket. The scene is repeated in many different ways throughout the country.

Celebrating 65 Years as Priest

Father Boniface, one of the Franciscan Fathers of Victoria, will celebrate 65 years of priesthood by conducting high mass in St. Andrew's Cathedral Friday, Dec. 20, at 7:30 p.m.

Participating in the mass will be Bishop Remi De Roo, Rev. Thomas More MacDonald, superior of St. Joseph's Friary; Monsignor Michael O'Connell, Rev. M. J. McNamara, Rev. Paul Monahan, Rev. John Forrest and priests from southern Vancouver Island parishes.

★ ★ ★

Father Boniface celebrated his 88th birthday Friday at St. Joseph's Franciscan Friary, 1076 Joan Crescent, where he has lived for the past seven years. He was entertained at a private luncheon given by Father MacDonald.

Born in West Germany on Dec. 6, 1880, he studied in England and Germany before entering the Franciscan Order at Amiens, France, on Nov. 1, 1902.

Because of the harsh anticlerical laws enacted by the French government, religious orders were expelled from the country and Father Boniface returned to England to complete his novitiate training.

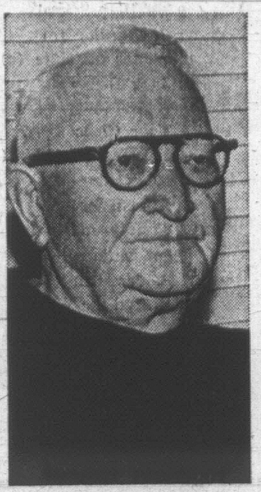
★ ★ ★

He made his holy profession in London on Nov. 4, 1903.

After profession, he was sent to Rome's International College at San Antonio where he took philosophy and theology.

Subsequently he was invited to join the Thuringian province of St. Elisabeth, Fulda, Germany. Later he volunteered for the foreign missions service in Canada and arrived in Quebec City in October, 1905.

After ordination in 1908, he was sent to the Northwest Territories. En route west, he spent a few months with the Polish Franciscans at Pulaski, Wisconsin.



FATHER BONIFACE
. . . long service

He left Pulaski early in 1909 to join the Franciscan friars at Lamoureux, Alta., and then North Edmonton, where he supervised construction of the first Franciscan monastery and church.

He served as a missionary among the homesteaders and as mission preacher in various parts of Alberta. Many Franciscan and diocesan priests were introduced to the religious life by Father Boniface.

★ ★ ★

One year he brought 27 aspirants to the priesthood at the Franciscan Monastery at Edmonton.

In 1927 he was sent to Vancouver where he resided until 1961. During that time he organized the building of St. Francis Church, its school and convent, and raised the funds to pay for it.

He founded the parish of St. Francis in 1936 and was its pastor for 25 years. He resigned in 1961 and was transferred to St. Joseph's Friary, Victoria.

★ ★ ★

So it is that Father Boniface has spent 60 years of his priesthood in Western Canada—19 years in Edmonton, 34 years in Vancouver, seven years in Victoria.

The Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria will give a luncheon in his honor at the Dominion Hotel on Friday, Dec. 20, at 12:30 p.m.

There will be presentations by Bishop Remi De Roo and Rev. John Forrest, OFM, Provincial.

City Churches Planning Bible Sunday Sermons

This Sunday will be observed in many Victoria churches as Bible Sunday.

"On this day we ask for recognition of the role of the scriptures in the life of the individual Christian and the church," says F. J. Martens, Victoria representative of the Canadian Bible Society.

"It is also the day when all have an opportunity to contribute to the society and its work of translation, publication and distribution of the Bible."

In St. Matthias Anglican Church, 600 Richmond, at 11 a.m., Canon Jack Rogers will discuss the passing authority of the Bible in modern society.

"In earlier times the Bible was accepted as the supreme authority," he said. "Today that authority has been challenged, but it is still man's expression of his encounter with God and we must study it in that light."

★ ★ ★

A Study in Contrasts is the topic chosen by Rev. E. W. MacQuarrie for his sermons in both Garden City and Wilkinson Road United churches.

The choir at the 10 a.m. Garden City service will sing There Is Room For Me.

Anthem at the 11:15 a.m. service at Wilkinson Road will be Good Tidings of Great Joy.

★ ★ ★

Metropolitan United will hold its traditional nativity pageant at the 11 a.m. worship, with more than 75 children participating.

There will be music by the Junior Choir, conducted by Mrs. W. H. Gleeson, and the second Advent candle symbolizing Peace will be lit by Gena Barrie and Peter Grabowski.

White gifts for distribution among needy families in Greater Victoria will be presented by members of the congregation and the church school. Parcels of clothing will be sent to Korea and Hong Kong and to Indians and Eskimos in northern British Columbia.

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton's United Community Fund campaign ended three per cent short of its $1,688,540 target, Frank G. Anderson, general campaign chairman, has reported. John E. Barry, fund chairman, said the $1,636,320 collected was seven per cent over the 1967 campaign total.

Victoria Seventh-Day Adventists today launched a campaign to raise funds for 190 countries.

"They are donating their time as well as contributing financially to the appeal," says Pastor John Mustard.

Last year, he said, the church aided more than 8,000,000 persons throughout the world, distributed more than 11,000,000 articles of clothing and contributed $4,200,000 in food and cash to the church's welfare program.

Pastor Mustard said Adventists operate 135 hospitals and sanitariums and 170 dispensaries and clinics which treated more than 4,000,000 persons in 1967.

Mrs. Dolly Jewkes is in charge of Victoria Community Welfare Centre, 1117 Blanshard, one of 27 centres operated by the church in B.C.

During the past year, she said, the centre has helped more than 1,150 people in Victoria by distributing 6,918 articles of clothing, hundreds of food hampers and all kinds of bedding, including 65 quilts.

Anglicans, UC To Swap Pulpits

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

Anglican and United Church clergymen throughout Vancouver Island will swap pulpits during January.

On Sunday, Jan. 12, Anglican clergy will preach in United churches; on Sunday, Jan. 19, United churchmen will preach in Anglican churches. All will speak on the subject of union between the two.

On each Sunday the absent clergy will be replaced in their own pulpits by assistant ministers and guest preachers.

The exchange of pulpits was approved this week by both churches on the recommendation of a joint committee of 10 comprising five Anglican and five United Church ministers.

Co-chairmen of the committee are Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Cathedral and Rev. Harry Kerley of Fairfield United.

"In view of the proposed union between the two churches, we are seeking practical ways of learning more about each other," Dean Whitlow said.

"And we believe this exchange of pulpits throughout Vancouver Island will be an important step in that direction."

Mr. Kerley said the exchange will be on a voluntary basis, but it is hoped all Anglican and United clergy on Vancouver Island will co-operate.

"If there is full co-operation, more than 100 churches throughout the Island will be involved in this joint effort.

"It is a continuing effort and the committee is exploring other methods of inter-church co-operation."

Dean Whitlow said it was decided to have the clergy visit each other's churches on separate Sundays so that the resident minister could conduct the service and hear the sermon.

"In this case, no exchange of congregations is intended and normal family services will be held on both Sundays. We are concentrating on the morning service because more people go to church in the morning than in the evening."

The recommendation by the joint church committee had to be approved by the synod of the Anglican church and the presbytery of the United Church.

As part of the exchange, Canon Jack Rogers of St. Matthias Anglican Church will preach in Fairfield United on Jan. 12; Mr. Kerley will preach in Fairfield United Jan. 19.

Dean Whitlow will preach in Metropolitan United Jan. 12; Rev. Albert E. King of Metropolitan will take the pulpit at Christ Church Cathedral Jan. 19.

LAMBETH QUOTES

Quotes from the Lambeth Conference:

- Force can conquer countries, but cannot conquer hearts. Money can buy servants, but cannot make disciples.
- Propaganda and stunts can produce superficial admirers, but cannot create loyalty.
- Technology and science can reach the stars and replace failing hearts in human bodies, but cannot create love or bring about a change of heart in sinful men. This is the task entrusted to Jesus Christ.—H. Dehqani-Tafti, Bishop in Iran.
- The difference between a groove and a grave is solely one of depth.—H. L. J. De Mel, Metropolitan of India.
- No one wants untrained troops. Anglicans pay lip service to training, but in fact it has generally stopped by the age of 15. We need a Christian education explosion comparable to that in the secular world.
- Man's instinct for prayer corresponds to God's fatherly care for his creation, even though man does not always recognize that this is so. Deep concern and gratitude are the raw materials of prayer; and every man has a capacity for silence and contemplation.

His Church Something Else So Council Slaps Taxes On

By ED GOULD

NORTH COWICHAN — Is a building with a spire on top a church and therefore exempt from municipal taxes?

That was the question presented to North Cowichan district council this week when George E. Turner asked for exemption from taxes for his Church of Jesus Christ on Norcross Road and Trans-Canada highway.

"I am absolutely at a loss to understand the legality of taxing a church," Mr. Turner said in a letter to council.

Mr. Turner's "church" has been a source of curiosity to residents and visitors for several years because it has never been the scene of a regular church service, has never been dedicated as a church, has never had a wedding, a funeral, or rung to the sound of a choir.

After inheriting some money, Mr. Turner built the church using only the finest of materials available. Some were even sent to him from abroad. But North Cowichan districts wants its more than $200 in tax money because the building isn't in use as a church.

OPERATIVE WORD

The operative word in the act that covers this sort of thing is "used" Alderman George Whittaker said.

"I spent most of an evening going over the pertinent legislation to see if Mr. Turner's building could possibly fit into the category of church, but it doesn't appear to."

Mr. Turner said he had to mortgage the building every three years to pay the taxes and had only his pension to live on and make repayment. He also stated that the building was not finished — it has no heating system or bathroom facilities — and therefore should not be taxed as a finished building.

CHURCH GROUP

Mayor D. C. Morton suggested Mr. Turner be informed that by leasing his building to a church group such as the Salvation Army his problem might be solved.

"Many people already resent churches being tax-exempt without including half-finished churches in that category,—" he said.

"We should tell Mr. Turner the council is not in a position to rule on what constitutes a church and is therefore exempt and let Ottawa make the decision," Mr. Wittaker said.

MEN WITHOUT HOMES GET YULETIDE FEAST

A Christmas dinner for men without a home will be served in Victoria Salvation Army social centre, 521 Johnson Street, Monday at 12 noon.

"Any men in the Greater Victoria area who are without a home and in need are welcome," said Brigadier Cecil Bonar, superintendent.

"Our job is to make Chirstmas brighter for everyone."

Sally Ann workers are preparing to supply Christmas hampers of food to more than 300 needy families in the Greater Victoria area.

And the League of Mercy, a volunteer group of Salvationists, will be taking treats to patients who will spend the Christmas season in hospitals, nursing homes and senior citizens' residences.

The Army's benevolence also extends to men and women who will be spending Christmas in prison.

"All these endeavors are made possible by the many people who give to our Christmas Cheer Fund," Brigadier Bonar said.

The Army's traditional Christmas kettle will appear outside Victoria general post office Tuesday and on many Victoria streets from then until Christmas.

Persons wishing to help the fund may place their donations in the kettle or mail them direct to the Salvation Army Christmas Fund, 769 Pandora Avenue.

Distress Centre on Trinity St. Keeps Desperate From Suicide

TORONTO (CP)—There's a telephone in Toronto that rang 6,200 times during the last 12 months. Each call was a matter of life and death.

The phone at the Distress Centre on Trinity Square is manned by 70 volunteers who rotate during the night hours, sleeping on the premises, waiting for a call.

They are there to listen to problems that have overcome anyone contemplating suicide. They do not give advice or treatment.

The director is Gordon Winch, a United Church minister who formerly headed the Alcohol Information Centre.

The centre has just celebrated its first anniversary with an open house.

"People who are this deeply depressed need someone they can talk to," Mr. Winch said in an interview. "Many people, when faced with a crisis, cannot talk to their friends about it, or sit across the desk from an unknown face. However, they can relate to an anonymous voice."

It costs about $25,000 a year to rent the house, run the telephones and pay two staff workers. The money comes from the United and Anglican churches, the city of Toronto, and the Alcoholic and Drug Addiction Research Foundation.

The volunteers are mostly housewives, students, nurses, businessmen and some retired persons.

READY TO JUMP

One volunteer said only about 25 per cent of the callers really feel suicide is the only answer. The others, lonely and depressed, haven't yet thought of suicide as the only alternative, but are heading in that direction.

Less than 50 per cent of those who call the centre call again, but some phone frequently.

One girl in her 20s, who gave the name Sarah, called to say she was going to jump onto the subway track. The volunteer, listening to Sarah, could hear a subway train in the background.

She told Sarah to get into a taxi and come to the centre. Sarah arrived with a razor blade in her pocket. But she accepted the volunteer's suggestion that she enter a psychiatric clinic.

She still calls the centre when she gets depressed.

"A suicidal feeling is temporary," Mr. Winch said. "Sometimes all we can do is encourage people to talk, to try to get it out of their system and assure them there is someone who is very deeply concerned about how they feel."

Colorful Tour In West Indies

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent (UPI) — The native Carib Indians fought desperately for nearly 200 years to drive European colonizers from this Caribbean island they called Hairoun, or Home of the Blessed.

It wasn't until the late 18th century that the British crushed all resistance and deported the surviving 5,000 Indians to an island off Central America.

But, in spite of the march of progress in the almost 200 years since, it doesn't take long for the visitor to agree this Windward Island colony in the British West Indies was aptly named by its original inhabitants.

We paid our first visit to St. Vincent, which lies about 100 miles west of Barbadoes, during a 14-day, seven-port cruise aboard North German Lloyd's luxury liner Europa. The Europa served as our floating hotel-resort throughout, providing accommodations, meals and entertainment in port as well as at sea.

FERTILE SOIL

St. Vincent is blessed with densely forested mountains, picturesque valleys, scores of rivers and streams, and extremely fertile soil. Tropical flowers, fruits and vegetables grown in wild profusion and the surrounding waters teem with varieties of fish and other seafood.

The island is blessed, too, by friendly islanders, most of whom are descendants of African Negro slaves, with a sprinkling of East Indians, Portuguese and Britons. Not one, young or old, failed to stop whatever they were doing to wave at our car of sightseers.

We toured the island with Roddy M. Grant, chairman of the St. Vincent Tourist Board as our guide. Grant's Scot forebears were among the early settlers and he speaks English with the musical lilt of the Caribbean. English is the official language here although most of the islanders speak a patois among themselves.

NARROW ROADS

Most of the roads are narrow and winding and traffic keeps to the left so Americans would be well advised to hire a local driver-guide for sighseeing tours.

Our tour took us to picturesque fishing villages, where nets dried in the sun and seller and buyer haggled over the price of still-wriggling fish of all colors of the rainbow, and sleepy hamlets in the interior where naked children romped outside of wooden, tin-roofed cabins and chickens and goats roamed freely. A few thatched huts still remain but Brant said they would be replaced by more modern housing in 1969, alas.

YOUNG AND OLD

We stopped to watch, and take pictures after obtaining permission, of young and old toting water buckets and other heavy burdens on their heads and women and girls doing the family wash in rivers and streams just as their ancestors did, by beating the clothes against rocks.

We drove also through the Yambour Pass into the Mesopotamia Valley, site of the Caribs' last stand against the British in the 1790s, and through valleys and foothills dotted with terraced farms and clearings flourishing with fruits and vegetables.

Capt. Bligh of Bounty fame brought the first breadfruit trees to St. Vincent on his second, more successful voyage.

Leave Mini at Home

LONDON (Reuters) — The world is shrinking for travellers in mini-skirts.

As a result of a ban on minis that came into force in Iraq Dec. 1, a girl now will have to lengthen her skirt or stay out of virtually the entire Arab world.

Many African nations also bar the mini-skirt but penalties and condemnation vary in strength.

A good place for the mini-girl to keep away from is the Malagasy Republic, where she risks 10 days in jail or deportation. By official decree, all girls over the age of 10 must have skirts down to the middle of the knee.

In Malawi, too, foreigners who show too much leg are liable to deportation "before they corrupt the morals of the local population."

Throughout the Middle East, bans are in force and official feelings run as high as the skirts.

In Cairo, a mini can lead to a charge of indecent behavior under a ban introduced after two girls caused a two-hour traffic jam in the centre of the city.

In Swaziland, the fashion is frowned on but it is in order to go topless as that is considered in keeping with national custom.

INTERVENTION

In Zambia the government had to intervene, though it disapproved of the fashion, to protect girls who were being attacked by youths who forcibly lengthened the hems of any offenders.

There are official bans in Gabon, Borneo and Kuwait.

But it took Brazil to show just how dangerous the situation is. A 63-year-old man was jailed for three days there recently for biting a girl on the thigh when she crossed her legs in a bus.

The courts were also on the side of the girls recently in Rio, where a customs officer was charged with indecent and insulting behavior for staring at a long-legged airline employee.

"The skirt was so short, I just couldn't help it," he told the judge.

Indian Fate 'Up to Indian' Talks Decide

A Brentwood delegate was optimistic Friday after an Ottawa conference of native Indians with Prime Minister Trudeau.

"I think we were quite in agreement the answers lie with the Indian people themselves," said Philip Paul, 35, chief of the Tsartlip band.

CHIEF PAUL
. . . at Ottawa

Mr. Paul, president of the Vancouver Island Tribal Federation, said the prime minister told the new national Indian organization he is counting on them to advise him how best to tackle their problems.

In a telephone interview, Mr. Paul said the meeting provided "an exchange of ideas on where we are going, where the Indian people fit into the 'just society'."

The prime minister agreed there are "no set solution."

There were 25 delegates from 10 provincial Indian bodies at the founding convention of the National Indian Brotherhood. Guy Williams of Richmond, president of the B.C. Native Brotherhood, also was present.

'HISTORIC'

Successful establishment of a national Indian movement and the meeting with Mr. Trudeau were described as "historic" by Mr. Paul, who holds rank of chief.

An earlier attempt to form a national group failed through lack of strong provincial organizations, he said, but Indians have solid groups in each province now.

Formation of the brotherhood has opened a number of doors and delegates met several cabinet ministers.

"The prime minister said that this type of communication as far as he is concerned must continue."

One of the main items on the convention's agenda was a constitution which was approved by delegates and now returns for provincial study before being adopted at another convention next May.

One of the major complaints the brotherhood voiced, and is still voicing, is government failure to consult with Indians before the Indian Affairs Department was reorganized recently.

Indians want the department's powers decentralized to the regional and band level, said Mr. Paul.

DUNCAN MAN NAMED TO INSTRUCT INDIANS

DUNCAN—The Indian Affairs department has asked a local community development worker to conduct a workshop in the Northwest Territories during January and February.

George Manuel, 47, will travel to the Mackenzie River area to organize sessions in a number of specified Indian communities. The three or four-day sessions will emphasize cultural development, community services and community leadership, Mr. Manuel said.

Rural Television Improvement Asked

GOLD RIVER — Installation of a second micro-wave station to improve TV reception at Gold River was proposed at a meeting here by H. Cahill of Telesis Development Co. Ltd.

Mr. Cahill said he would approach the Canadian Radio and Television Commission to see if he could get a licence to instal the second station.

The meeting was held to discuss cable television service to Gold River. Mr. Cahill invited subscribers to discuss the present quality of the service.

A ballot was taken to determine whether subscribers are prepared to pay an increased monthly rental to improve reception. Of the 40 people who voted, 34 were in favor.

Town To Buy Incinerator

NORTH COWICHAN — Council agreed in principle Wednesday to purchase an Australian-built incinerator as a first step towards eliminating the use of garbage dumps through the municipality.

Cost would be about $57,000 and would be the first such incinerator to be purchased on Vancouver Island. Several are presently in use by commercial concerns in Vancouver.

The subject of similar incinerators has been discussed by Cowichan Valley Regional District board and a survey is currently under way by a committee.

Half-Century Farmers Feted On Salt Spring

GANGES — Bill Palmer and Frank Stevens who have each farmed here more than half a century have been presented with long service awards by Salt Spring Island Farmers' Institute.

Presentation was made by L. W. Johnson, superintendent of farmers' institutes.

Mr. Stevens has been a member of the organization for 43 years and Mr. Palmer admitted only that he had been "a member for considerably longer than that."

Chairman George Heinekey said he wished that Bill Evans, island veterinarian and dog-raiser who died last month, could have been present for a similar long service award.

Special mention was made at the meeting of W. M. Mouat who was written of in institute minutes for 1906 and who was active in the institute's first fair on the island in 1896.

Grit Greats Converging On Riding

DUNCAN —The big guns are coming west in January, Liberal byelection candidate Eric Winch said in an interview Friday.

Mr. Winch said Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis all have indicated they will visit Nanaimo-Cowichan-the Islands riding soon.

A fund-raising dinner is expected to be held in Nanaimo on Jan. 25. "This should end once and for all the rumor that the Liberals have no need to raise money for campaigning," he said.

Len Marchand, the young Indian member of Parliament for Kamloops who upset Conservative Davie Fulton, also is expected to make an appearance somteime during the campaign.

Mr. Winch welcomed the entry of Conservative Dr. Magnus Verbrugge into the Feb. 10 byelection race.

"However, he is an outsider like Tommy Douglas (NDP candidate) and I feel that anyone who represents this area should be a bone-fide resident."

TWO-WAY RACE

He still thought the byelection would be "a two-party race." Mr. Winch, a Nanaimo magistrate, said Tommy Douglas "is running principally to advance the interests of the NDP.

"I support the Liberal party and feel I can do a better and more responsible job than someone whose interests lie elsewhere."

Mr. Winch made his remarks at an informal gathering to welcome Veterans Affairs Minister Jean Eudes Dube, who stopped on his way to Nanaimo from Victoria, where he spoke with Royal Canadian Legion representatives.

Mr. Dube said he didn't consider the byelection here a test of strength for the Liberals or a mirror to reflect whatever Trudeaumania may still exist.

"Byelections are usually very much a personality race," he said. "I know that because I once ran and lost against a strong one in Restigouche."

A recent Gallup Poll that showed 52 per cent of Canadians still favored their selection of the Liberal government is an indication that Mr. Trudeau's image is as bright as ever," he said.

All Ages At Rally

More than 1,000 Jehovah's Witnesses assembled in S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School Friday night for a three-day convention.

The Witnesses represent 13 congregations between Ladysmith and Victoria and are of all ages.

Laurier Saumur, district supervisor for British Columbia, said "Following the pattern set down in the Bible, we encourage a warm association of people of all ages. In this way the young benefit from the maturity and wisdom of their elders, while the elders enjoy the enthusiasm and energy of the young."

In his opening address, Mr. Saumur said Witnesses have a sense of urgency regarding their mission to preach the gospel all over the world.

Highlight of the convention is a public meeting in the S. J. Willis auditorium Saturday at 3 p.m., when Mr. Saumur will speak on God's Way Is Love.

Mr. Saumur and his wife, Yvette, who are from Quebec, will spend two weeks in Victoria before moving to another assembly location in B.C.

Legion Guards Vets' Hospital

The federal government should continue to maintain chronic care and domiciliary hospitals for veterans.

This stand was taken by the Royal Canadian Legion in its exploratory discussions here Friday with Veterans Affairs Minister J. E. Dube on the question of turning over veterans' hospitals to civilian administration.

TOM CLEMENTS
. . . leads fight

The Legion, represented by senior officials from national, provincial and local bodies, was strongly opposed to the Department of Veterans Affairs turning over chronic care cases to civilian hospitals.

It was the major issue raised at the meeting.

Legion officials said the Legion is "not happy" with the care of chronic-domiciliary cases by hospitals which have already taken over this service from DVA.

This has been done in two eastern provinces.

"Care and treatment of these patients is a federal responsibility," said Robert Kohaly, national president.

PROBLEMS SEEN

Mr. Kohaly said the Legion preferred DVA facilities, but realized at the same time there were problems in maintaining veterans' hospitals as isolated units.

"We agree that veterans requiring active treatments should receive the best available in modern medical facilities," he said.

The minister's view is that acute-care cases would be better served in civilian hospitals because they were better staffed with doctors and with modern facilities.

Tom Clements, Legion zone commander, said plans for transfer of a veterans' hospital in Toronto four years ago have not worked out. A contract calling for 400 extra beds as the patients were switched to the University of Toronto hospital, has not been honored.

He said the fear is that many veterans will lose what is their only home—the veterans' hospital.

NEED GROWING?

By 1985 there will be a greater need for domiciliary care as the next generation of veterans from the Second World War reach the age when they require nursing care. They should not be deprived of what veterans have had in the past, Mr. Clements said.

Legion officials also asked for immediate action to update the 20-year-old veterans' hospital in Victoria.

Mr. Clements said the hospital needed more beds and modern facilities.

"No major improvements have been carried out to the hospital since it was built," he said. "There are 10,000 veterans in this zone and present facilities are inadequate to look after their needs."

Mr. Clements said the problem of veterans' hospitals is a serious one for British Columbia because of the heavy influx of veterans from eastern Canada into the province.

BELOW STANDARD

All parties, including the Agnew Peckham Report, have agreed the veterans hospital is below standards for sanitary facilities and room space.

David Groos, Liberal MP who organized Thursday's meeting, said officials had left no doubt of the views of local legionaries in the mind of the minister.

Among Legion officers who took part in the discussions were David Hunter, Pacific Command president; Jim Mayzes, Pacific Command executive officer; D. McLennan, provincial secretary; Rev. Bert Harris, first vice-president of Pacific Command and chairman of the hospital committee; Tom Harris, deputy zone commander and W. Stewart, zone secretary.

Positions Solidified On Disarmament Issue

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN debate on disarmament has been like an iceberg—more has been going on beneath the surface than could be seen in general discussion.

Now, with the weeks-long debate in the General Assembly's political and security committee coming to an end, positions have solidified and resolutions are coming to public notice.

The term disarmament covers an enormous field, all the way from nuclear missiles to germ warfare. The more obvious aspects of it have been heard in open debate, such as repeated calls for Soviet-United States talks on strategic arms limitation and demands for the end of nuclear weapons tests.

But on the scene and behind it there has been a running series of debates that boil down to some smaller powers wanting a piece of the action in controlling peaceful uses of nuclear material and in negotiations on nuclear disarmament.

In this they are pitted against the Big Three nuclear powers—Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union, and some of their allies.

The basic premise of some smaller nations is that they have not yet been sufficiently assured by the Big Three that countries which renounced nuclear weapons will be protected in the event of nuclear attack.

And some seek more in the way of assistance in peaceful uses of nuclear energy from the big powers.

SEE FUTURE BENEFITS

Some of the smaller powers see enormous benefits coming from such things as peaceful nuclear explosions. These could move mountains, dig wells, even build a new Panama Canal.

One informed Western source has called this "pie in the sky."

A U.S. spokesman said this week that no prediction can be made on when nuclear explosions can be used safely and effectively for peaceful purposes, although research is continuing.

To get into the disarmament and nuclear energy picture, smaller countries have proposed creation of a new UN committee or the reconstituting of an old one.

The Big Three and their allies, including Canada, have fought this.

For the moment the major powers would like to see disarmament kept before the 18-nation disarmament committee, through which the treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons—the so-called non-proliferation treaty—was approved earlier this year. Canada is a member of that committee.

The big powers feel that large-scale meetings on disarmament at this time would hamper the collecting of signatures on the non-proliferation treaty. So far 82 countries have signed the treaty but few have ratified it. The non-signatories include some countries which are in the technological position to manufacture nuclear weapons.

FURTHER DEMANDS LIKELY

To some another large-scale disarmament conference after the General Assembly adjourns this month will give these countries a chance to demand more concessions from the big powers in exchange for their signatures.

On the question of peaceful uses of atomic energy the big powers say there are enough agencies already in existence to deal with this, in particular the International Atomic Energy Commission.

Six countries, Argentina, Chile, Brazil, Italy, Yugoslavia and Pakistan, now have tabled a resolution calling for a meeting of the long-dormant United Nations Disarmament Commission either before July, 1969, or after next year's session of the General Assembly and before March, 1970. India, Mexico and Japan are reported to have assisted in drafting the resolution.

The commission is made up of all 126 members of the UN and thus its meeting would be a continuation of the debate now before the General Assembly committee. It has not met since 1965 when it handed an 18-nation committee the job of working on a non-proliferation treaty.

This resolution hardly saw the light of day Thursday when Bulgaria and Hungary put out another.

And both resolutions follow a Dutch-Austrian resolution, co-sponsored by Canada and others, that suggests that the next General Assembly consider the question of convening the commission.

The Bulgarian-Hungarian resolution virtually repeats the operative portions of the Dutch-Austrian resolution but drops all mention of the 126-nation commission, thereby opposing the reconstitution of it.

REQUEST EXPERT STUDY

Both request that Secretary-General U Thant appoint a group of experts to prepare a full report on possible contributions of nuclear technology to the economic and scientific advancement of developing countries.

Britain and the United States had been reported ready to support the Dutch-Austrian resolution.

On the question of security the Big Three have pledged that they will take "immediate action" through the Security Council in the event of a nuclear attack on a nation that has renounced nuclear weapons.

To some countries this is not enough. They say the Security Council may not be able to act fast enough.

Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's disarmament negotiator, gave these powers one answer this week: Why not go back to the Security Council and set out what they think the nuclear powers should do in order to give them "satisfactory assurances for their security?"

Thus Burns was answering calls for conferences of new committees or the 126-nation commission to discuss matters of security.

It is expected the whole matter may be decided by Monday or Tuesday.

Repair Charges Termed 'Absurd'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Automobile Dealers Association testified at the Senate's car repair hearings that "nothing could be farther from the truth" than charges that repairs are made improperly to 99 cars out of 100.

Association president Tom A. Williams Sr., a Chevrolet dealer in Greensboro, N.C., termed the accusations "so absurd that they'll fall of their own weight."

"If these allegations were absolute fact," the nation's new-car dealers "would be tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail," he told the Senate anti-trust subcommittee.

Williams was replying to testimony on Tuesday by Glenn F. Kriegel of Denver about more than 3,000 cars that were checked on his diagnostic lane, sent out for repairs (done mainly at new-car dealerships of the customers' choice) and then rechecked. Kriegel said that on no more than 50 cars did the repairs — if made at all — meet the manufacturers' specifications.

However, Williams stopped far short of claiming perfection. He cited an association survey of 10,000 car owners "in which 64 per cent of the respondents said our service work was completed satisfactorily the first time."

'POOR SERVICE'

In response to questions about the remaining 36 per cent, Williams acknowledged to Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), the subcommittee chairman, that "a good many . . . did get poor service." But, he added, in many other cases, the problem was of a kind that often can't be diagnosed the first time — rain leaks and rattles, for example.

In other developments in the final session of the first round of hearings, which will resume next year:

● Williams said it has been "pretty well proven" that mechanical defects cause accidents only rarely. But Hart cited a survey of 14,000 turnpike accidents in 1966 that attributed five per cent to defective tires, three per cent to defective brakes and three per cent to mechanical defects.

● Raising the question why "any Michigan politician in his right mind" would undertake hearings deeply involving the largest industry in his state — and the nation — Hart said it would be "irresponsible even if more popular to ignore the fact that we are spending 20-odd billion dollars every year" on auto repair and maintenance."

Reservists Given Pay Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — New wage schedules giving Canadian armed forces reserves average pay increases of 25 per cent were announced Friday by the national defence department.

The new rates range from $5.20 a day for private—up $1.07—to $41 a day for a colonel—up $8.53.

To qualify for a day's pay, reservists must attend two complete, afternoon or evening training periods. They are also paid for temporary staff duty or for courses.

The announcement said the new rates reflect re-defined tasks for the reserves in various categories of duty and training.

Members on full-time duty are paid regular force rates.

Rankings, followed by old and new daily rates: private $4.13—$5.20; corporal $7.57—$9.10; sergeant $9.17—$11.60; warrant officer $10.27—$12.20; master warrant officer $11.57—$14.20; chief warrant officer $12.77—$16.90.

Second lieutenant $8.33—$9.50; lieutenant $11.53—$14.40; captain $15.10—$19.00; major $20.00—$26.20; lieutenant-colonel $25.47—$31.60; colonel $32.47—$41.00.

Just often enough to remind us that not even the banana belt is immune to winter, we are visited by a peculiarly nasty freak of weather.

Late Thursday afternoon, a thin slush coated many Saanich Peninsula roads and streets. By early evening, this mixture of rain and snow was hardening into the murderous phenomenon we call black ice.

In strict accuracy, the stuff isn't black. But because of its treachery, and the ebony shine it lays on travelled surfaces, this clear, very hard glaze deserves the title.

Under- tire, it all but destroys traction as any number of luckless drivers can testify. One touch of extra pressure on brake or gas pedal, and fishtailing or a wicked skid may result.

The worst thing about it is that you never know when you're going to come on it. Black ice tends to be patchy, and where one area may offer safe footing, another can be dangerously slick.

How should one drive on it?

"Take it very easy," a highways department expert advises, "and use your gears to slow down. Avoid rapid starts, stops, or changes of direction."

As for the underpinning your car should have, the department has found chains still the best traction-providers under all winter conditions. Studded snow-tires will hold better than those lacking studs; but if you can possibly manage it, the best insurance against black ice is to keep off it.

To Mrs. B. Hall of "Cedar Chines" at Cobble Hill, thanks for telling me about a J. R. R. Tolkien book I'd missed.

"You are wrong," Mrs. Hall writes. "You should start with The Hobbit, then you get the complete story of Mr. Bilbo Baggins' travels to which the Lord of the Ring books are sequels. Aren't they fascinating?"

This one of numerous Tolkien fans goes on to point out that the mails are much less cluttered with unsolicited advertising since the six-cent rate went into effect.

"Might you and some of your readers want to join in my crusade to Stamp Out Garbage Mail?" she enquires. "The bit is to stuff it all into the inevitable postage-paid envelope enclosed and send it back from whence it came."

And you know what happens then? After the merest breathing space, along comes another deluge of high-colored persuasions from the same sources.

Maybe better just to ignore it!

The first artificial Christmas trees to hit a December market were pretty crude affairs. But as you may have noticed, some startlingly good imitations are now available.

String them with lights, tinsel and decorations, and the best of them could almost pass for the authentic article.

The artificial is symmetrical . . . no bare spots along its trunk to mar its green pyramid.

Also, it is fire-resistant to a high degree, which can't be said of a natural tree that has reached the needle-shedding stage. No need to buy a new one every year, either. You just disassemble trunk and limbs, and store until the season to be jolly comes again.

But this doesn't mean we plan to get one, except perhaps as a minor supplement to an honest-to-goodness evergreen with the proper forest smell.

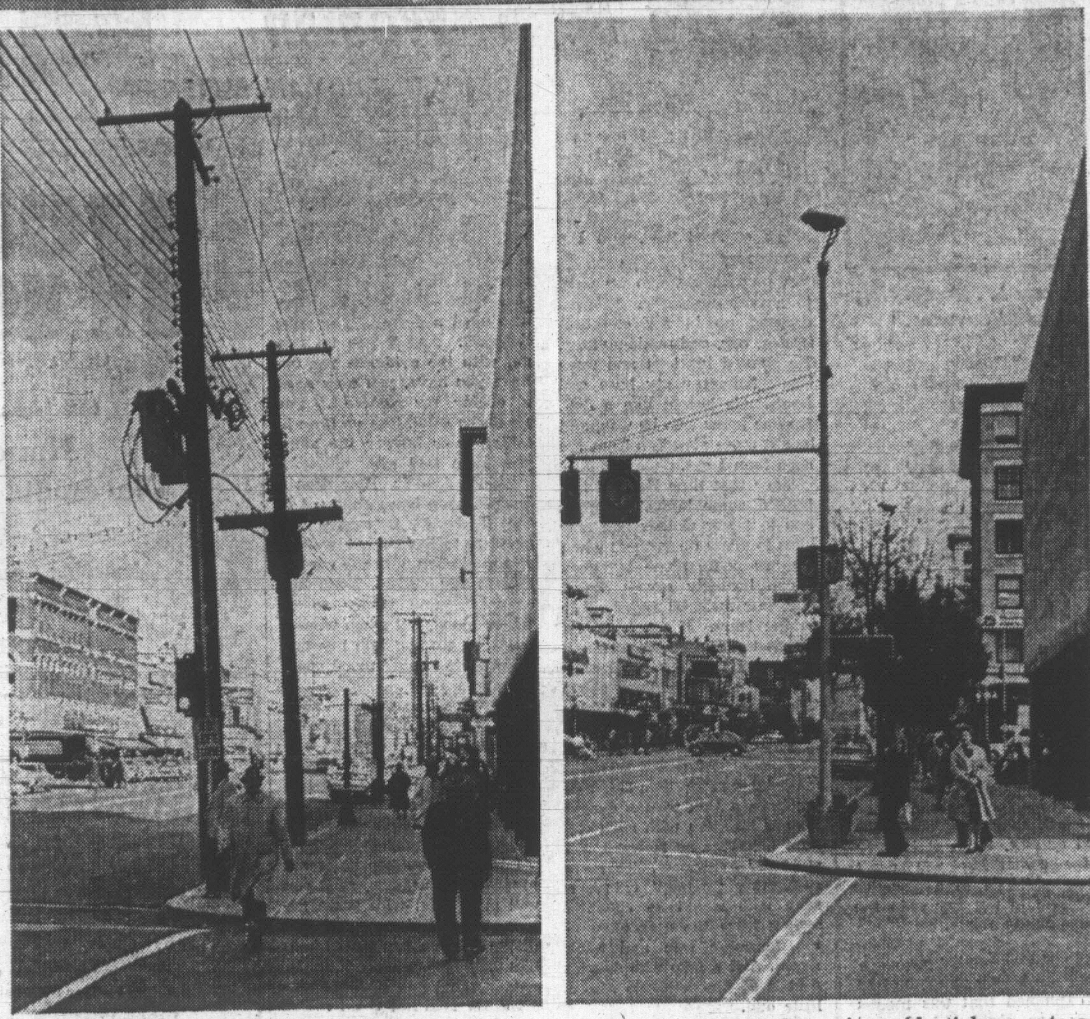
Christmas-tree cutting is forbidden on Crown land, and you can't take a tree from private property without written permission.

But the stands will be doing business as usual, and choosing a scented fir, balsam or pine from a street-corner forest is next best to chopping it.

Service Station For Servicemen?

Inclusion of an automotive service station as part of the Canadian armed forces retail sales outlet here is being considered along with similar stations for defence personnel on bases elsewhere.

A service spokesman at CFB Esquimalt said no decision had been reached as far as the local Canex operation is concerned.



SPIDER WEB WIRING which once hung over Victoria downtown area was removed in a 30-block area 10 years ago and city took on a new look. The idea that overhead wiring is for the birds is being pushed now in residential areas to a greater degree, especially in Saanich. Pictures above were taken at Fort looking north on Douglas, before and after burial process.

Saanich Assumes Leadership In 'Underground Movement'

By JIM HUME

Saanich is the only municipality in the Greater Victoria area making positive progress in getting power and telephone lines underground.

Assistant municipal engineer John Cowlin says at least 50 per cent of the new subdivisions created in Saanich have complete underground services.

"The municipality does all it can to encourage underground services for new developments," he said.

"The cost for the installation of those services is borne by B.C. Hydro, the developer and the municipality via a local improvement bylaw. The assessment is made to the properties benefiting."

Underground services in Saanich include power, telephone and cable television.

"The telephone and cable TV lines are installed when the power cable goes underground," Mr. Cowlin said.

The assistant engineer added that he felt Saanich is the only municipality encouraging underground wiring as a local improvement.

●

In the city progress is being made to get services underground, but slowly.

The downtown core already has its services beneath road and sidewalk surfaces and B.C. Telephone Co. recently announced it will budget $500,000 in 1969 towards underground wiring installation, mainly in an expansion of the area now served by underground services.

At Hillside and Shelbourne the new Simpsons-Sears shopping centre also will be served by underground wiring.

But there still will be the usual jungle of wires leading to the complex.

Preliminary plans call for all services in the new Rose-Blanshard urban renewal area to be underground, but city manager Dennis Young said this week that financial problems had arisen.

"We are still very hopeful that all services will be underground," he said. "But at this stage we can't be positive about it. B.C. Hydro have the matter under active discussion and will hopefully be coming up with an answer once they know what power demands there will be in the area."

Hydro says it can't make a positive decision until contractors return design and construction proposals in early January.

If services do go underground the cost will be shared by Hydro and the three-way partnership comprised of federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

With the installation of underground hydro lines, telephone and cable TV lines will also be below the surface.

William Jorgenson, assistant city engineer, said the power lines are the main problem.

●

"If they go underground it is relatively simple to install underground telephone lines at the same time," he said. "And as cable TV leases telephone conduit space it automatically goes underground at the same time."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said he is not aware of any immediate target areas in the city to push for underground wiring at present.

"The big effort has been in the core where services are now underground," he said. "I'm not making excuses, but it is a far more difficult problem in an established area of the community than it is in an area like Saanich where new areas are being opened up.

"I think it's fairly obvious that a municipality is in far better shape when it is subdividing land for primary development. You have the opportunity then to do things the way you want them done."

●

Mr. Jorgensen said he is not aware of any definite Hydro plans to place power lines underground in any new areas of the city.

"They have carried out certain tests and I know they have a fairly forward looking program for the area surrounding the urban renewal area," he said. "But just how far along they are I can't say."

Hydro officials said they had no definite plans for underground services development in Victoria.

And they added that the final decision on whether the services for the Rose-Blanshard area go underground would have to be made by city authorities. They stressed, however, that they too are "hopeful" the services will be underground.

Death Cause Studied In Autopsy

A post mortem has been ordered to decide whether a retired Victoria businessman died Friday from a fall of bricks at a demolition site, or suffered a heart attack.

Phil Mattison, 75, of 2717 Belmont, was found by his son, William, surrounded by a pile of bricks at the partially-demolished Summer Auction Hall, 731 Cormorant, at about 6 p.m.

Mr. Mattison was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital. Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ordered a post mortem.

The building is being demolished by the firm of Mattison and Patterson in which William Mattison is a partner.

52 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Mattison celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Dec. 25, 1966. They were married at Edmonton, Alta., in 1916 and moved to Victoria two years ago.

Mr. Mattison is survived by the widow, Luella; his son, William, 3421 Bonair Place; two daughters, Mrs. William (Shirley) Borden, Vista, California, and Mrs. James (Mary) Tuckwell, San Marcos, California; and two brothers, Thomas, Penticton, and Morris, Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Sands Mortuary Ltd.

Adult Students Taking Over?

More adults will attend evening courses this fall and winter than there are high school students in Greater Victoria.

School board policy making classrooms available to adults in the evening has paid off, Jack Dalgleish, director of adult education, said Friday.

Already over 7,000 are taking part in non-credit vocational and non-vocational courses which run from 10 to 12 weeks. Another 1,517 are taking academic subjects full or part-time at the Institute of Adult Studies, he added.

"This 30 per cent increase will put the number of adults attending some night school activity well over the 11,700 day school students at our secondary schools."

Since September, 170 courses have been added to the original 450. To be advertised in The Times Monday, they range from the Japanese language to Chinese cooking.

A new boating course prepared by the B.C. Safety Council and the transport department will cover boating language, rules of the road and small boat handling.

New courses have also been added to the business and technical vocational sections.

Human Rights In Spotlight

Tuesday has been proclaimed Human Rights Day by the B.C. government.

This is in recognition of the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations.

In a proclamation the government urges everyone to reduce tension caused by discrimination and to promote better understanding among all people.

Fee Agreement Coming Soon, Say Dentists

By JOHN SLINGER

The province's dentists and the B.C. welfare department are on the verge of reaching an agreement in their five-month fee hassle, it was learned today.

The dispute over payment for welfare dental work has left most of the province's welfare recipients with only emergency care.

The province has been paying 57 per cent of the dentists' fee schedule. The 700-member association has demanded 90 per cent, which is considered the normal payment and is what the province's medical doctors receive for welfare work.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver, Dr. J. F. Reid, the association's president, said "it looks like something is going to break within a week or 10 days."

He was "really confident" an agreement would be reached soon.

GETTING CLOSER

Members of the association's executive have been meeting with Welfare Minister Dan Campbell and other department officials and while some details are still to be ironed out, "we're getting closer together," Dr. Reid said.

Asked whether they were getting closer together on a 90-per cent payment, Dr. Reid said "we haven't arrived at a figure yet.

"We're trying to work our way up to something more amenable to the dental profession."

Mr. Campbell is out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Victoria Family and Children's Service has been paying up to 33 per cent of fees to local dentists who do work on welfare children.

This additional payment on an unknown number of cases brings welfare payments to the 90 per cent dentists want.

LOCAL DECISION.

The decision to do this was made by the local agency's own board of directors. It is believed that Greater Victoria is the only area in the province where this extra payment is available.

A welfare source said money to make the payments comes from provincial grants to the local agency earmarked for child maintenance.

The provincial department is aware of the local action, but is officially ignoring it while negotiations continue with the dentists.

Asked for comment, Dr. Reid said "It is a sticky wicket."

Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service, would say only:

"The board of directors of the agency became aware of the degree to which a lack of continuing dental care was harming the children for which it is responsible and authorized payment in those situations where care was needed."

Mr. Campbell has said he wants the dental profession to prepare an administrative scheme to handle denticare.

He said the province is not prepared to put in its own dental insurance program, but wants to be ready if dental benefits are added to the existing Canadian medical care insurance program.

WIDOWMAKER PUTS LOGGER IN HOSPITAL

A Langford man is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken leg, broken nose and head cuts received in a logging accident Friday.

John Baxter, 27, was falling a snag for Pat Carson Contracting about 14 miles west of Shawnigan Lake when the top broke off and hit him. Loggers refer to falling pieces of trees as "widowmakers."

"He was fortunate to get away without more serious injuries," said Mr. Carson. "It could have been much worse."

Mr. Baxter, who lives on Neill Road in Langford, is married and has two children.

4-Year Term For Hold-Ups

A sentence of four years in the penitentiary was imposed on Gerald Vesterfelt, 33, of 643 John, who pleaded guilty Friday to the armed robbery of two grocery stores in October.

His companion, Gerhardus Overwater, 19, of 2630 Deville, who pleaded guilty today to holding up one of the stores, was remanded until Monday for a pre-sentence report.

Vesterfelt was arrested early Friday after investigation of the hold-ups by city detectives.

City detective Richard Ward said Vesterfelt asked a friend to take him from his house down Oak Bay Avenue Oct. 5. When they arrived at John's Grocery in the 1800 block the car was stopped and Vesterfelt entered the store and pointed a CO2 pellet gun at Harry Woo saying "I want your money."

He then fled in the car with $100 taken from the cash register till, Det. Ward said. The other man was not told what happened until they reached the city centre.

SECOND CASE

In the second robbery Det. Ward said the accused and Overwater drove to the Cedar Hill Store, 1400 Hillside, on Oct. 19. Prior to setting out they arranged to take silk stockings with them and the CO2 gun.

Both of them entered the store with the stockings over their faces he said, and the accused pointed the gun at elderly Yee Ngai who was told to lie on the floor. A bag was filled with $20 from the till and some packages of cigarettes and they left the store.

The loot was split between the two men, Det. Ward said.

Crown prosecutor Cory Stolte said Vesterfelt had a criminal record including two convictions in Ontario for theft and false pretences in 1962 and 1963 and one conviction in Alberta in 1966 for car theft.

NO VIOLENCE

Mr. Stolte said no violence was used in the robberies but they were situations where violence and death were not far away.

He said there had been a number of such incidents lately and they should be discouraged as strongly as possible.

Magistrate William Ostler said he concurred with the prosecutor's opinion and that "this sort of banditry will not be tolerated in this area."

V.I. Roads Hazardous

Road conditions between Victoria and Nanaimo vary from wet to icy and probably won't improve during the weekend.

Reports from Duncan, Ladysmith, Chemainus and Cowichan Lake say freezing rain combined with some snow have made driving conditions hazardous.

The weatherman said there is little chance of icy roads in the Victoria area this weekend, but showers are expected today and Sunday.

"The forecast low temperature here is 37 degrees,' 'he said, "so we shouldn't get any snow or freezing."

He added that driving conditions may get poorer on the Malahat and higher elevations where the temperature could drop as low as 28 degrees.

Inquest Monday

A coroner's inquest into the traffic deaths of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Burnell-Higgs of Finlayson Arm Road, killed in a head-on crash on Millstream road Thursday night will be held at Chaplin's Mortuary Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Donald Rabbitts, 1938 Trans-Canada Highway, identified by Colwood RCMP as the driver of a pickup truck involved in the accident, has pleaded not guilty to impaired driving.

BREAKDOWN DISRUPTS FERRY TRIPS

Ferry service between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen was slowed Friday night when two B.C. ferries had to do the job of three.

A spokesman for B.C. Ferries said today the Sechelt Queen, returning between Tsawwassen and Salt Spring Island, "experienced mechanical difficulties." Its run had to be taken over by the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries.

The regular ferries on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run made two stops at Salt Spring Island to deliver Salt Spring traffic from both the mainland and Victoria.

The Sechelt Queen is back in operation today.

SAFE DRIVING WEEK GRIM SEVEN DAYS

Pedestrian Week Next Area Test

With Safe Driving Week ending today, Greater Victoria and District Safety Council now plans to give attention to safe walking.

Pedestrian Safety Week will be observed here Dec. 15 to 21.

But council officials will be keeping their fingers crossed.

Victoria is emerging from national Safe Driving Week with one of the worst weekly experiences in all Canada — three persons dead.

There were only two other road deaths throughout the province. There were 35 in all of Canada at presstime. Saskatchewan, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island had no road deaths during the period.

Nova Scotia had three, New Brunswick two, Quebec 10, Ontario 12, Albert two and Manitoba one.

Last year 81 Canadians died in Safe Driving Week indicating vast improvement — but not of course, in Victoria.

First annual Pedestrian Safety Week gives this district a fresh page.

Safety council president Peter Pollen says that during the first eight months of 1968 three pedestrians were killed and 82 injured. In all of 1967 there were seven killed and 123 injured.

"Courtesy, care and common sense," are the key to safe walking in a modern city, says Mr. Pollen.

He urged walkers to cross streets only at corners or crosswalks and to remember that they can stop faster than a car. Don't step out expecting a car to stop. It might not.

Cars are becoming quieter, you must watch more carefully. Watch also for drivers who fail to signal turns. Don't walk from between parked cars. Wear something light in color at night.

Where there is no sidewalk, walk on the left, facing oncoming traffic.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Timepieces Cross The Iron Curtain

By PENNY SAVER

Do bargains appear just before Christmas, or are shoppers more prone to finding them at this time? I am not talking about sales, which bloom all year round, but plain good buys. One of my neighbors came across a real bargain the other day and was generous enough to share her find with me.

Her son, you see, wants a watch more than anything. But he is still quite young and his parents don't want to buy him an expensive timepiece only to have it intercept a baseball or other hard object. On the other hand, they would like the watch they get him to be of good quality. Since it is very difficult to shop intelligently for something you don't understand, my neighbor took her problem to a jeweller friend who she knew wouldn't hesitate to put her onto the best deal he could even if it meant his losing a sale.

As it was, he had just the thing she wanted. These are watches from Russia. These watches are highly rated, he told her, and are fully jewelled. (He explained that this means that most have 17 jewels.) They are shock proof, and waterproof in the men's and nurses' styles. The best part is that they begin at $9.95 for both men's and women's watches. The most expensive watch in the line is $27.98 for a men's gold automatic 29-jewel watch with the date. The watches are available in both gold and white (which I think of as silver, but since it may be another metal I will stick to the jeweller's wording). The watches are ideal for youngsters as they are slightly smaller in the men's styles than most. The dials are clear and easy to read. The straps are for the most part of black leather, although some of the women's styles are available with cord bracelets. I am sure a matching metal bracelet could be bought to fit these watches. The nurses watch is the most expensive of the women's styles and is $18.95 in white.

Light Up A Tune

Years ago a friend of mine had a musical cigarette lighter. It was given to her as a gift but when she tried to buy one herself for another friend, she couldn't find one. As you may have guessed, I found some of these lighters the other day. They are $4.50 each. They are made of gold-colored metal and are slightly larger than the ordinary kind. The sides are decorated with vertical ribbing. The music box is wound with a permanently-attached key. When the lighter is flicked on it begins to play and continues until it finishes the tune. Three tunes are available: Moulin Rouge, Blue Danube and Anniversary Song. The whole lighter ensemble pulls out for filling (this is a fluid lighter) or replacing flints.

Seems like a long time since I've seen a glass soap-dish in use. I can however predict that there will soon be quite a few in the Victoria area. One store I visited ordered a selection of these attractive soap-dishes after a request from a customer who was redecorating. These dishes are roomy enough for any size bar being about five inches by four inches. The bottom is pebbled so the soap won't slip and the low sides are made with a triangular trellis pattern. These dishes are $2.95 each and come in milk glass or transparent olive green or turquoise blue.

If you would like to know where to shop for these items, please call 382-3131.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Husband Turns Out To Be a 'Woman'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Howard (made up name) and I are both 25, and have been married for three years. We've had no serious problems to speak of until now, and I'm not so sure this is one.

A few months ago we went to a costume party. Howard dressed up in my clothes—falsies, wig, and made-up face. He shaved his legs and wore black fishnet panty hose and heels. He looked like a doll. No one knew who he was, and he got more attention from the men than I got.

Since that time Howard has bought some ladies' lingeries and lounging clothes and now likes to dress up in them when we are home alone together. I can honestly say it hasn't hurt our maritial relationship in the least. If anything, he seems to be more relaxed and more romantically inclined.

I have mixed feelings about this. Should I worry as long as the rest of our marriage is normal?

HOWARD'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You had better have a talk with a doctor who is familiar with such off-beat behavior as Howard has suddenly evidenced. There is something "wrong" with a man who would so casually switch from the masculine to the feminine role and back again. And a wife who doesn't find it disconcerting is also a little odd.

DEAR ABBY: First of all, if you use my letter in your column, do not use my name, or mention the province from which I wrote.

My son who is now 12 has been smoking and chewing tobacco with his father's consent since he was five years old.

I know this seems incredible, but it is a heart-breaking reality.

We are country people, but our son goes to a "city" school. I never allowed the boy to have tobacco of any kind, and I kept close tabs on him. But his father, who is a very heavy tobacco user, used to give it to our son and help him deceive me.

Could you send me the names of several doctors who could testify as to the harm tobacco can do a growing boy? My son cannot keep up with the other boys in sports, complains that he is "tired" and his color is bad. I think tobacco is the cause of this. Some of my friends say that I have already lost the battle, but I am not giving up. Please give me what help you can.

STILL FIGHTING

DEAR STILL: If you believe that your husband has been encouraging your son since age 5 in the use of tobacco, you need a lawyer! You may also need a doctor. For your husband. And if you let this go, with the evidence you believe you have, you may need a doctor for yourself. For goodness sake, lose no time in telling your lawyer the story you have told me.

DEAR ABBY: How does a hostess keep her guests out of the kitchen? It makes me nervous to have other women in the kitchen with me when I am serving a meal. I am well organized and perfer to do things alone, but when women insist on coming into my tiny kitchen to "help" me, I could scream.

They don't even ask. They jump right up from the table when I get up to clear it, and they start collecting dishes and setting them in the kitchen every which way, and there is such a mess I become nervous and upset.

I have seen other hostesses in similar situations, so if you will print this, with some advice on how to keep people out of the kitchen you would help us all.

NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: You sound like one of those good-natured women who hasn't the courage to speak her mind. Better to build the snow fence before the blizzard hits. Make the announcement in advance that your kitchen in off limits, and you neither want nor need any help. If a guest starts to "help" you—tell her again. If you have to raise your voice a little, raise it. It's the only tone some people take seriously.

Dinner at Eight

The buffet supper to be served in the tea room of the Spencer Gallery during the Poinsettia Ball will be served at 8 p.m. not at midnight as previously announced by the conveners.

Business Man's Dream of a Trip

By PAT DUFOUR

Those who attended the Empress Hotel's smorgasbord on Thursday evening were treated to something quite special in the way of table decoration. Drawing admiring glances as the diners filed into the impressive dining room was a grouping of Greek architecture, centred around a miniature Venus de Milo that rivalled her illustrious original in beauty.

The Greek setting had been created by the hotel's pastry chef, George Wagner, and was masterfully executed in suet with a coating of salt to add sparkle and that snowy whiteness which is synonymous with the ancient marble statues and buildings of Greece.

The pastry chef deserves full marks for his artistry, but even artists need inspiration. His came from a business trip, taken not by him but by the hotel's former manager, Les Parkinson, who was recently appointed assistant to G. C. Burton, executive vice-president of Canadian Pacific Hotels.

Mr. Parkinson, whose headquarters are still at the Empress, at least until the hotel's $5,000,000 renovation project is completed (deadline is May 1), has just returned from a business trip for which many men would glady forfeit their next promotion. He was one of 160 who were on Canadian Pacific Air Lines' inaugural flight to Athens.

The new air service saw him leaving Toronto at 6 p.m., arriving at Rome on the next day at 9:30 a.m. and setting down at Athens at noon. Mr. Parkinson spent a week in Italy and another week in Greece. He's still enthusing over the land which most of us know only through school studies of the Peloponnesian War, made more palatable with fanciful doses of Greek mythology.

Mr. Parkinson has been in the hotel business for 39 years and has a keen eye for a well-run tourist business. He has nothing but praise for the Greeks' catering for visitors. "The hotels are good, prices on a par with ours, and the food is out of this world."

But it's the country itself which Mr. Parkinson feels is the most important attraction. "It's breathtaking in its beauty and awesome to walk through places like Delphi where ancient history was made."

One word of caution, though. If you're a confirmed beef-eater Greece is not for you.

"You find lots of veal, pork and fish served, a great deal of fowl too. Fresh fruit and cheese is offered everywhere but beef is almost non-existent. One of the big banquets I attended served turkey as its piece-de-resistance."

Tourists encounter no language problem in Greece. Mr. Parkinson reports he heard English being spoken everywhere, even in the villages.

If the country's buildings provide great contrasts, so do its people. "They're either very rich or very poor. There appears to be no middle-class."

A shortage of housing has resulted in a way of life that Mr. Parkinson found delightful.

"Everywhere you go you find coffee bars. Families live in crowded conditions so the men spend a great deal of time in their coffee bars chatting with their friends, while the women go about their household chores."

Another custom that intrigued Mr. Parkinson was the handling of "worry beads." He explains "You'd repeatedly see old men, sitting and talking, and pulling on strings of beads. I was told that these were worry beads and were used as a way to relieve tension."

Transportation, too, provides its contrasts. In the villages, donkeys are still the mode. In Athens and other cities, taxis honk by in droves, buses by the scores transport eager tourists, while fleets of luxury yachts lie moored in harbor basins, ready to be chartered at prices scaling down from $900 a day.

Tired businessmen visiting Greece for the first time find themselves envious of Greek working hours . . . 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. . . . hard to get ulcers on that kind of schedule.

I wonder why they need worry beads?

While the rest of the world has been spinning over the marriage of Greek millionaire Onassis to Mrs. Jackie Kennedy, Les Parkinson reports that Greece remains undisturbed. "I never heard a word about the marriage the whole time I was there."

Among those present at the buffet supper, which was held at the Joan Cresent home of Mrs. M. J. Anton, were Mrs. E. Albinet, mother of the regiment's commanding officer, Col. G. M. Urquhart; Mrs. William Rae, wife of the honorary lieutentant-colonel; Mrs. W. J. Mosedale, wife of the trustees chairman, and Mrs. D. R. Coell, wife of the former commanding officer. Mrs. N. Women Best at Losing Money

MONTREAL (CNW) — In spite of their reputations as household purchasing agents and custodians of the family purse, women are more careless about money than are men. They not only spend it faster, as men allege, but they also lose it in a greater variety of ways and in greater quantities than their men-folk do.

This interesting contribution to modern financial folklore is made in a survey conducted by Opinion Research Corporation, Princeton, N.J.

The survey disclosed that adult Americans lose cash at the rate of about two billion dollars per year.

In the year ended Feb. 1, 1968, for instance, 4,900,000 females reported or admitted losing cash compared to 2,800,000 males. Frequency loss among females is about 60 per cent higher than among men—approximately one woman in 12 is a cash loser, compared with one in 20 men.

Life Membership in BPW Federation Presented to Elizabeth Forbes

Miss Elizabeth Forbes was honored with life membership in the Canadian National Federation of Business and Professional Clubs at a recent dinner meeting.

The meeting included members of the Oak Bay, Sidney and Victoria Chapters of the Business and Professional Women's Club. Provincial crests on the dinner tables carried out the theme of National Night.

Miss Margaret Clay, past president of the Victoria club and past national president, presented Miss Forbes with a certificate of life membership on behalf of the Victoria club.

She outlined Miss Forbes' service to both the Victoria club, where she served as president, and to the National Federation in which she served four terms as first vice-president and was editor of the club magazine.

After Mrs. Barbara Miskiman, Victoria Club president, presented her with a life membership pin, Miss Forbes was given a standing ovation by the assembly.

Provincial president Miss Ruth Adams, acting on behalf of the board, presented Miss Forbes with an orchid corsage, a guest book from the Oak Bay Club and a rack for her souvenir teaspoon collection.

Congratulatory telegrams were read by Mrs. Kae Fleming.

Miss Forbes was guest speaker for the evening and, preceding the presentation, she gave a talk on National.

She traced the history of women's clubs from the early 1920s through the establishment of the first Business and Professional Women's clubs to the formation of the Canadian Federation in 1938.

Miss Forbes reviewed the growth and achievements of the National Federation, mentioning its part in various acts of Parliament passed to better the status of all gainfully-employed women.

She also reviewed the support the federation has given to the United Nations; the educational scholarships it has granted; the initiation of a "Careers Preview" program for graduating high school students and its yearly sponsorship of a group of Jordanian girls at a special commercial school.

Miss Forbes warned that the federation must not become complacent in its achievements and "passively accept" the status it has gained. The federation, she said, should think seriously of the "shape of things to come" as life as it is today could become obsolete in the future.

She said that National recognizes this need and has formed a long-range planning committee, whose report at the August National Convention was accepted in total.

Detachable Sideburns, Moustaches New Trend on Male Fashion Scene

MONTREAL — Businessmen will soon start wearing long-coated suits with Napoleon collars to the office.

Mrs. Katherine McGillivray of Montreal, the vivacious director of public relations and advertising for Allied Chemical Canada Ltd., made this prediction recently.

The occasion was the Kitchener-Waterloo Sales and Advertising Club's Mr. and Mrs. night at the Walper Hotel.

The Napoleon suit, she said, is just a part of the "sudden frenzy of high fashion" in men's clothing.

Mrs. McGillivray applauded the trend to more colorful men's clothing after what she described as a century of "incredible drabness."

The whole masculine sartorial scene has been "excruciatingly dull" for 100 years.

Men, she added, have been giving themselves a "pretty raw deal" by clinging to the so-called credo of good taste—the Bay Street business suit.

The speaker traced the history of men's clothing fashion setters from Beau Brummel, who introduced the classic style because he couldn't afford a rich man's dress, to Prime Minister Trudeau, who has done wonders for the leather and fur industries.

Western men, she said, have been subconsciously sad about their sartorial state of affairs in the business office and at social functions.

"They show it in their sports clothes on the beach and on the golf course."

With the introduction of the new look in men's clothing, she maintained there is no longer any need for them to remain sad.

Mrs. McGillivray on other subjects:

On youngsters: "They set the fashion trends and we pick them up, dust them down and call them high fashion. The Nehru suit is one example. It's passe so far as youngsters are concerned but respectable as all get out with the oldsters."

On long hair: "It's a marvellous symbol of a freer life. You can wear a moustache without protesting a thing. You can also buy detachable moustaches and sideburns for night wear and look your button-down Bay Street best during business hours."

On beards: "A well-trimmed beard can be a thing of beauty. It adds stature, dignity and authority to the man."

On turtleneck sweaters: "They're obviously here to stay and a step in the right direction. With a colorful dinner jacket, they're great."

On men wearing jewelry: "Jewelry is always a virility symbol."

On long sideburns: "They've done wonders for Paul Hellyer."

On Elvis Presley: "He narrowed his pants to the danger point and tightened everything he could tighten 10 years ago and got in trouble with the league of decency. He's one of the modern pioneers in fashion setting."

'Air Watch by NATO Fraught With Danger'

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet newspaper Pravda says that a new air watch by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the Mediterranean is a "typical provocation, fraught with danger."

Vladimir Yermakov, writing in the Communist party newspaper, says the air watch is a "violation of the norms of international law which provides for freedom of navigation in open seas in peacetime."

He says that the Naples-based service of NATO "threatens the security of the Mediterranean peoples."

The accusation comes after Pravda attacked the United States for sending two destroyers from the Mediterranean into the Black Sea for a five-day cruise beginning today.

A spokesman of the U.S. Navy European headquarters said "U.S. destroyers have in the past visited the Black Sea and we would expect this practice to continue."

He termed the venture "a routine voyage."

Since the 1967 Middle East War the Soviet Union has increased the number of its ships in the Mediterranean. It has proclaimed itself a Mediterranean power and said that the U.S. 6th Fleet threatens peace in the area.

PLANS TROOP EXERCISE

In addition to plans to send the two destroyers into the Black Sea, the U.S. next month will stage a major military exercise in West Germany only 20 miles from the Czechoslovak border in a new show of NATO strength.

The U.S. said the military exercise, using 12,000 troops, 3,500 airmen and 96 F-4 Phantom fighter-bombers, would be staged near Grafenwoehr, in Bavaria.

U.S. Defence Secretary Clark M. Clifford told NATO ministers in Brussels in November the exercise is being brought forward from a date later in 1969 to step up "the readiness of NATO."

The forces involved were withdrawn to the U.S. from West Germany in the summer.

Observers are inclined to treat the exercise as something of a "muscle-flexing" on the part of NATO following the Aug. 20 Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

U.S. administration sources refused to attach any motives to the Black Sea manoeuvres.

But observers speculated the U.S. might be engaging in a form of flag-waving support for the Romanians, who have been at odds with Russia in the past, and more recently over the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Summit Still In Talk Stage

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON (WP)—Plans for a Johnson-Kosygin summit meeting have yet to be firmed up for three reasons, officials said here Friday night.

First, President Johnson himself is represented as having reservations based on a feeling that western Europe might interpret such a meeting as a sign of American forgiveness for the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

•

However, Mr. Johnson very much wants to get the Soviet-American missile talks started and that would be the chief business for a summit. Other topics probably would be the Middle East and Vietnam but some officials feel this is not an opportune time for direct Soviet-American talks on those subjects, especially the Middle East.

Second, it appears that in discussing a possible summit with president-elect Nixon, the administration has suggested that Mr. Nixon send an observer. But as of Friday night, qualified sources said Mr. Nixon has yet to express a willingness to do so.

Other sources, however, said they thought the summit could go ahead as long as Mr. Nixon did not interpose an objection, something he also has not done. Robert Murphy has been acting as Mr. Nixon's intermediary in these discussions.

•

Third, there are conflicting reports of the Soviet attitude towards a meeting between Premier Kosygin and the American president who will leave office six weeks from Monday.

Some sources say that the Soviets have of late relaxed their previously strong desire for a summit. This has led to reports within the administration that the hangup is really in Moscow. But other sources contend that the Russians are still pressing for a meeting.

Most of the summit discussion, which has been going on for some time with the Soviets, has revolved around a site somewhere in western Europe.

Turns Down Defence Post

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (WP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D—Wash.) has decided not to accept the post of secretary of defence in the Nixon cabinet, informed sources said Friday night.

Jackson took himself out of consideration after the president-elect had gone so far as to arrange an unprecedented understanding that would have guaranteed that another Democrat would be appointed to fill Jackson's Senate seat by Washington's Republican governor, Daniel J. Evans.

Guinea Last Bastion Of Marxist Socialism

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN

CONAKRY, Guinea (AP) — Nearly three years ago, Kwame Nkrumah, was swept from power in Ghana. Last month a military junta toppled Modibo Keita in Mali. Now Sekou Toure of Guinea stands as the sole survivor among black African leaders espousing the road of Marxist socialism for their countries.

There were parallels as well as differences between the regime here and that in Mali, whose capital city Bamako is 750 miles north.

Both Toure and Keita followed the socialist line. In declarations of economic independence, both withdrew their currency from the franc zone, rejecting France's backing and the restrictions which went with it.

Mali returned last April but in Guinea, the day of withdrawal —March 1, 1960—is a holiday.

Both presidents have built close ties with the Chinese and the Soviet bloc.

SEEK EXTERNAL AID

The economies of both countries have dived since independence, forcing their populations to turn to outside help even to feed themselves.

Mali is arid and landlocked with virtually no resources. Guinea possesses at least a third of the world's bauxite reserves, gold, diamonds, iron ore, hydroelectric capacity three times the present production of South Africa.

Toure has been more successful in balancing West against East in extracting $250,000,000 in aid from the United States, West Germany, Russia and China.

Toure also has developed Africa's most efficient political party, Parti Democratique du Guinea. It reaches into virtually every home among the 3,600,000 Guineans simply because it controls much of the food distribution.

No one celebrates a marriage, names a baby or even holds a wake without permission from the party.

FOREIGN DEBT $210,000,000

Guinea has a foreign debt estimated at $210,000,000. It services the debt from a meagre $11,000,000 in foreign exchange earned annually, mostly from exports of bauxite.

Guinea's own franc sells for four times the legal rate on Conakry's black market. Guineans on the street beg foreigners for neckties, sun glasses, king-size cigarettes and handkerchiefs—items which cannot be brought into the country in normal commerce because Guinea lacks foreign exchange.

The cheap money has caused prices to skyrocket in a land where domestic servants are well-paid at $60 a month, and college-educated teachers earn $200 a month. On the free market, potatoes are 60 cents a pound, onions $1.20, a pair of cotton trousers $44.

Toure, 46, insists his people will continue to sacrifice to build the nation.

More than most African leaders, Toure has managed to subdue tribal differences and build a nationality based on pride in Guinea's going it alone.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: We bought a book on canine behavior and it has proved most interesting. It describes dogs as (1) Vocally oriented; those who howl, whine or bark. (2) Orally oriented; those who chew things, bite people, and overeat, and (3) Bodily oriented; dogs who scratch, dig and run away. But our ten-month-old beagle, Patsy, howls, chews up everything in the house, eats like a pig, scratches, digs holes in the yard, and runs away whenever someone leaves the gate open. In a word, how could you describe Patsy? —R.W.

DEAR R.W.: Dis-oriented. And obviously you're going to have to start from scratch to train Patsy into an acceptable pet package. It is important to find out (if you can) the basis for the frustrations which produce Patsy's performances.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: My grandson has never had a pet except for Bubbles, a goldfish he kept for three years. I'd like to get him a decent pet this Christmas. He has unlimited space for keeping one in the garage. What would you recommend for a ten-year-old boy?

DEAR I.L.: I'd recommend you find something he would like so much he would want to bring it into the house with him. I certainly wouldn't recommend a dog, or cat, or bird, if it was never to be allowed inside. In any event, the best pet would be the one the boy wants most. I can be a mistake to present him with a pet you think cute unless he has previously expressed a genuine interest in this particular type of animal. Any pet worthy of the name requires considerable care. One who is not really cherished will be all-too-soon neglected.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Does it mean anything for a parakeet to start jumping up and down with his tail? Our bird started doing this and now he does it all the time.—G.G.

DEAR G..G: Yes, it means trouble. Most often, continual jumping is related to respiratory embarrassment; pneumonia is a frequent cause. Hopefully, he has long since been checked. If not, do so at once. As with any sick bird, keep him warmer than usual and bundle him well to protect from drafts during the trip to the doctor's office.

DEAR DR. MILLER: This Christmas I plan to give my mother-in-law a bird. Any bird. She likes them all. Which cage birds do you recomment?—G.T.

DEAR G.T.: For song, a canary or one of the many finches possessing a good voice. (An excellent song-and-dance watchbird is the Zebra finch.) For conversation (plus some noise) one of the larger parrots — the African Gray is tops (and is expensive). For conversation (with possibly slightly less noise and considerably less lip, a cockateel. As a bodyguard, the cockatoo should do. For color choice, quiet conversation, and a people-oriented bird in a small package, It's hard to beat budgerigar, the best known member of the parakeet family.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Like Father Like Son Held True

By BOB BOWMAN

Bowman

Sir John A. Macdonald is the best known figure in Canadian political history. How many people know that his son, Hugh, also received a knighthood and became premier of Manitoba?

Although Hugh was born in Kingston and educated at the University of Toronto, he had good reason to make his home in Manitoba. When he was only 20 years old Hugh Macdonald was a nember of the Wolseley expedition that was sent to Red River in 1870 to preserve order after the Riel uprising. It took more than three months for the 1,200 troops to travel from Toronto to Fort Garry. They had to portage through Sault Ste. Marie because the Americans would not allow them to use the canal.

Then they had to make many more portages though the rough country between Prince Arthur's Landing, now Port Arthur, and their destination. Only 30 miles of the Dawson Road had been completed so the heavy equipment often had to be drawn on rollers along paths which the soldiers cut through the woods. It was a rugged task.

Hugh went back to Toronto and became a lawyer in 1872. After practising there for 10 years, he decided to establish in Winnipeg. Three years later he was a soldier again, briefly, fighting in the North West Rebellion. How Hugh Macdonald must have loved Louis Riel!

In 1898 the Manitoba Conservatives felt they had a good chance to defeat the Liberal government provided they had an illustrious political name to lead them. Conservative leader R. P. Roblin stepped down when Hugh Macdonald agreed to accept the challenge. He led the party to victory on December 7, 1899, and became premier of Manitoba. Hugh Macdonald had previously been a federal member of Parliament and served briefly in Sir Charles Tupper's government before it was defeated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Eventually Hugh Macdonald was defeated by Clifford Sifton and retired from politics. He was knighted in 1912.

Other events on December 7.

1649—Iroquois massacred mission at St. Jean including Fathers Garnier and Chabanel

1729—Mississauga Indians surrendered three million acres now Wentworth, Norfolk, and Haldimand Counties.

1782—Lieutenant Governor Parr of Nova Scotia announced arrival of 501 United Empire Loyalists from South Carolina.

1837—William Lyon Mackenzie fled to U.S.A. after his rebellion had been crushed in Toronto.

1863—first issue of Ottawa Free Press.

1941—Canada declared war on Japan, Finland, Hungary, and Romania after Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The U.S.A. and Britian did not declare war until the following day.

1961—Britain dropped the name "United Kingdom" for "Britain"

THE DRIVING TASK

By

RALF COSSEY, Certified Teacher (Smith Institute) Windsor Driving School

The objective of this series is to present the best available information for the identification and control of human factors that impair driving ability.

The driving task is complicated by the inter-relationship of various component parts and the constantly changing set of conditions, both external and internal.

Certain deficiencies may exist in individual drivers in relation to these separate elements. They may stem from known medical impairments, or from acquired impairments such as the ingestion of alcohol, or from under-developed capabilities resulting from lack of proper training. Many such factors may be anticipated and corrected by the driver.

Before the Magistrate

A 27-year-old Victoria man was sent to prison Friday for a year on his second conviction for possession of marijuana.

Edwin Perry, 4975 Cordova Bay, was convicted in February of this year on the same offence, court was told.

William Murray, 1492 Dallas, charged jointly with Perry was sentenced to five months.

Defence lawyer Cal Becker, in speaking before sentence, said the moral issues and arguments surrounding the use of marijuana are assuming the proportions of those surrounding birth control devices.

He said the bitterness of the accused to his previous six-month sentence on the charge was understandable, viewed in that light.

Magistrate William Ostler said he could understand the residual bitterness but that the accused had shown naked and open defiance of the law.

However Crown prosecutor Edward Pollard suggested a period of intensive counselling for Murray in the Young Offender Unit as he had been in "aimless pursuit of dubious goals."

"The ingenuity of shoplifting knows no bounds," said Magistrate Ostler after hearing the case of a shoplifter who took goods from a store concealed in her underwear.

"It certainly indicates planning," he said, and fined the woman $200.

Ruth Moir, 953 Selkirk, pleaded guilty to taking some ham, margarine, steak and fish from the Town and Country Safeway. Represented by lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, she cried throughout her court appearance.

Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen, who was called as a character witness, said he had known the accused to be completely honest and reliable.

"I just can't understand why there's been such an increase in shoplifters lately," said the magistrate.

A woman who earlier pleaded guilty to driving while under a licence suspension was fined $400.

The magistrate also ordered Ann Adams, 1345 Haultain, to post a $250 two-year good behaviour bond.

Court was told it was her second conviction for the offence.

Robert Planes, 18, of 5520 Laidlaw, was given a six-month suspended sentence after being found guilty of common assault.

Magistrate William Ostler place him on a $50 good behaviour bond.

Const. Ron Stewart said the accused struck another youth on the back of the head with his hand early Sunday on Government street.

A woman who told the magistrate she had too much beer was fined $200 for shoplifting.

Dorothy Dyer, 1266 Johnson, stole a dress, slacks, a blouse and some toys from the Metropolitan Thursday, court was told.

WOUNDED North Vietnamese soldier is covered by U.S. Marine after being talked out of half-collapsed bunker during operation south of Da Nang in South Vietnam. Soldier and two others, including girl, 16, were coaxed out of hiding by photographer Dang Van Phuoc, who acted as interpreter. (AP Wirephoto)

Trapped Guerrillas Afraid To Leave Smashed Bunkers

Dang Van Phuoc, a South Vietnamese photographer employed by The Associated Press, was accompanying the U.S. marines on an operation south of Da Nang Thursday when three Vietnamese trapped in a bunker refused to come out. Because he spoke the language, the photographer acted as interpreter. Here is his report.

By DANG VAN PHUOC

DIEN BAN (AP) — The North Vietnamese had fought hard, but now the advancing American marines had trapped them in their bunkers, and they were afraid.

"If I come out, will they shoot me?" one of the men in the bunker asked.

"If you come out with your hands up, they won't kill you," I told him. "But you must not have anything in your hands. If they see you have a grenade or a gun, they will shoot."

It was the 16th day of Operation Meade River, a massive operation to trap guerrilla troops in one of their favorite operating areas, and this was the hard part.

The operation area now covered an area of less than two square miles, mostly open land honeycombed with natural and man-made hiding places. Many of the bunkers had been here for years, and some were almost untouched by the pounding of artillery and air strikes that had preceded the marines' advance.

There was little firing as the marines moved forward to root out the remaining troops from the territory inside the horseshoe bend of a small river near the village of Dien Ban, 15 miles south of Da Nang.

A marine, his revolver in hand, squeezed into the entrance of one bunker, then reappeared.

"There's two in there," he said. "They won't come out."

I went forward and crawled into the hole.

The first man came out, his empty hands stretched out before him. The others followed, another North Vietnamese and a 16-year-old girl who said she was Viet Cong.

All three were wounded slightly and had not eaten for two days.

Press Endangers Its Own Freedoms Newsmen Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — A panel of scholars, government officials and newspaper men concluded Thursday night that the press may well be its own worst enemy because it threatens a basic human right to freedom of information.

The newspaper men—John Grace, assistant editor of the Ottawa Journal, and Claude Ryan, editor of Le Devoir of Montreal — pinpointed features of nwespaper and broadcasting practice they said endangers the right to information.

"The greatest danger is not managed news, not any policy of secrecy or any law," said Mr. Grace. "The biggest danger today is the press' own abuse of its freedom."

The abuse results from a tendency of the press to insist that it has privileges beyond the public's right to know, Mr. Grace said.

Marc Lalonde, chief press officer for Prime Minister Trudeau and chairman of the panel, agreed that "the rights of the press to be informed are no more and no less than the public's".

Mr. Ryan suggested the dominance of business considerations in the newspaper and broadcasting industry threaten the public's right to information.

The scope and variety of available information are limited by the alienation between what he termed the intellectual and economic functions of the press.

Mr. Ryan criticized application of business principles to reporting. In the development of newspaper and broadcasting groups, he suggested, there is a mistaken tendency to consolidate reporting along with the mechanical operations and thus to limit the variety and breadth of viewpoints.

Discussion took place in a public seminar organized by St. Paul University to mark two anniversaries—the 20th year since the United Nations proclaimed freedom of information as part of its Universal Declaration of Human Rights and five years after Pope Paul VI's promulgation of a similar right.

David Dehler, professor of common law at Ottawa University, led discussion with an argument that man has the historical and philosophical right to information emanating from his duty to seek the truth and fulfil his nature.

"The right of information, as human right, gives rise to another right—freedom of the press, which is a means of giving effect to the right of information," Prof. Dehler said.

The problem in applying the free-press principle, he added, is trying to "reconcile the right of public authority with the exercise of the right to information within the nation and across the world."

OUTLINES A FAILURE

A. E. Gotlieb, an expert in international law just named deputy minister in a communications department to be formed, outlined the failure to reconcile authority and press freedom in a world treaty.

He traced an abortive attempt during the last 20 years at the United Nations to draft an agreed convention that would satisfy Western democracies, Marxist governments and new countries suspicious of a Western monopoly of the world news systems.

Mr. Grace said that even in the Canadian and United States democracies, the press has failed to establish operational principles for itself.

There is a tendency to intrude and provoke unjustifiably, Mr. Grace said. The tendency results from a belief that the press is privileged.

"That kind of fat-headedness will do the press more harm than any government would dare do," he added.

Mr. Ryan said that in forming bigger units through groups of newspapers and broadcasters, "there is a certain homogenization of human work that does not further quality."

He said that if a group of newspapers has one Ottawa reporter writing for newspapers in 10 provinces, freedom of information is limited because the variety of viewpoints is curtailed.

Mr. Ryan said there is a danger of establishing an intellectual aristocracy, a development that would violate democracy. It is better to tolerate some mediocrity in the press than end up with uniform high quality which at the same time would limit variety, he added.

Weaken Labor Charge Denied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Thursday denied charges from some British Columbia labor leaders that the government is trying to weaken labor by hiring its top men.

"The fact that we are recruiting labor leaders to the B.C. mediation commission does not mean that we are trying to smash labor," he said in an interview.

"If we didn't have representatives of labor on the commission then the unions would accuse us of being pro-management.

"Because we have recruited labor leaders the unions are accusing us of being anti-labor."

He said the last thing the provincial government wanted to see was a weak labor leadership.

"We need a strong leadership in labor to match the strong leadership in provincial government and management," he said.

Charles Stewart, vice-president of the B.C. Federation of Labor and also of the Vancouver and District Labor Council, and Ed Sims, Canadian director of the Brewery Workers' Union and president of the labor council, have both accepted positions with the mediation commission.

Made Not in Vain

"For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens: God himself that formed the earth and made it; He hath established it, He created it not in vain, He formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else." These words of Isaiah are part of the Scriptural readings in the Bible Lesson-Sermon titled "God the Only Cause and Creator" to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. The Sunday service at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chambers at Pandora begins at 11 a.m.

COSA NOSTRA HEAD NABBED BY POLICE

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The FBI has arrested two men, one described by police as head of Cosa Nostra operations in eastern Pennsylvania, on charges they conspired to transport $25,000 worth of stolen television sets across state line.

The FBI said they arrested Thursday Russell A. Bufalino, 64, of Kingston, Pa., who claimed he lived for a time in Buffalo, and Salvatore Todaro, 46, of Buffalo.

A third man, John C. Sacco Jr., 41, a former Buffalo sanitation inspector, also was accused in the conspiracy. He is serving a 2½-to-seven-year sentence in nearby Attica State Prison on a burglary conviction.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

West's two-club call was not as whimsical as it appears. He was trying to get out of the trouble his takeout double got him into and while he was on the way to two hearts, he tried the club bid as an extra chance. Maybe he wouldn't even have to show his heart suit.

That is just what happened. South didn't want to stand for North's double and was encouraged to overbid in view of his void in clubs. It took South just two bids to get to the spade slam.

West opened his king of hearts. South looked over dummy and saw that he was in a doubtful contract. He would have been far happier had he held just one club but he couldn't do anything about that.

South tried to find a way to count 12 tricks. One way would be to play ace and one diamond to set up dummy's queen. Then he would be able to ruff one heart and throw the others on the queen of diamonds and good clubs. After that he would have to take a spade finesse and pray. South saw there was a far better play — to ruff three hearts in dummy and discard a diamond and a heart on the ace and king of clubs. After that he would lay down his ace of spades and pray.

He ruffed a heart at trick two, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs to discard a diamond and a heart; led a diamond to his ace; ruffed another heart and was pleased when East did not overruff. He ruffed a club, ruffed his last heart, ruffed back to his hand with a fourth club and played his ace of spades.

West's king dropped and South conceded a trick to the nine of trumps and claimed the rest.

HI! MR. FIXIT!
SWING YOUR PAINT BRUSH OUT OF ME!
$15,500

Gee I'm only a house but with a little tender loving care you could make a home out of me. I'm not a square — I have real good lines and if you'd throw a little stucco on my exterior to match my brand new roof — why I'd be the "Talk of the Street." It's a good street too — can see the blue Pacific from where I look. I'm as solid as the rock of Gibraltar because my rock bottom is a full cement basement — insulated too — with automatic heating — new hot water tank and two bedrooms all ready for you to finish Mr. Fixit. I have two more bedrooms — one needs a new door — a living room with fireplace that works — floor needs sanding — a 4-piece bathroom that I'm proud of — a kitchen with real nice cupboards — a room with your help — that would make a mute dining area with lots of windows and practically new sundeck. The main trouble with me is I'm too small to take care of eight children and "Puddles" the dog. Sure will miss them but I have to be sold or traded in on a large house — so I'm practically being given away for only $15,500. Have a big mortgage — only 7¼ per cent interest — don't know much about that so please call

S. Viets Finally Leave for Paris

SAIGON (Reuters) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky and the South Vietnamese delegation left today for Paris after a down-to-the-wire legislative wrangle over participation in the enlarged peace talks there.

Military bands gave delegation members a rousing sendoff from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport.

President Nguyen Van Thieu was on hand to shake hands with Ky, who will act as special adviser to the delegation, commuting between Paris and Saigon.

The South Vietnamese legislature today finally approved in principle participation in the peace talks.

The delegation will be headed by Ambassador Pham Dang Lam. Others are: Nguyen Xuan Phong, former minister in charge of persuading Viet Cong to defect under an open arms program; Vuong Van Bac, a lawyer; Mrs. Nguyen Thi Vui, a lawyer; Nguyen Hgoc Hui, a professor, and Nguyen Trieu Dan, chief of Saigon's delegation to the International Control Commission, set up by the 1954 Geneva convention to supervise the truce in Indochina.

The party is due in Paris Sunday.

LAST MINUTE ACTION

Approval came just 90 minutes before the delegation was scheduled to leave for Paris, and after four days of delay over what was generally regarded as a rubber-stamp formality.

The joint session of the Senate and House earlier spent three days disagreeing on the constitutional details of approving participation in the Paris talks.

And in a final, special joint session today, legislators came up with a possible further delay by asking to question the delegates.

ALTERNATIVE PLAN

But approval was granted when the legislators decided to ask instead for permission to question the delegates at a later date—which would not delay the departure for Paris, but could bring some of them home periodically to face legislators wanting to know what was being said in the peace talks.

Informed sources said the vote for approval in the joint session—held behind closed doors—was 80 to 21.

The lower house has 140 members and the Senate 60, so just more than half of the legislators voted after the eight-hour debate.

PIPERS SKIRL, GUITARS PLAY SPANISH MASS

MADRID (UPI) — The Roman Catholic hierarchy in Spain today announced plans to introduce the Spanish guitar and bagpipes into the mass.

A special commission on the liturgy released results of a poll taken of more than 5,000 priests, nuns and laymen. The report said attendance at mass had increased since introduction of liturgical reforms following the Vatican ecumenical council.

Drug Peddlar Played Dual Pusher Role

VANCOUVER (CP) — A self-confessed drug pedlar told a preliminary hearing Friday he grossed $25,000 from heroin sales to pushers in the summer of 1967 and another $1,500 to $2,500 as an RCMP informer.

William Smith was testifying as a Crown witness in conspiracy charges against five men the Crown claims were operating a syndicate handling the bulk of Vancouver's illicit heroin traffic.

Charged with conspiring to traffic in heroin are John McKeoff, 34; Edward Ponak, 33; Romeo Zamai, 35, and Conrad William Gunn, 35.

Smith told Magistrate D. D. Jones that he worked in partnership with McKeoff for five months in 1967 "pushing" an ounce at a time.

He said that at the same time he was working for the RCMP supplying information on "business dealings" that involved heroin by telephone or in person almost daily.

Observatory Put in Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — An astronomical observatory rocketed into orbit today with 11 telescopes intended to give man his first clear look at the stars and uncover clues to the origin of the universe.

The success "will open up a new arena in a large area of interest in the space sciences—investigating the whole universe," said Homer E. Newell, associate administrator of space science and applications for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as Orbiting Astronomical Observatory II circled earth on its first orbit.

The 4,400-pound spacecraft rode atop an Atlas-Centaur booster that drilled it into a near-circular orbit ranging from 467 to 489 miles high—close to the 480-mile-high circular patch for which it was aimed.

Officials plan to activate the spacecraft's telescopes Wednesday after checking all spacecraft systems.

The $75,000,000 satellite is the heaviest and most complex scientific spacecraft ever launched by the United States.

Labatt's Profit Up

John Labatt Ltd. Friday reported net earnings of $5.26 millionor 60 cents a share for the six months ended oct. 31, compared with $4.55 million or 52 cents for the similar 1967 period.

Total sales for the period were $162.88 million compared with $89.63 million in the similar period a year ago. However, the company said $63.48 million of this year's sales was attributable to the operations of Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., which Labatt acquired in February.

HE FORGED 'IMPORTANT' SIGNATURES

OTTAWA (CP) — Chisholm Shane, 28, of Ottawa, showed a certain amount of elan when he cashed two cheques in Vancouver banks last April.

The signatures on the cheques, each for $450, purported to be those of Lucien Lamoureux, Speaker of the House of Commons, and Judy LaMarsh, then state secretary in the Liberal government.

Shane was sentenced to six months in jail on charges of uttering forged documents when he appeared in court here Thursday.

Experiment In Language Successful

TORONTO (CP) — About 125 suburban high school students in Grades 11, 12 and 13 are chattering and joking in French three months after volunteering for experimental discussion groups led by two exchange students from French universities.

And the two young French girls consider themselves non-teachers.

"I am not exactly teaching," says Simone Rieusset, 23, taking a year off from the University of Grenoble. "We are all talking to one another."

"A language is not only words. The students should understand there is a whole way of life behind it."

Miss Rieusset began conducting conversational classes in borough of York high schools in September. She was joined in mid-October by Alice Coranna, 24, on leave from studies at the University of Poitiers.

They spend 12 hours a week in the borough's five high schools holding informal discussions with groups of six or eight senior students.

The instructors are in Canada for a year, but the borough will probably arrange more exchanges.

U.S. Jets Uncover DMZ Activity

SAIGON (AP) — The United States command said today American reconnaissance uncovered at least 461 indications of North Vietnamese activity in the demilitarized zone since the U.S. stopped bombing North Vietnam Nov. 1.

Only 36 of the sightings revealed what the command termed "significant" action. But 128 were serious enough to warrant retaliatory fire, the command said.

Radio Hanoi charged today that U.S. warplanes bombed an agricultural co-operative and a hamlet in North Vietnam Dec. 3, killing more than 30 North Vietnamese.

The report said American planes have made seven bombing raids against North Vietnamese provinces since Nov. 1 and artillery and naval guns have fired 81 rounds at targets in the Vinh Linh area.

REPORTS 117 SHELLINGS

South Vietnamese headquarters said today there have been 117 shellings of provincial capitals and district towns since Nov. 1. Fifty-six civilians have been killed and 498 wounded in the attacks.

Most of the population centres reported shelled also are military centres.

Rocket Launched

KIRUNA, Sweden (Reuters)—A Canadian Black Brant II research rocket was successfully launched at the European Space Research Organization's testing site near here Wednesday night. The rocket—the last of three launched in a West German national campaign to study polar storms and magnetic disturbances—reached a height of 170 miles and "delivered the necessary information," officials said.

MAKING OFFICAL VISIT to Victoria Central Lions club Tuesday will be district governor Lyall Grath, of Richmond. Lions clubber for 16 years, Mr. Grath has been president of Richmond club, and committee member on multiple-district groups. Visit with local club will be at dinner meeting at Century Inn.

Labor Seeks New Deal On Bill 33

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Labor Friday offered to meet the provincial government to negotiate a new deal on Bill 33, the province's controversial labor legislation that went into full effect this week.

The federation outlined its terms for avoiding a major battle over the bill, which sets guidelines for a modified form of compulsory arbitration, in a statement issued by the labor body's executive council.

It said its affiliated unions are prepared to "give co-operation to the new legislation" if the government will eliminate sections that force unions to appear before the three-member mediation commission.

The federation also asked for guarantees that the government will appoint mediation officers "who have the confidence and respect of both labor and management."

The resignation of commissioner D. R. Blair earlier in the week gives the government a perfect opportunity to restructure Bill 33, said the 136,000-member federation.

Eartha Won Respect For Outburst

TORONTO (CP) — Singer Eartha Kitt's outburst against the war in Vietnam at a White House luncheon last January cost her a singing engagement and television appearances for about a month.

"But I also obtained a tremendous amount of respect from people who hadn't known anything about me before," the sultry, 37-year-old Negro said in an interview between night club appearances here.

"They didn't know that I was willing to take a stand against things that I feel are wrong, or even how I feel about my own people.

"At the White House, the question was put to me, what can we do to correct the juvenile delinquency problem in America? When I told them what my opinion was, I got my face slapped."

Highway Overpass?

The campaign by Saanich council and Chesterlea subdivision to get a pedestrian highway overpass to Glanford School appears headed for success, Mayor Hugh Curtis said Friday.

Highways Minister Wesley Black has written "an encouraging letter" to the mayor about a safe method of crossing the Patricia Bay Highway near the school.

"The letter makes no firm commitment, but certainly the minister seems strongly positive," said Mayor Curtis.

He said it was "good news," particularly because parents and council have worked together in the campaign.

Glanford home and school association have sent petitions and delegations to Saanich council detailing the problems elementary-school children will encounter when the highway is widened.

The downtown office will be moved from its present Yates Street location however.

A mail order department in the new store will share the work of the present order office so a smaller downtown office is planned.

Store manager Peter Horlick said, "We will stay downtown as long as people use the order office." But customers will be urged to use the main store for both ordering and pick-ups.

Anderson Flies Kite On Park

Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson said today his suggestion that Royal Roads military college might some day close and be turned into a public park is so much "kite-flying."

But, he added, the defence department is looking for belt-tightening measures and consolidation of Canada's three service colleges seems "a logical thing."

Even though he has no "inside information" on the future of area defence facilities, including Royal Roads and Work Point Barracks, all federal land in the Greater Victoria region should be seen as potential recreation space, he said in an interview.

URGES PARKS

He said if the defence department ever gives up its local landholdings, these areas should become parks, not subdivisions.

Mr. Anderson returned to Victoria from Ottawa Friday night. He was to meet today with representatives of the Vancouver Island Anglers Association to discuss the problems of area sports fishermen.

The fishermen would likely state their position on sports-fishing licences, salmon limits and banning some gear, such as buzz-bombs, in certain areas, Mr. Anderson said.

He said he is mounting a campaign with the federal fisheries minister to have Canada's exclusive fishing zones drawn on coastal charts.

Russian and Japanese boats have been coming inside the 12-mile commercial fishing limit and "making a mockery of our conservation efforts" because, without a definite boundary, the area cannot be properly policed.

Parliament passed a 1964 act setting Canada's territorial limit three miles beyond a line drawn from headland to headland down the coast. The line has never been drawn, the MP said.

FISHING LIMIT

The fishing limit is set nine miles beyond the territorial limit.

It was particularly important between the north end of Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes, all of which would be closed to Asian fishermen.

Canada and the United States have a reciprocal offshore fishing agreement and an agreement to limit the annual West-Coast halibut catch to 23 million pounds.

Mr. Anderson said it is useless to place a conservation limit on halibut if other fishermen are taking the fish.

Quick action was needed because international law has precedents for "historic rights" to fisheries and unless the line is drawn, the Russians and Japanese will soon establish an historic right to Canadian waters.

Mr. Anderson said the campaign is being well received by Fisheries Minister Davis.

Glass Door No Barrier To Students

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — About 150 chanting demonstrators pushed passed two guards and smashed a glass door panel to enter a room where the state university system's board of regents were meeting Friday.

The demonstrators, demanding reinstatement of 89 Negro students suspended from Oshkosh State University, interrupted the meeting for 20 minutes.

They withdrew after the regents agreed to appoint Ward Rector, former Wisconsin Supreme Court justice, to hear student appeals at the university beginning Monday.

The students were suspended after a demonstration in the Oshkosh administration building erupted into a wild melee with thousands of dollars worth of office property damage. The demonstration was in support of student demands for a separate black student union and more courses on Negro history.

Arthritis Clinic to Get New Equipment

Local arthritis sufferers will benefit from two new pieces of equipment soon to be installed at the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society's Gorge Road clinic.

Clinic director Eleanor Baxter said today that an ultra sound machine and a hydrocollator have been ordered for the centre and that both will be in operation by the first of January.

Ultra sound machines, costing about $800, have proven invaluable in the treatment of fibrositis, an inflammation of the muscles, she said.

The hydrocollator, used to heat special heat pads, will be purchased from funds raised by the ladies auxiliary to CARS, she added.

SF Faculty Turns Back On Hard Line Attitude

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) — Faculty support appears to be slipping rapidly away from Acting President S. I. Hayakawa, who brought a "hard-line" administration to troubled San Francisco State College.

The Academic Senate, representing the 1,300 faculty members, Friday night condemned Hayakawa's "policy of confrontation"—using police on campus against militant student strikers—and said a permanent president should be selected quickly.

Concessions the Vancouver-born acting president offered student strikers Friday were based on a program of negotiation suggested by the Academic Senate.

The concessions were creation of a black studies program and establishment of a director of financial aid to help minority groups among the students.

About 3,500 persons—including black community leaders, churchmen and other off-campus sympathizers—loudly booed the concessions when they were announced.

The Academic Senate, by a vote of 25 to 5, passed a resolution saying: "The policy of confrontation currently pursued on this campus . . . can only lead to further violence with inevitable fatalities."

The resolution urged expedition of "the process which will lead to the choosing of a permanent president acceptable to the academic community."

In announcing the concessions, Hayakawa rejected a demand by the Black Students' Union that Negroes be admitted to the 18,000 student college regardless of qualifications starting next academic year.

The strikers demanded amnesty for all involved in the disturbances this week and reinstatement of Black Panther George Murray, whose suspension as a part-time instructor led to the strike.

But Hayakawa promised only "due process" in dealing with these cases.

Hayakawa announced creation of a full-scale black studies department with classes starting in February and studies leading to degrees.

The department would be headed by Nathan Hare, a controversial Negro instructor.

He also promised to admit next spring 128 additional minority students who lack academic requirements and to create a task force to "explore policies and procedures for ethnic studies.

YIPPIE CHIEF STUMBLES INTO A GOVERNMENT 'BUG'

By RICHARD L. LYONS
The Washington Post

In addition to his other varied activities, yippie leader Jerry Rubin has stumbled into a government bug.

The justice department Friday told the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, where Rubin is appealing a conviction arising from the Pentagon peace march last year, that conversations in which Rubin took part were overheard "by means of electronic surveillance . . . directed against others in the interests of national security."

BUGGED A ROOM

This meant that the government had tapped a phone or bugged a room belonging to some unnamed person to whom Rubin talked. It was the fourth time this year that the government has volunteered that eavesdropping had picked up the name or conversation of someone not the target of the investigation.

The government sent tapes of the conversations to the court in an effort to show they had no relation to the Pentagon acts and should not be allowed to reverse the conviction. The case was argued in Richmond, Va., Friday and taken under advisement.

Rubin, dressed in a Santa Claus costume, stood outside the House Un-American Activities Committee room in Washington Friday distributing copies of the justice department memorandum to the court. He called its contents "frightening."

SUBVERSION

The committee had subpoenaed Rubin to testify at its inquiry into whether subversion was involved in the demonstrations at the Democratic convention in Chicago. Because Rubin has been indicted in Chicago on charges of inciting mob action, the committee had scheduled Rubin's testimony for closed session. Rubin said he would talk only in open session.

Friday the committee cancelled the subpoena, because of the indictment, but agreed to hear Rubin as a voluntary witness in open session if he would change his clothes. Rubin refused.

The slight, wild-haired leader of the yippies has given various reasons for dressing as Santa during the week of hearings. After learning about the bug, he said: "The fact that big brother has arrived is a threat to our children. How better to dramatize it than wearing a Santa Claus suit?"

All Student Demands Met

ST. LOUIS (AP) — All but a handful of white protesters at Washington University ended their sit-in early today after the faculty approved virtually all student demands.

The faculty of arts and sciences yielded to the white students' principal demand that the Reserve Officers Training Corps be eliminated.

About 25 militant Negroes continued their "lock-in" inside the school's accounting office. They declined to talk to reporters.

They vowed they would remain until the university administration disciplined five school police who they say manhandled a Negro student Thursday.

The incident, involving graduate business student Elbert Walton of St. Louis, mushroomed into a protest involving ROTC programs on campus, student power, wages for non-academic employees and curriculum.

No more than 300 students took part in the 30-hour protest at any one time. There are about 14,000 students enrolled at the private institution, although more than half attend night classes.

The school enrols about 200 Negroes.

Player Cleared

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dick Fouts, defensive end for the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League, was acquitted Thursday of two charges of committing indecent acts.

He was accused of wilfully exposing himself Oct. 1 so that he might be seen, and of doing so with intent to insult or offend.

Three witnesses said in magistrate's court that they had seen Fouts appear at an apartment window in shorts, disrobe and stand at the window.

Fouts told the court he had gone to the window after waking up "to see what kind of a day it was."

"Then I decided to take a shower. I threw my shorts on the bed and went into the bathroom."

Transit Study Urged

VANCOUVER (CP)—A $60,000 study of downtown transit routes to feed the proposed new crossing of Burrard Inlet at Brockton Point was recommended to Vancouver city council Tuesday by engineers Swan Wooster and freeway consultants N. D. Lea and Associates.

Extradition Of Banks Pressed

PHOENIX, Ariz. (CP-AP) — Senator Paul Fannin said Friday he will ask the next secretary of state to extradite trade unionist Hal Banks to Canada to face perjury charges.

Fannin, a Republican, told the Arizona Broadcasters Association that he would attempt to have the next state secretary overturn the ruling by State Secretary Dean Rusk which allowed Banks to remain in the United States despite efforts of the Ontario government to have him returned to Canada.

Rusk will be leaving his post when President-elect Nixon is inaugurated Jan. 20. Nixon has not yet said who will serve as state secretary under him.

Banks, former head of the Canadian Seafarers International Union, fled to his native U.S. after being convicted of conspiring to commit violence during a Great Lakes labor dispute. Sentenced to five years in jail, he jumped bail of $25,000 while awaiting appeal.

Is Russia Wooing Nationalist China?

RED CROSS TEAM OUSTED

LAGOS (AFP) — The International Red Cross team operating in Asaba opposite Onitsha has sent back here by the local federal Nigerian command.

The team, five Austrians led by Norwegian Maj. Akrell, reports being on excellent terms with the federals and can offer no explanation for the order to leave Asaba.

Informed sources in Lagos, however, think the army may have acted because the Nigerian Red Cross personnel working with the international team had been quarrelling among themselves for family reasons.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (WP) — Moscow has informally extended an invitation to Chinese Nationalist journalists to visit the Soviet Union, it has been learned here.

The informal invitation, apparently designed to sound out the possibility of improved relations between Moscow and president Chiang Kai-Shek's government, was made to Nationalist officials in late October by a Soviet journalist then on a five-day visit to Taiwan.

The Moscow newsman, Victor Louis, is believed to be a high-ranking operative in the Soviet apparatus. His visit, the first by a Soviet citizen to Nationalist China in 19 years, was unpublicized by the government here at the time.

During his stay in Taipei, the Taiwan capital, Louis saw the defense minister, Gen. Chiang Ching-Kuo, the president's elder son and heir apparent. Among other subjects, they reportedly discussed the situation in Communist China.

Though Chiang Ching-Kuo was educated in the Soviet Union and is fluent in Russian, his discussion with Louis was conducted through an English-speaking interpreter.

IMPORTANCE MINIMIZED

Chinese Nationalist spokesmen tend to minimize the importance of the Louis visit, presumably because it contravenes the fervent anti-Communist spirit promoted throughout this island redoubt. It is still unclear, therefore, whether the Soviet invitation to Nationalist newsmen is being seriously entertained here.

Nevertheless, the fact that Louis was authorized to visit Taiwan and even casually suggested that Moscow would welcome nationalist reporters is considered by diplomatic observers to be significant for two main reasons:

- On the one hand, it reflects the extent of current efforts by the Soviet Union to strengthen its position in the Far East at the expense of the Communist regime in Peking. Until now, these efforts have primarily featured an acceleration of Soviet commercial and cultural programs in Asia.
- At the same time, by permitting Louis to enter Taiwan, the Nationalists also seem to be exploring avenues for a possible rapprochment with Moscow directed against Chinese Communist party leader Mao Tse-Tung, who is anathema to both Chiang Kai-Shek and the Soviet leaders.

'Brother, Sister Relationship'

By DONALD THORNTON

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) Co-eds at Stanford University have probably achieved the ultimate equality in the fight for women's rights. The've moved right into the fraternity house — bag and baggage, nylons and curlers.

The novel living arrangement is the work of Lambda Nu, a Greek letter fraternity that obtained university approval for the experiment this fall.

Despite some suspicion that the combination of 32 college men and 23 women in the same house means certain trouble, the Lambdu Nu men deny it.

"Our fraternity is not like a regular Saturday night orgy house," said Diane Brower, 21, Candon, S.C., one of the co-eds who moved in.

"The basic relationship is brother-sister. The average image of a fraternity is liquor and running around screaming, but this definitely is not our image."

'HAS ITS BENEFITS'

"A little hanky-panky goes on — very, very little," said Sally Hines, 21, Fairfax, Va. "It's mostly a brother-sister relationship and it does have its benefits . . . I'm finding out things about guys I never knew before."

Dan Williams, assistant dean of Stanford, said the mixed fraternity is an "extension of what has proved successful in our other co-ed residence halls."

Under the present arrangement, the girls occupy one wing of the split-level fraternity and the boys live in the other. They are allowed to visit in each other's rooms and there are no rules that doors must be left open or a third person be present.

"You just invite the boy in and you talk," Miss Brower said. "In fact, we're talking about alternate boy-girl rooms for next year."

What do the Lambda Nu men think of the arrangement?

"The girls are really great people to live with," said Steve Parker, 19, Anahola, Hawaii. "I only wish there were more of them — that is if they would only stop running around in their robes and curlers."

Departments Add Graduate Studies

Two departments of the University of Victoria will add full-time graduate studies to their programs next year.

Mathematics and anthropology and sociology have expanded into the graduate training field, following the growth of several other departments at Uvic.

The mathematics department began its senior studies last year, but too late for applications. There is only one student working towards his master's degree in the department now, said Dr. Lowell Hinrichs, chairman of the department committee on graduate studies.

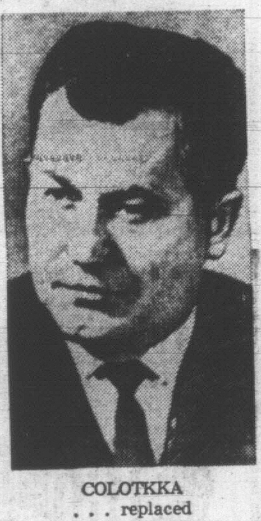
At an early estimate, there would be about 10 students working towards their master's degrees next year, he said. The department has already had "quite a number" of inquiries.

Areas of study will be computer science, pure and applied mathematics, and statistics.

Programs towards the master's degree in anthropology will concentrate on archaeology of northwestern North America, the ethnology of northwestern North America, and the ethnology of the Pacific.

Those leading to degrees in sociology will concentrate on community structure and process, minority and ethnic group relations, sociology of medicine, sociology of occupations, and sociology of religion.

New Press Control Chairman for Czechs



COLOTKKA
. . . replaced

PRAGUE (AP) — The Czechoslovak government has replaced its liberal-minded press control chief amid a crossfire of criticism of his department.

Prague radio said Thursday night that Deputy Premier Petr Colotka was being replaced as chairman of the committee for press and information by Deputy Education Minister Jaroslav Havelka. Colotka will continue to be a deputy premier.

No reason for the change was announced, but Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek told 1,200 miners in North Bohemia Thursday night that the press must work to implement party policy.

"It is necessary to increase the responsibility of publishers for the activities of mass information media in order that they become an instrument that will consistently and with initiative help to implement the policy of the party," he declared.

"This is not a question of recriminations but a placing of emphasis on the active Socialist approach of all media of information to the present-day tasks, in order that our society may pass through the present complicated period in an organized way—without a deeper upheaval."

25,000 Watched Salmon Run

More than 25,000 people from Victoria and the mainland have visited the salmon run at Goldstream Park since September, provincial park naturalist Freeman (Skipper) King said Friday.

"I've never seen so many at the salmon run before," Mr. King said. "Visitors came from Duncan, Victoria, Vancouver, Washington, Oregon, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

"The majority behaved very well and there was little molesting of the fish."

Mr. King, who is director of the junior branch, Victoria Natural History Society, conducted many parties of schoolchildren and interested groups over the spawning ground.

"During the past three months, I've talked to at least 2,500 people of all ages," he said. "But the season is pretty well over now and only a few salmon are left."

Boy Forced To Sniff Glue, Inquest Told

OTTAWA (CP) — An inquest into the death of a 10-year-old boy killed by sniffing glue was told that a seven-year-old youngster was forced to inhale glue fumes.

The inquest was into the death of Raymond Champagne, found dead in an east end park last Oct. 10.

Mrs. Claudette Chisholm said her son Greg, 7, came home about two weeks before the Champagne youngster died with glue around his eyes and in his hair.

The Chisholm youngster told the inquest Raymond Champagne had forced him to sniff fumes from glue. He said he had become dizzy and ran home.

Raymond Champagne was found dead behind a park bench with a plastic bag covering his face. Police said they found what appeared to be dried up glue in the bag and in the boy's mouth.

Six or seven empty tubes of the type of glue used in model building were found near the body.

John Kifoed, a toxicologist from the provincial centre for forensic sciences in Toronto, testified that he found large concentrations of toluene and acetone in samples of blood, liver, brain and lung tissues from the dead boy.

Soft Landing

BOCUM (AP) — West Germany's Bochum Observatory reported the Soviet Cosmos 255 satellite, launched Nov. 29, made a soft landing early today in the Soviet Union.

Re-Organization Of Island Group To Be Discussed

Oak Bay Ratepayers Association will hold a meeting Wednesday to discuss re-organization of the Island ratepayers association.

Albert de Mezey, vice-president of the local group, will give a talk on attempts to give ratepayer's groups a common purpose and organization of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers Association.

Over the next three months the group hopes to "have some younger and more vigorous blood to carry on the aims and objectives of the association," Mr. de Mezey, of 931 Foul Bay Road, said.

The Oak Bay group will also hold a discussion on municipal assessments and how to appeal them before the court of revision.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the municipal hall on Oak Bay Avenue.

FLAMES SOAR HIGH into sky after natural gas pipeline blew apart at metering station north of Belleville, Ont., Friday. Lakeland Natural Gas Co. sent 150 repairmen to area and service was resumed to most of 5,000 homes affected early today. A 20-foot section of pipe was destroyed by blast.

Last-Ditch Talks In Airline Crisis

TURNOUT 'LIGHT' IN EARLY VOTING

Voter turnout was light but generally steady to noon as ballots were cast in seven area municipalities for aldermen and school trustees.

The percentage vote appeared considerably higher than the 21 per cent cast in the October hospital referendum, but much below last year's municipal elections when mayors were chosen.

Estimates of total vote expected range between 30 and 40 per cent.

Polls, open since 8 a.m., close at 8 p.m.

All liquor outlets in Greater Victoria will remain closed until polls close.

Work Slowdown Slated Monday

TORONTO (CP)—A conciliation board plans to sit through the weekend in an attempt to get agreement on a new contract between Air Canada and the Canadian Air Line Employees' Association.

MACKASEY
. . . prevents strike

John Hayes, president of the association, said today no progress had been made in talks which began Friday under the chairmanship of Thomas C. O'Connor, a Toronto labor relations consultant.

Mr. Hayes Friday threatened a work-to-rule slowdown against Air Canada by the 2,200 passenger agents, communications personnel and switchboard operators in the association unless Air Canada presents a "reasonable" contract during the weekend talks.

NEW CHAIRMAN

He said today that Mr. O'Connor, picked as chairman after the federal government ordered a reconvening of the three-man board formerly headed by Judge Rene Lippe, now has been acquainted with the dispute and will begin to play a mediator's role in trying to bring the two sides together.

Mr. Hayes said after the first three-hour meeting that the association and management were no closer to agreement than they were before the meeting began. He said the stumbling block was getting "this company to bargain."

"The company seems to think that we're not worth any more money so we're going to institute a work perfection program, making sure that we follow all the rules to the letter," Mr. Hayes said.

The last contract between the association and Air Canada expired July 31. Bargaining began in June and conciliation was applied for July 19 by the union. At issue are wages, working conditions, duration of the new contract and employee-transfer clauses.

WANTS AN ADJUSTMENT

Earlier this week, Mr. Hayes said the association wants an immediate but undisclosed adjustment, plus salary increases ranging from 19 to 35 per cent in a one-year contract.

Air Canada has offered a 15 per cent increase over two years. Present salaries are $325 to $550 monthly for passenger agents and $260 to $382 monthly for switchboard operators.

Last week, federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey ordered the conciliation board to reconvene instead of accepting the board's original report.

Mr. Hayes said Friday:

"We should have been in a position to take strike action now but the minister prevented that by failing to release the conciliation report. Therefore, we have substituted a different approach in lieu of the right to strike."

Strike action can be taken seven days after a conciliation report is tabled.

Mr. Hayes said the association wants to restore the difference between the wage scales of the clerks and those of other groups in the company that were in effect when the last 32-month contract was negotiated.

"In other words, we're after a catch-up system first, and then we can work out a percentage increase," said Mr. Hayes.

Strom New Chief Of Alberta SC

EDMONTON (CP)—A soft-spoken, church-going Southern Alberta rancher was elected leader of the province's ruling Social Credit party Friday night after a campaign that promised to continue Premier E. C. Manning's policies with a new look.

STROM
. . . Manning pleased

Municipal Affairs Minister Harry Strom, 54, polled 915 votes on the second ballot, 75 more than the minimum 840 required, while Highways Minister Gordon Taylor had 606 and backbencher Walter Buck 147.

Mr. Strom missed a first-ballot victory by only 23 votes.

Ray Reierson, minister of labor and education who ran third on the first ballot, threw his support to Mr. Taylor on the second one. (See stories Page 3.)

Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart, low man on the first ballot, was dropped from the contest.

PROMISED NEW APPROACH

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Strom romised "a vigorous new approach to government, a team approach, a problem-solving approach."

"We now must take this opportunity of a new interest in politics to revitalize our party.

"There is still a great deal to be done. There are many individuals who are not sharing in the development of our province."

He committed his government to expand social, economic and political opportunities.

Like Mr. Manning, Mr. Strom has pictured government's role as one of encouraging individual opportunity and responsibility.

Mr. Strom said he would take an open mind to the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa Dec. 16 but Mr. Manning probably would not be along.

"If I'm to be premier, I must assume a premier's responsibility. I don't think Mr. Manning would want to go along."

There are no immediate election plans, he told reporters. The government, not the pre-

Grits Hint at Closure To Get Rules Changed

OTTAWA (CP)—The parliamentary opposition has loudly rejected a government move to assert virtually complete control over allocating time for passage of legislation through the Commons.

Conservative Leader Stanfield labelled it "a truly horrendous proposal" shortly after it was put forward Friday. The New Democratic Party rules expert, Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre), said it would make the government House leader, Donald Macdonald, "a dictator over Parliament."

The stiff opposition stand on the provision, part of a streamlining rules package, promised an extended Commons fight.

Mr. Macdonald, responsible for arranging Commons business, hoped for a "responsible" opposition attitude on the proposals.

STARTS TUESDAY

He said debate opens Tuesday on the rules revision and that they stand as a single package. He promised the debate will be carried through to a finish.

Both the Conservatives and NDP promised to fight the time-allocation proposal.

"It is our responsibility to fight this proposal and we accept this responsibility," Mr. Stanfield said. Mr. Knowles promised a fight to isolate time-allocation and refer it to committee for reconsideration.

He said he could provisionally accept the rest of the package, advanced by an all-party procedures committee established Sept. 24. A government majority on the committee made the result a government program. Opposition parties on the committee dissented to parts of it, including the time-limit clause.

Under it, an all-party committee would meet to decide on time allocation. In the event of disagreement, the government House leader would have the right to lay down the law subject to a parliamentary vote.

With its House majority, a government victory is automatic.

Under present rules, the government would have to resort to the rarely-used closure rule to end a legislative debate.

Mr. Knowles said it would be "an act of stupidity" for the Liberal government to resort to closure to force a vote on the time-allocation issue. He suggested closure has its place, but not on such a fundamental thing as the changing of the rules of the game.

Apart from elimination of some outdated procedures, the rules package would largely turn over the rest of the job of examining departmental spending estimates to House committees. The opposition would have the option of reviving objections in the House.

ABANDON A STAGE

The resolution stage preceding money bills would be abandoned in a time-saving move.

Most bills would be shunted from the House to committee for detailed examination. And the whole second-reading process—when the most extensive House study is currently made—would be downgraded.

Second reading now amounts to approval in principle. This emphasis would be shifted to the third and final reading.

Instead of facing the possibility of year-round sittings as it has in the past, the procedures committee proposed a yearly session extending from September or October to the following July 1 when the summer break would begin.

There would be three "semesters," one running from September to Christmas, another from January to Easter and the third from Easter to summer break.

The Commons would pick up an extra hour a week of working time with the start of the daily sitting at 2 p.m. instead of 2:30 from Monday to Thursday. The Friday start would remain 11 a.m., but sittings would end at 5 p.m. instead of six.

There were other provisions including an opposition right to 25 days each session to initiate debates of its own choosing. But time allocation was the controversial keynote.

Mr. Macdonald hoped the opposition would not force the government to the point of closure on the issue. Discussing the rule change, he said the government's right to pass legislation had been frustrated.

Paris Banks Blasted

PARIS (UPI) — Explosions rocked three Paris banks early today. Police said that a young woman injured by one of the blasts might have been involved in the attacks. The woman was found lying on the sidewalk in front of a branch of the Banque Nationale de Paris after an explosive charge ripped open its letter box about 1 a.m.

LOT OF CARS PARKED IN 'THEIR POCKETS'

NEW YORK (UPI)—More than half of New York's parking meter collection crew was under arrest today on a charge of stealing $5 million in dimes and quarters from meters over the past four years.

Finance administrator Fioravante Perrotta said each of the 22 men arrested had been pocketing an average of $200 a day, mostly in dimes from the city's meters.

It took an undercover detective who joined the ranks of the meter collection workers to crack the case, he said.

Poverty Still Besets Koreans In Program of Reconstruction

By SUSAN RILEY

Progress has been made in Korea's 15-year struggle to rebuild, but there still is poverty.

"When I began my work, after the war, villages were just a group of huts," says Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, director of the Unitarian Services Committee.

"Today the most isolated villages have schools, and the larger ones have medical centres. Wells are more sanitary and they've learned how to take care of their cattle."

The progressive mayor of Seoul, she said, has a plan to turn his city into a Geneva of the East. In tourist brochures, Seoul looks like an active, clean, modern city.

But tourist brochures don't tell the whole story.

GAP WIDENS

There are still slums, said Dr. Hitschmanova, particularly in Seoul, with its population of five million. As the country progresses she said, the gap between rich and poor widens.

Social Service Centres are an attempt to close that gap. Subsidized by the USC, they have two purposes: to study social problems, and to provide immediate aid.

The centre in Inchon, serves as a dental and medical clinic, a school, a family planning clinic and a food distribution centre.

Social workers are all Koreans. In 1958 the USC was the first overseas agency to employ Korean social workers.

STUDENT TEACHERS

Students from a high school across the road from the centre teach younger children in their spare time.

Every Saturday student dentists travel to Inchon at their own expense and run free dental clinics.

"Soon, too, the centre will have a hostel for destitute women to protect them from prostitution," said Dr. Hitschmanova.

That centre, she said, is an example of the way Koreans can and will help themselves.

It costs, for example, $30 to rehabilitate a Korean family.

"This provides them with two meals a day and clothing said Dr. Hitschmanova, but they are given an opportunity to pay back, which is as important as the money.

"Once the man is working again he is delighted to pay all the loan back," she said.

Not everyone is that lucky.

"There are still frightening numbers of children — over 70,000 — in orphanages, the highest total since the war broke out in 1950."

Korea is considered the poorest country in the temperate zone. Its welfare budget is tiny. The city is teeming; slums are spreading. It is estimated that two million more houses are needed to adequately shelter the present population.

The United Nations, the United States and the USC have been pouring aid into Korea. Carloads of Canadian barley have saved more than one family, Dr. Hitschmanova said. And the demand for help is growing with the country.

"It's hard to say no when you have Canada on your lapels," she said.

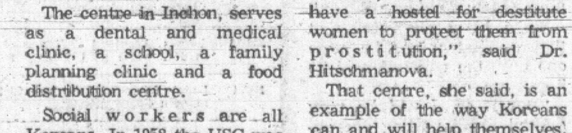
Clothing may be left at Fairfield's Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road.

EXAMINING his new domain, this Korean orphan finds the first bed he ever slept in a far, far better thing than he ever had before. He was admitted to a Unitarian Service Committee TB clinic, where he sleeps better at night now as do some other 70,000 Korean orphans.



Trouble with some workers' slowdowns, nobody kin tell th' difference.

Just often enough to remind us that not even the banana belt is immune to winter, we are visited by a peculiarly nasty freak of weather.

Late Thursday afternoon, a thin slush coated many Saanich Peninsula roads and streets. By early evening, this mixture of rain and snow was hardening into the murderous phenomenon we call black ice.

In strict accuracy, the stuff isn't black. But because of its treachery, and the ebony shine it lays on travelled surfaces, this clear, very hard glaze deserves the title.

Under- tire, it all but destroys traction as any number of luckless drivers can testifly. One touch of extra pressure on brake or gas pedal, and fish-tailing or a wicked skid may result.

The worst thing about it is that you never know when you're going to come on it. Black ice tends to be patchy, and where one area may offer safe footing, another can be dangerously slick.

How should one drive on it?

"Take it very easy," a highways department expert advises, "and use your gears to slow down. Avoid rapid starts, stops, or changes of direction."

As for the underpinning your car should have, the department has found chains still the best traction-providers under all winter conditions. Studded snow-tires will hold better than those lacking studs; but if you can possibly manage it, the best insurance against black ice is to keep off it.

To Mrs. B. Hall of "Cedar Chines" at Cobble Hill, thanks for telling me about a J. R. R. Tolkien book I'd missed.

"You are wrong," Mrs. Hall writes. "You should start with The Hobbit, then you get the complete story of Mr. Bilbo Baggins' travels to which the Lord of the Ring books are sequels. Aren't they fascinating?"

This one of numerous Tolkien fans goes on to point out that the mails are much less cluttered with unsolicited advertising since the six-cent rate went into effect.

"Might you and some of your readers want to join in my crusade to Stamp Out Garbage Mail?" she enquires. "The bit is to stuff it all into the inevitable postage-paid envelope enclosed and send it back from whence it came."

And you know what happens then? After the merest breathing space, along comes another deluge of high-colored persuasions from the same sources.

Maybe better just to ignore it!

The first artificial Christmas trees to hit a December market were pretty crude affairs. But as you may have noticed, some startlingly good imitations are now available.

String them with lights, tinsel and decorations, and the best of them could almost pass for the authentic article.

The artificial is symmetrical . . . no bare spots along its trunk to mar its green pyramid.

Also, it is fire-resistant to a high degree, which can't be said of a natural tree that has reached the needle-shedding stage. No need to buy a new one every year, either. You just disassemble trunk and limbs, and store until the season to be jolly comes again.

But this doesn't mean we plan to get one, except perhaps as a minor supplement to an honest-to-goodness evergreen with the proper forest smell.

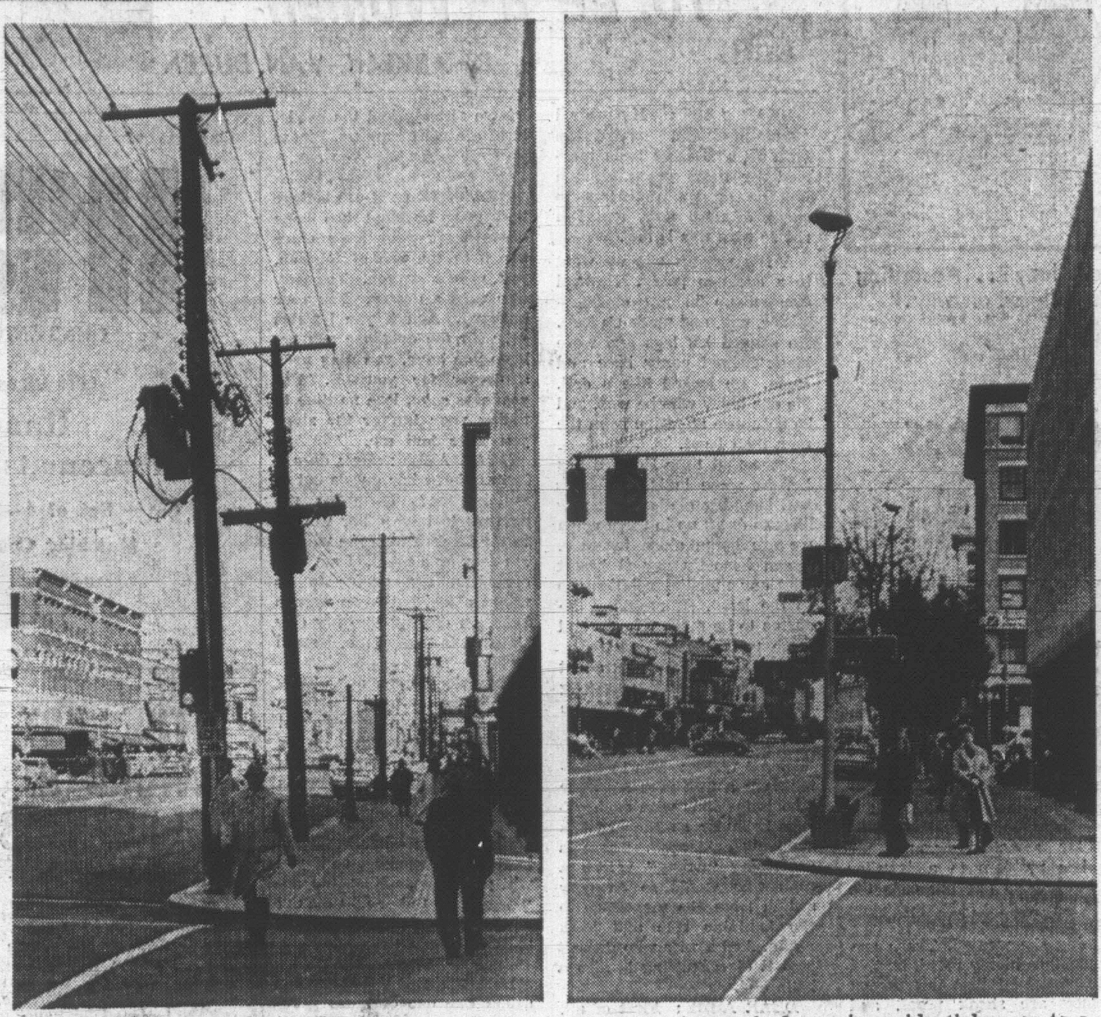
Christmas-tree cutting is forbidden on Crown land, and you can't take a tree from private property without written permission.

But the stands will be doing business as usual, and choosing a scented fir, balsam or pine from a street-corner forest is next best to chopping it.

Service Station For Servicemen?

Inclusion of an automotive service station as part of the Canadian armed forces retail sales outlet here is being considered along with similar stations for defence personnel on bases elsewhere.

A service spokesman at CFB Esquimalt said no decision had been reached as far as the local Canex operation is concerned.



SPIDER WEB WIRING which once hung over Victoria downtown area was removed in a 30-block area 10 years ago and city took on a new look. The idea that overhead wiring is for the birds is being pushed now in residential areas to a greater degree, especially in Saanich. Pictures above were taken at Fort looking north on Douglas, before and after burial process.

Saanich Assumes Leadership In 'Underground Movement'

By JIM HUME

Saanich is the only municipality in the Greater Victoria area making positive progress in getting power and telephone lines underground.

Assistant municipal engineer John Cowlin says at least 50 per cent of the new subdivisions created in Saanich have complete underground services.

"The municipality does all it can to encourage underground services for new developments," he said.

"The cost for the installation of those services is borne by B.C. Hydro, the developer and the municipality via a local improvement bylaw. The assessment is made to the properties benefiting."

Underground services in Saanich include power, telephone and cable television.

"The telephone and cable TV lines are installed when the power cable goes underground," Mr. Cowlin said.

The assistant engineer added that he felt Saanich is the only municipality encouraging underground wiring as a local improvement.

●

In the city progress is being made to get services underground, but slowly.

The downtown core already has its services beneath road and sidewalk surfaces and B.C. Telephone Co. recently announced it will budget $500,000 in 1969 towards underground wiring installaion, mainly in an expansion of the area now served b underground services.

At Hillside and Shelbourne the new Simpsons-Sears shopping centre also will be served by underground wiring.

But there still will be the usual jungle of wires leading to the complex.

Preliminary plans call for all services in the new Rose-Blanshard urban renewal area to be underground, but city manager Dennis Young said this week that financial problems had arisen.

"We are still very hopeful that all services will be underground," he said. "But at this stage we can't be positive about it. B.C. Hydro have the matter under active discussion and will hopefully be coming up with an answer once they know what power demands there will be in the area."

Hydro says it can't make a positive decision until contractors return design and construction proposals in early January.

If services do go underground the cost will be shared by Hydro and the three-way partnership comprised of federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

With the installation of underground hydro lines, telephone and cable TV lines will also be below the surface.

William Jorgenson, assistant city engineer, said the power lines are the main problem.

●

"If they go underground it is relatively simple to install underground telephone lines at the same time," he said. "And as cable TV leases telephone conduit space it automatically goes underground at the same time."

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh said he is not aware of any immediate target areas in the city to push for underground wiring at present.

"The big effort has been in the core where services are now underground," he said. "I'm not making excuses, but it is a far more difficult problem in an established area of the community than it is in an area like Saanich where new areas are being opened up.

"I think it's fairly obvious that a municipality is in far better shape when it is subdividing land for primary development. You have the opportunity then to do things the way you want them done."

●

Mr. Jorgensen said he is not aware of any definite Hydro plans to place power lines underground in any new areas of the city.

"They have carried out certain tests and I know they have a fairly forward looking program for the area surrounding the urban renewal area," he said. "But just how far along they are I can't say."

Hydro officials said they had no definite plans for underground services development in Victoria.

And they added that the final decision on whether the services for the Rose-Blanshard area go underground would have to be made by city authorities. They stressed, however, that they too are "hopeful" the services will be underground.

Death Cause Studied In Autopsy

A post mortem has been ordered to decide whether a retired Victoria businessman died Friday from a fall of bricks at a demolition site, or suffered a heart attack.

Phil Mattison, 75, of 2717 Belmont, was found by his son, William, surrounded by a pile of bricks at the partially-demolished Summer Auction Hall, 731 Cormorant, at about 6 p.m.

Mr. Mattison was pronounced dear on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital. Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ordered a post mortem.

The building is being demolished by the firm of Mattison and Patterson in which William Mattison is a partner.

52 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Mattison celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Dec. 25, 1966. They were married at Edmonton, Alta., in 1916 and moved to Victoria two years ago.

Mr. Mattison is survived by the widow, Luella; his son, William, 3421 Bonair Place; two daughters, Mrs. William (Shirley) Borden, Vista, California, and Mrs. James (Mary) Tuckwell, San Marcos, California; and two brothers, Thomas, Penticton, and Morris, Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Sands Mortuary Ltd.

Adult Students Taking Over?

More adults will attend evening courses this fall and winter than there are high school students in Greater Victoria.

School board policy making classrooms available to adults in the evening has paid off, Jack Dalgleish, director of adult education, said Friday.

Already over 7,000 are taking part in non-credit vocational and non-vocational courses which run from 10 to 12 weeks. Another 1,517 are taking academic subjects full or part-time at the Institute of Adult Studies, he added.

"This 30 per cent increase will put the number of adults attending some night school activity well over the 11,700 day school students at our secondary schools."

Since September, 170 courses have been added to the original 450. To be advertised in The Times Monday, they range from the Japanese language to Chinese cooking.

A new boating course prepared by the B.C. Safety Council and the transport department will cover boating language, rules of the road and small boat handling.

New courses have also been added to the business and technical vocational sections.

Human Rights In Spotlight

Tuesday has been proclaimed Human Rights Day by the B.C. government.

This is in recognition of the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations.

In a proclamation the government urges everyone to reduce tension caused by discrimination and to promote better understanding among all people.

Fee Agreement Coming Soon, Say Dentists

By JOHN SLINGER

The province's dentists and the B.C. welfare department are on the verge of reaching an agreement in their five-month fee hassle, it was learned today.

The dispute over payment for welfare dental work has left most of the province's welfare recipients with only emergency care.

The province has been paying 57 per cent of the dentists' fee schedule. The 700-member association has demanded 90 per cent, which is considered the normal payment and is what the province's medical doctors receive for welfare work.

In a telephone interview from Vancouver, Dr. J. F. Reid, the association's president, said "it looks like something is going to break within a week or 10 days."

He was "really confident" an agreement would be reached soon.

GETTING CLOSER

Members of the association's executive have been meeting with Welfare Minister Dan Campbell and other department officials and while some details are still to be ironed out, "we're getting closer together," Dr. Reid said.

Asked whether they were getting closer together on a 90-per cent payment, Dr. Reid said "we haven't arrived at a figure yet.

"We're trying to work our way up to something more amenable to the dental profession."

Mr. Campbell is out of town and could not be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Victoria Family and Children's Service has been paying up to 33 per cent of fees to local dentists who do work on welfare children.

This additional payment on an unknown number of cases brings welfare payments to the 90 per cent dentists want.

LOCAL DECISION.

The decision to do this was made by the local agency's own board of directors. It is believed that Greater Victoria is the only area in the province where this extra payment is available.

A welfare source said money to make the payments comes from provincial grants to the local agency earmarked for child maintenance.

The provincial department is aware of the local action, but is officially ignoring it while negotiations continue with the dentists.

Asked for comment, Dr. Reid said "It is a sticky wicket."

Gordon Wright, executive director of the Family and Children's Service, would say only

"The board of directors of the agency became aware of the degree to which a lack of continuing dental care was harming the children for which it is responsible and authorized payment in those situations where care was needed."

Mr. Campbell has said he wants the dental profession to prepare an administrative scheme to handle denticare.

He said the province is not prepared to put in its own dental insurance program, but wants to be ready if dental benefits are added to the existing Canadian medical care insurance program.

WIDOWMAKER PUTS LOGGER IN HOSPITAL

A Langford man is in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken leg, broken nose and head cuts received in a logging accident Friday.

John Baxter, 27, was falling a snag for Pat Carson Contracting about 14 miles west of Shawnigan Lake when the top broke off and hit him. Loggers refer to falling pieces of trees as "widowmakers."

"He was fortunate to get away without more serious injuries," said Mr. Carson. "It could have been much worse."

Mr. Baxter, who lives on Neill Road in Langford, is married and has two children.

BREAKDOWN DISRUPTS FERRY TRIPS

Ferry service between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen was slowed Friday night when two B.C. ferries had to do the job of three.

A spokesman for B.C. Ferries said today the Sechelt Queen, returning between Tsawwassen and Salt Spring Island, "experienced mechanical difficulties." Its run had to be taken over by the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries.

The regular ferries on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen run made two stops at Salt Spring Island to deliver Salt Spring traffic from both the mainland and Victoria.

The Sechelt Queen is back in operation today.

4-Year Term For Hold-Ups

A sentence of four years in the penitentiary was imposed on Gerald Vesterfelt, 33, of 643 John, who pleaded guilty Friday to the armed robbery of two grocery stores in October.

His companion, Gerhardus Overwater, 19, of 2630 Deville, who pleaded guilty today to holding up one of the stores, was remanded until Monday for a pre-sentence report.

Vesterfelt was arrested early Friday after investigation of the hold-ups by city detectives.

City detective Richard Ward said Vesterfelt asked a friend to take him from his house down Oak Bay Avenue Oct. 5. When they arrived at John's Grocery in the 1800 block the car was stopped and Vesterfelt entered the store and pointed a CO2 pellet gun at Harry Woo saying "I want your money."

He then fled in the car with $100 taken from the cash register till, Det. Ward said. The other man was not told what happened until they reached the city centre.

SECOND CASE

In the second robbery Det. Ward said the accused and Overwater drove to the Cedar Hill Store, 1400 Hillside, on Oct. 19. Prior to setting out they arranged to take silk stockings with them and the CO2 gun.

Both of them entered the store with the stockings over their faces he said, and the accused pointed the gun at elderly Yee Ngai who was told to lie on the floor. A bag was filled with $20 from the till and some packages of cigarettes and they left the store.

The loot was split between the two men, Det. Ward said.

Crown prosecutor Cory Stolte said Vesterfelt had a criminal record including two convictions in Ontario for theft and false pretences in 1962 and 1963 and one conviction in Alberta in 1966 for car theft.

NO VIOLENCE

Mr. Stolte said no violence was used in the robberies but they were situations where violence and death were not far away.

He said there had been a number of such incidents lately and they should be discouraged as strongly as possible.

Magistrate William Ostler said he concurred with the prosecutor's opinion and that "this sort of banditry will not be tolerated in this area."

V.I. Roads Hazardous

Road conditions between Victoria and Nanaimo vary from wet to icy and probably won't improve during the weekend.

Reports from Duncan, Ladysmith, Chemainus and Cowichan Lake say freezing rain combined with some show have made driving conditions hazardous.

The weatherman said there is little chance of icy roads in the Victoria area this weekend, but showers are expected today and Sunday.

"The forecast low temperature here is 37 degrees,' 'he said, "so we shouldn't get any snow or freezing."

He added that driving conditions may get poorer on the Malahat and higher elevations where the temperature could drop as low as 28 degrees.

Inquest Monday

A coroner's inquest into the traffic deaths of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Burnell-Higgs of Finlayson Arm Road, killed in a head-on crash on Millstream road Thursday night will be held at Chaplin's Mortuary Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Donald Rabbitts, 1938 Trans-Canada Highway, identified by Colwood RCMP as the driver of a pickup truck involved in the accident, has pleaded not guilty to impaired driving.

SAFE DRIVING WEEK GRIM SEVEN DAYS

Pedestrian Week Next Area Test

With Safe Driving Week ending today, Greater Victoria and District Safety Council now plans to give attention to safe walking.

Pedestrian Safety Week will be observed here Dec. 15 to 21.

But council officials will be keeping their fingers crossed.

Victoria is emerging from national Safe Driving Week with one of the worst weekly experiences in all Canada — three persons dead.

There were only two other road deaths throughout the province. There were 35 in all of Canada at presstime. Saskatchewan, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island had no road deaths during the period.

Nova Scotia had three, New Brunswick two, Quebec 10, Ontario 12, Albert two and Manitoba one.

Last year 81 Canadians died in Safe Driving Week indicating vast improvement — but not of course, in Victoria.

First annual Pedestrian Safety Week gives this district a fresh page.

Safety council president Peter Pollen says that during the first eight months of 1968 three pedestrians were killed and 82 injured. In all of 1967 there were seven killed and 123 injured.

"Courtesy, care and common sense," are the key to safe walking in a modern city, says Mr. Pollen.

He urged walkers to cross streets only at corners or crosswalks and to remember that they can stop faster than a car. Don't step out expecting a car to stop. It might not.

Cars are becoming quieter, you must watch more carefully. Watch also for drivers who fail to signal turns. Don't walk from between parked cars. Wear something light in color at night.

Where there is no sidewalk, walk on the left, facing oncoming traffic.
